FBI, Police Nab Suspect Charged In Coors Slaying

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — The nine-month flight of Joseph Corbett Jr., 32, charged with the murder of millionaire Colorado brewer Adolph Coors III, ended here Saturday in a shabby hotel room.

Vancouver police and the FBI, which had listed Corbett as one of its 10 most wanted men, arrested the fugitive without a struggle.

Corbett had a pistol in his bed but never had a chance to use it.

A flashy rented red automobile and a young constable's keen memory brought about the quiet, brainy Corbett's capture.

FBI agents told Vancouver police Saturday morning they believed that Corbett, an escaped slayer, was in the area and driving a fire-engine red hardtop with Manitoba license plates.

Constable Jack Marshall remembered seeing such a car in front of a West End hotel, found it was still there, showed the landlady a picture of Corbett, and learned he was in an upstairs room.

Marshall called police headquarters, and six cars of officers and FBI agents converged on the hotel. The raiding party got Corbett to open the door on a ruse. A small arsenal of guns was pointed at him, and he meekly surrendered.

How long Corbett had been in this British Columbia metropolis was not known immediately. His rented car contained an Oct. 6 registration slip from a U-drive company in Winnipeg. Before that he had been in Toronto.

A police spokesman said Corbett had admitted under questioning he was the man sought in the kidnap slaying of Coors, 44, an industrialist and brewery head in Golden, Colo.

Coors disappeared after leaving for work Feb. 9 from his home in the Rocky Mountain foothills. His remains were not found until Sept. 11 about 60 miles away.

The FBI said he had been shot twice in the neck. A ransom note for $500,000 was received by the family soon after he vanished, but no contact was ever made with the kidnaper.

Candidates Seek Votes In Suburbs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon sought votes in suburbs of two of the nation's biggest cities Saturday while chances of bringing them together for a fifth debate all but disappeared.

Each side attempted to saddle the other with responsibility for the collapse of negotiations for one more face-to-face encounter via television and radio.

HITS SCARE THEME

Nixon, campaigning in the Chicago suburbs, seized on a Halloween theme. He said this offers "a good time for America to take a look at some of the hobgoblins Mr. Kennedy has been conjuring up."

"One by one he has let them loose," Nixon said, "trying to frighten America into believing what is not true: trying to scare up a few votes.

"But this Halloween is a failure. America does not respond to his wails of woe because America long ago learned that you cannot really be scared by something that isn't there."

The vice president appeared to have lost most of the huskiness that had marked his speaking since he caught a cold in the rain in Ohio Wednesday.

Kennedy was having trouble with another campaign asset — his 'right hand. It was swollen, scratched and bruised. While shaking hands from his convertible in Chester, Pa., he had his hand and arm grabbed by admirers. It appeared to newsmen that the arm had been wrenched, and Kennedy seemed to favor it although he minimized the matter later.

He told one audience in the Philadelphia area that no candidate for the presidency this year "should go to the people with anything but the truth, and then the

Father Admits Giving Stranger Baby Daughter

Charles J. Dodson, 24, was convicted in District Court of disorderly conduct and placed on probation for one year. A similar charge against his wife, Alberta, 19, was dismissed. Judge Frank Gregorski ordered their daughter Cindy Cheryl, 5 months, returned to them after she recovers from a cold. The child will remain with the woman to whom it was given until then.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Aladin De Brozzo said he would refer the matter to Children's Court to determine whether the couple's parental rights should be terminated.

Veteran News Editor Dies In Shreveport

SHREVEPORT (Special) — Charles A. Hazen, executive editor of the Shreveport Times and one of the South's best known newsmen, died in a Shreveport Hospital about noon yesterday after a long illness. He was 60.

The veteran newspaperman had directed the news department of the Times for the past 28 years, serving as the managing editor for 26 years and the past two years as executive editor.

Death came at 12:10 in Highland Hospital where he had been hospitalized frequently during the two year period which he was ill.

Funeral services under the direction of Osborn's Funeral Home were incomplete last night.

GREW

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Helen H. Hazen, and one daughter Miss Sally Hazen, both of Shreveport, and one son, Allen Hazen, with the U. S. Navy in Washington; three brothers, Ronald of Indianapolis, Ind., Lawrence of St. Paul, Minn., and Gordon of Grand Forks, North Dakota.

During the period of his leadership at the Times, the newspaper's circulation grew from a point less that 50 thousand to the present day 90,000 daily and 110,000 Sunday.

Keenly interested and active in organizations devoted to improvement of newspapers, Mr. Hazen was a member of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, the Associated Press Managing Editors Association, and was a past chairman of the Louisiana - Mississippi Associated Press Association. He was also a member of the Shreveport Rotary Club.

Davis Keeps Silence On Session Aims

Leaders Hint At Interposition In Orleans Crisis

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Gov. Jimmie H. Davis, who once pledged segregation without compromise, departed for a football game Saturday amidst speculation and blunt demands he clarify vague terms in his call for the Legislature Nov. 4.

His legislative leaders and segregationists hinted strongly at a States' Rights challenge of the federal government by use of interposition in a New Orleans school integration crisis.

LONG ADVOCATED

Advocates of interposition — an idea shimmering in the Southland for many years — believe a state legally can interpose itself between the people and federal authority.

Davis remained silent. The onetime ballad singer, who made "You Are My Sunshine" a favorite tune, draped a cloud of secrecy over the exact proposals to be considered.

Speculation arose around the state, after Davis Friday called for the 12-day meeting, that legislators would be asked to consider bills in these general areas·

U. N. Appoints Group To Seek Peace In Congo

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —Fifteen African and Asian countries were named Saturday to a U.N. committee to go to the Congo and seek peace between rival political leaders.

Diplomats reported this after a three-hour private meeting of Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold's Advisory Committee on the Congo, which consists of the 18 countries with soldiers in the U.N. force in that country.

They said that committee decided that its 15 African and Asian members would make up a mission to attempt reconciliation of such Congolese figures as President Joseph Kasavubu, deposed Premier Patrice Lumumba and secessionist leader Moise Tshombe.

They said a few members of the Advisory Committee would draw up proposed instructions for the mission and the full committee would meet probably next Wednesday to approve such instructions and discuss when the mission should leave for the Congo.

Monroe Recreation Bond Election Set

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

Property owners among 12,575 registered voters in wards three and 10 are eligible to vote in the November 5 Monroe recreation bond issue election.

The city is seeking approval of a $1,675,000 bond issue, to provide recreational facilities, including centers, swimming pools, picnic and barbeque areas, ballfields and playground equipment.

"We'll be able to give the people anything they want in the way of recreation facilities if the bond issue is approved," pointed out city recreation director Jack Hesketh.

"Our recreation program has grown so large with what facilities we have that there is no way we can expand without more facilities," he added.

The bond issue would be paid for by a 1.75 millage property tax over a 20-year period. Another one - mill maintenance tax offered for approval would run for 10 years, and be voted on again in 1970.

Mrs. John Reitzell, a leader in the movement for the expanded recreation program in Monroe, will conduct a public forum at Sherrouse School Thursday at 7 p.m.

Mrs. Reitzell, who is a member of the recreation board, will answer questions concerning the bond issue or any other questions that property owners may have.

Four recreation centers, two swimming pools, six ballfields, nine tennis courts, picnic and playground equipment for small tots will be provided if the bond issue is passed.

LOSSES HEAVY

Cloudbursts Hit In Texas, 8 Die

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Furious flash floods spawned by a series of cloudbursts in central Texas washed automobiles from roads Saturday and drowned at least eight persons.

One other person is missing and feared dead.

POLICE SEARCHING

Rains up to 10 inches battered the state capital area, apparently in the center of a storm formation that extended 50 miles north and east, 75 miles west and 100 miles south.

The Weather Bureau reported total damage in Austin at $2.5 million. More than 300 automobiles suffered damage. About 3,500 trunk line telephones were out of service, including all those to the city airport.

Hundreds of families were driven from their homes after midnight here when creeks sent four to six feet of water into houses and business establishments in low sections. At Bastrop, 30 miles southeast of Austin, high water routed a dozen families from their homes.

The known dead were: Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Blasig, in their 60s, of Giddings; Mrs. Effie McJenkins, 50, and her daughter, Mrs. Mary Beckwith, 22, both of Austin; Mr. and Mrs. Carl T. Smith, 35 and 27; their son, Garry Lynn, 7; and Mrs. Smith's sister, Patsy Darlene Lewis, 13. The Smiths live in Stonewall.

Smith was owner of the Odessa Packing Co. In the automobile were Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Patsy Darlene and two Smith boys. The car was trapped by flood wa-

U. N. Armored Unit Attacks Baluba Forces

LEOPOLDVILLE The Congo, (UPI) — U. N. troops attacked rampaging Baluba tribesmen with light armored cars Saturday in a jungle battle to stop a bloody attack on a Lulua tribe village.

The U.N. force, including Liberian units, went into action in Kassi Province amid reports that 5,000 Balubas, armed with machine guns and automatic rifles, were on a spree of killing and burning in a tribal bloodletting against the rival Luluas.

A U.N. spokesman did not indicate whether the Baluba tribesmen attacked by U.N. forces near the village of Mwene Ditu were part of the 5,000-strong band.

The U.N. forces moved in when Balubas assaulted Mwene Ditu, 100 miles southeast of the Kasai capital city of Luluabourg, killing a number of villagers.

The main Baluba force was said to be operating some 70 miles west of Mwene Ditu in Kasai.

The main Baluba goal appeared to be the town of Louisa, a stronghold of the Luluas who support ousted premier Patrice Lumumba.

A Ghanaian U.N. defense zone in the Louisa vicinity said they had orders to shoot if attacked.

Three Wounded In House Feud

NEW YORK (UPI)—An apparently crazed 55-year-old bachelor seriously wounded his sister and two other relatives Saturday in a feud over ownership of a house and then barricaded himself in a bedroom for three hours before surrendering under a tear gas barrage.

Sylvester Lally, white-haired and weighing 250 pounds, was in tears and near collapse as he staggered from the house after a one-man reign of terror during which he sprayed the neighborhood with .22 caliber rifle bullets.

Police in bullet proof vests stood poised with sub machineguns and a fire crew was ready to turn hoses on the windows of the barricaded room, but Lally surrendered meekly.

AMONG AMENDMENTS

Negro College, Civil Service Included

(EDITOA'S NOTE: This is the 14th in a series of articles on the proposed Constitutional Amendments. Today's article includes No. 44, No. 45 and No. 46.)

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

Southern University and civil service present three issues to be voted on when Louisiana voters face a heavy ballot of 55 proposed Constitutional Amendments on November 8.

These topics are covered in amendments No. 44, No. 45 and No. 46.

Proposed Amendment No. 44 would ensure that the New Orleans branch of Southern University, an all - Negro school, would remain a part of Southern, the parent institution.

This, in effect, would keep the branch under the supervision of the State Board of Education.

By placing the Southern branch in the constitution greater assurance would be provided to keep the New Orleans school from being set up as another independent college.

No. 45 deals with civil service and is classified by its opponents as an example of state government encroaching on local government.

Specifically, No. 45 would place firemen in municipalities with

Patrol Says 30 Die, 18 Are Injured

The Ohio Highway Patrol said 30 persons were killed and 18 were injured.

ADMIT INJURED

Toledo Hospital said about a dozen injured persons were admitted.

The team was enroute home from Bowling Green, Ohio, 25 miles southeast of here, where it had lost to Bowling Green State University, 50-6, in a football game Saturday afternoon.

Details of the crash were vague. The fog made driving to the airport, near the suburb of Swanton about 20 miles southwest of the city, hazardous.

Ambulances sent to the crash scene had difficulty making their way to the airport from the city and in bringing the injured to hospitals in Toledo, a city on Lake Erie in northwestern Ohio.

The plane crashed about 10:25 p.m. est. Almost an hour later the two hospitals nearest the airport reported none of the injured had been brought in. But a few minutes later, some of the survivors began arriving.

The tragedy shocked the college community of San Luis Obispo, where the school's vice president, Robert Kennedy, phoned the college president, Julian McPhee, in Washington, D. C., to notify him of the crash. The college president was attending a meeting there.

Cuban Plane Guard Slain, 3 Wounded

Aboard the government owned Aerovias Q Airlines twin-engine plane when it reached Key West were 37 persons, including 34 passengers and a crew of three. The body of a military guard lay riddled with bullets.

The pilot, copilot and a boy, 13, were wounded and the guard was shot dead shortly after the plane left Havana on a regularly scheduled flight to the Isle of Pines, almost due south of Havana and a few miles off the southwest coast of Cuba.

TAKE CHARGE

Military prisoners frequently are transported to the island by plane, but authorities said there were none aboard the aircraft.

Immigration authorities took charge and declined to release names of those aboard. But it was learned that pilot Candelario Delgado was shot in the right arm above the elbow and copilot Gabriel Carrasco had a super-

U. S. Officials Believe Castro Plans Invasion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — High American officials said Saturday Cuban Premier Fidel Castro may have stepped up plans for invasion of some of his Caribbean neighbors because of deteriorating economic conditions at home and a steady decline in his prestige in Latin America.

The United States has warned Haiti, El Salvador, Nicaragua, Guatemala and other small republics in the area that a huge buildup of Communist arms and technicians in Cuba undoubtedly is designed eventually to support "liberation" expeditions against some Caribbean nations.

The only question, in the minds of most officials, is "when?"

"We have a strong feeling that Castro is getting ready to move," one high administration source told UPI. He said this "feeling" was bolstered by intelligence reports of increasing Cuban security measures in port areas and waters where Castro might be expected to prepare military expeditions.

Diplomats reported this after a three-hour private meeting of Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold's Advisory Committee on the Congo, which consists of the 18 countries with soldiers in the U.N. force in that country.

They said that committee decided that its 15 African and Asian members would make up a mission to attempt reconciliation of such Congolese figures as President Joseph Kasavubu, deposed Premier Patrice Lumumba and secessionist leader Moise Tshombe.

They said a few members of the Advisory Committee would draw up proposed instructions for the mission and the full committee would meet probably next Wednesday to approve such instructions and discuss when the mission should leave for the Congo.

Rain Continues Until Afternoon

The rains will not go away today so Johnny can play. Quite to the contrary, they are expected to remain with us until late in the afternoon.

Skies will probably clear a little late today, becoming partly cloudy over the Twin Cities.

The predicted scattered showers may dissipate then.

Temperatures are expected to drop some, with an expected high today of 68. The overnight low will be about 60.

Saturday's high was 64 with a low of 56

Cloudbursts Hit In Texas, 8 Die

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Furious flash floods spawned by a series of cloudbursts in central Texas washed automobiles from roads Saturday and drowned at least eight persons.

One other person is missing and feared dead.

POLICE SEARCHING

Rains up to 10 inches battered the state capital area, apparently in the center of a storm formation that extended 50 miles north and east, 75 miles west and 100 miles south.

The Weather Bureau reported total damage in Austin at $2.5 million. More than 300 automobiles suffered damage. About 3,500 trunk line telephones were out of service, including all those to the city airport.

Hundreds of families were driven from their homes after midnight here when creeks sent four to six feet of water into houses and business establishments in low sections. At Bastrop, 30 miles southeast of Austin, high water routed a dozen families from their homes.

The known dead were: Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Blasig, in their 60s, of Giddings; Mrs. Effie McJenkins, 50, and her daughter, Mrs. Mary Beckwith, 22, both of Austin; Mr. and Mrs. Carl T. Smith, 35 and 27; their son, Garry Lynn, 7; and Mrs. Smith's sister, Patsy Darlene Lewis, 13. The Smiths live in Stonewall.

Smith was owner of the Odessa Packing Co. In the automobile were Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Patsy Darlene and two Smith boys. The car was trapped by flood wa-

U. N. Armored Unit Attacks Baluba Forces

LEOPOLDVILLE The Congo, (UPI) — U. N. troops attacked rampaging Baluba tribesmen with light armored cars Saturday in a jungle battle to stop a bloody attack on a Lulua tribe village.

The U.N. force, including Liberian units, went into action in Kassi Province amid reports that 5,000 Balubas, armed with machine guns and automatic rifles, were on a spree of killing and burning in a tribal bloodletting against the rival Luluas.

A U.N. spokesman did not indicate whether the Baluba tribesmen attacked by U.N. forces near the village of Mwene Ditu were part of the 5,000-strong band.

The U.N. forces moved in when Balubas assaulted Mwene Ditu, 100 miles southeast of the Kasai capital city of Luluabourg, killing a number of villagers.

The main Baluba force was said to be operating some 70 miles west of Mwene Ditu in Kasai.

The main Baluba goal appeared to be the town of Louisa, a stronghold of the Luluas who support ousted premier Patrice Lumumba.

A Ghanaian U.N. defense zone in the Louisa vicinity said they had orders to shoot if attacked.

Three Wounded In House Feud

NEW YORK (UPI)—An apparently crazed 55-year-old bachelor seriously wounded his sister and two other relatives Saturday in a feud over ownership of a house and then barricaded himself in a bedroom for three hours before surrendering under a tear gas barrage.

Sylvester Lally, white-haired and weighing 250 pounds, was in tears and near collapse as he staggered from the house after a one-man reign of terror during which he sprayed the neighborhood with .22 caliber rifle bullets.

Police in bullet proof vests stood poised with sub machineguns and a fire crew was ready to turn hoses on the windows of the barricaded room, but Lally surrendered meekly.

Cuban Plane Guard Slain, 3 Wounded

Aboard the government owned Aerovias Q Airlines twin-engine plane when it reached Key West were 37 persons, including 34 passengers and a crew of three. The body of a military guard lay riddled with bullets.

The pilot, copilot and a boy, 13, were wounded and the guard was shot dead shortly after the plane left Havana on a regularly scheduled flight to the Isle of Pines, almost due south of Havana and a few miles off the southwest coast of Cuba.

TAKE CHARGE

Military prisoners frequently are transported to the island by plane, but authorities said there were none aboard the aircraft.

Immigration authorities took charge and declined to release names of those aboard. But it was learned that pilot Candelario Delgado was shot in the right arm above the elbow and copilot Gabriel Carrasco had a super-

Nixon Target Of Bomb Hoax

CHICAGO (AP)—An anonymous telephone caller reported Saturday a bomb would be planted near a platform where Vice President Richard M. Nixon was to speak in suburban Bridgeview.

Police Chief Albin Ziarko, who reported the call, said the platform area was searched and "nothing has been found and the area is secure."

AMONG AMENDMENTS

Negro College, Civil Service Included

(EDITOA'S NOTE: This is the 14th in a series of articles on the proposed Constitutional Amendments. Today's article includes No. 44, No. 45 and No. 46.)

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

Southern University and civil service present three issues to be voted on when Louisiana voters face a heavy ballot of 55 proposed Constitutional Amendments on November 8.

These topics are covered in amendments No. 44, No. 45 and No. 46.

Proposed Amendment No. 44 would ensure that the New Orleans branch of Southern University, an all - Negro school, would remain a part of Southern, the parent institution.

This, in effect, would keep the branch under the supervision of the State Board of Education.

By placing the Southern branch in the constitution greater assurance would be provided to keep the New Orleans school from being set up as another independent college.

No. 45 deals with civil service and is classified by its opponents as an example of state government encroaching on local government.

Specifically, No. 45 would place firemen in municipalities with

Patrol Says 30 Die, 18 Are Injured

The Ohio Highway Patrol said 30 persons were killed and 18 were injured.

ADMIT INJURED

Toledo Hospital said about a dozen injured persons were admitted.

The team was enroute home from Bowling Green, Ohio, 25 miles southeast of here, where it had lost to Bowling Green State University, 50-6, in a football game Saturday afternoon.

Details of the crash were vague. The fog made driving to the airport, near the suburb of Swanton about 20 miles southwest of the city, hazardous.

Ambulances sent to the crash scene had difficulty making their way to the airport from the city and in bringing the injured to hospitals in Toledo, a city on Lake Erie in northwestern Ohio.

The plane crashed about 10:25 p.m. est. Almost an hour later the two hospitals nearest the airport reported none of the injured had been brought in. But a few minutes later, some of the survivors began arriving.

The tragedy shocked the college community of San Luis Obispo, where the school's vice president, Robert Kennedy, phoned the college president, Julian McPhee, in Washington, D. C., to notify him of the crash. The college president was attending a meeting there.

U. S. Officials Believe Castro Plans Invasion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — High American officials said Saturday Cuban Premier Fidel Castro may have stepped up plans for invasion of some of his Caribbean neighbors because of deteriorating economic conditions at home and a steady decline in his prestige in Latin America.

The United States has warned Haiti, El Salvador, Nicaragua, Guatemala and other small republics in the area that a huge buildup of Communist arms and technicians in Cuba undoubtedly is designed eventually to support "liberation" expeditions against some Caribbean nations.

The only question, in the minds of most officials, is "when?"

cial agent in charge of the FBI office, said Corbett would be held in Vancouver at least overnight before being returned to Colorado, where the first degree murder charge against him was filed.

Friends and associates in Seattle recalled him as a brilliant student at the University of Washington whose personality changed after his mother died. She was fatally injured 11 years ago in a fall from a kitchen balcony young Corbett was repairing.

A year later Corbett was convicted of second-degree murder in California for the shotgun slaying of an Air Force sergeant. He escaped from prison at Chino in 1955.

For several years after that he lived and worked in Denver, using the alias Walter Osborne.

The FBI said a hat found at the scene of the Coors killing, a handcuffs case and metal fragments in Corbett's abandoned Denver apartment, and a yellow 1951 car left half-burned on a Baltimore, Md., dump linked him to the brewer's murder.

The trail faded in Baltimore, but the FBI picked it up in Canada a short time ago. From then on Corbett's days of freedom were numbered.

Veteran News Editor Dies In Shreveport

course at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill.

He began his career as a reporter for the Monroe News-Star in 1923, becoming its managing editor two years later. Then he served as telegraph editor of the Tuscaloosa, Alabama, News, city editor of the Mobile Press and managing editor of the Longview, Tex., News and Journal. He came to the Shreveport Times from the New Orleans Times Picayune where he was a feature writer and political reporter.

A strict taskmaster, who constantly demanded excellence from his staff members, he always achieved the allegiance of those who worked for him.

And although a northerner by birth, he was a southerner by choice and his sympathies eternally lay solidly with the South.

He was particularly well known by leaders of other newspapers throughout the country, and at word of his death, many of those persons quickly offered their condolences to his family and to the Times.

Robert Ewing Jr., chairman of the Board of the Times Publishing Company, Limited, speaking for himself and for the Ewing family said,

"Charles A. Hazen has been a cornerstone of the Shreveport Times for more than a quarter of a century. His devotion to the Times will never be forgotten by the Ewing family. His contributions to this institution which he loved so much will live on in its pages through the years."

W. H. Bronson, publisher of the Shreveport Times, said,

"The death of Mr. Charles A. Hazen brings to an end the career of one of the really great journalist of our times. His modesty and retiring nature made him less known to people of this area generally than to those in journalistic circles throughout the country.

"His greatest devotion was to Americanism to which he was recognized in his field as having contributed immeasurably.

"The single simple way to express his achievements is to refer to the history of the Shreveport Times during his 28 years of dedication to it. He was made managing editor of the Times in 1932 and executive editor in 1958 when his health necessitated a reduction in his duties.

"During this period from 1932 to today the Shreveport Times has become one of the larger newspapers of the country. It has one of the most concentrated coverages in terms of circulation in the area it serves of any of the country's newspapers. It has been cited for its Americanism. It has been repeatedly named as one of the ten best of the larger newspapers of the country in typography, makeup and printing.

"Those who know Charles Hazen and the Times know of his tremendous contribution to its success and service. He will be missed by those who produced the Times. His contribution to this paper which he loved and to which he gave so much of his energy will continue to reflect credit on him."

George Healy, vice president of the New Orleans Times Picayune, had become acquainted when they worked together in the early 1930's.

"He was one of the finest newspapermen I have ever known and also a very fine gentleman and a fine friend," said Healy, upon learning of Mr. Hazen's death. "I will miss him very much."

"He was a very close friend of mine and in my opinion was one of the outstanding newspapermen I knew. We in Louisiana will miss him, I know the Shreveport Times and the entire profession will miss him."

C. P. Liter, general manager of the Baton Rouge Morning Advocate - State Times, also sent regrets.

"Another old timer has left the field of Louisiana Journalism" said Liter. "I have known Mr. Hazen for 35 years, working both with him and competitively. I have found that he is one of the finest newspapermen and one of the men who will be missed in our profession."

Ken Davis, manager of the New Orleans Bureau of Associated Press said,

"Charles Hazen represented the highest type of newspaperman — sincere, talented and devoted to his chosen job of informing his fellow citizens. Years of experence deepened his sensitivity to people and their problems and his unfailing courtesy and understanding. His death is a personal as well as a professional loss."

"Mr. Hazen was a man of the most unquestioned integrity I have ever known in the newspaper business. He and I often disagreed on issues but never questioned one another's honesty and integrity. We need more men like him in the business."

Newspaper leaders from north Louisiana also sent messages of condolence.

Douglas Attaway, president and publisher of the Shreveport Journal, said, "I knew Mr. Hazen for a long time and I certainly respected him. He was a very personal friend of mine. I have a high respect for his ability."

Richard Hale, general manager of the News-Star—World in Monroe, messaged—

"I have known Mr. Hazen for easily 30 years. He was one of the best editors I have ever known."

Cuban Plane Guard Slain, 3 Wounded

ficial wound in the back of his head. Both were treated at Monroe General Hospital and released to U.S. officials.

The boy, who was shot through both thighs, was Argelio Hernandez of Havana. He and his parents planned to return to Havana Saturday night.

The body of the military guard, Castula Acosta, was being sent to Havana aboard the same plane. Some sources said Acosta was killed by his own riot gun, and a witness said the body was "full of holes."

Cuban authorities said another plane would be sent with a crew to take back the ill-fated airliner, which was undamaged except for bullet holes in the pilot's compartment.

Edward Ahrens, district director of the U.S. Immigration Service at Miami, said the plane was Flight 905 and in addition to the 34 passengers had a pilot, copilot, stewardess and the guard, listed as an extra crewman.

Ahrens said the pilot related that the plane was airborne at 7:25 a.m. and 5 or 10 minutes later the copilot jumped from his seat, grabbed the guard and shoved a gun into the pilot's back.

The pilot said he was told to swing around and fly to Key West and that he replied, "You think I'm crazy?"

The remark touched off the shooting and after he was wounded the pilot headed for Key West, he related.

Ahrens said that during the shooting the guard was killed.

"Only nine persons apparently were involved," Ahrens declared, "and the 26 others want to go back to Cuba. Two others not involved are happy to have landed in the United States and are asking permission to stay."

Ahrens declined to say if firearms were aboard but conceded that "a number of shots were fired." A Cuban doctor aboard gave medical aid to the wounded.

Ronnie Smith, 12, clung to a tree until the water subsided.

Missing was Dorothy Marburger of Dime Box, Tex., who was in the Blasig car. The Blasig's son, Charles, was rescued from a tree and was in a Giddings hospital suffering from shock. He was Miss Marburger's fiance.

The Smith boy and Blasig were both suffering from shock and were unable to give details.

Mrs. McJenkins and Mrs. Beckwith were trapped in their automobile at a normally dry creek crossing one mile west of Austin after a downpour dropped approximately seven inches of rain in the area.

Police said an eyewitness told them the two women, despite warnings, tried to wade through the torrent from their car and were swept away.

The rain slackened at dawn and skies cleared at mid-morning. Additional heavy rains were forecast for the area Saturday night.

Davis Keeps Silence On Session Aims

sion, said he believes interposition will be the main theme.

"This is the showdown," he said, "on whether the state or the federal government runs our schools."

The session convenes at noon Friday. By law it could be extended to 30 days. Some administration lawmakers said it may meet five straight days, right through the Nov. 8 election, to get a package program going. Normally, it takes only five days to enact rush legislation.

There are new rumors in some sections of the state, according to informants, that attempts may be made to force a recess until after the presidential election.

The governor's call used only general terms, mentioning education, schools, preservation of states' rights and protection of public health, peace and good order. No bills have been made public.

The federal courts issued orders against Davis and Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion interfering in New Orleans schools, after Davis tried without success in August to seize the schools.

At that time, the courts knocked out seven of the new school segregation efforts the Legislature had just adopted.

Supt. James F. Redmond of New Orleans schools, preparing for the Nov. 14 deadline, has recommended five Negro girls be admitted to white schools. Originally, there were 137 Negro applicants for white classes.

In an editorial Saturday, the New Orleans States-Item said the public "is entitled to prompt, full information about state government, and accordingly we suggest that the governor clarify the purpose of his call in more specific language. . . .

"We hope assurance will come soon that the chances of the schools being kept open — in Orleans Parish and throughout the state — will not be diminished by the Nov. 4 special session of the Legislature."

In Homer, former Sen. William Rainach, a States' Rights presidential elector and longtime segregation voice, said interposition can work.

"Interposition could be an expression by the Legislature," he said, "which the governor would have to execute as the state's chief administrative officer. Or interposition could be exercised by the governor without express action by the Legislature."

To make interposition work, Rainach said, "it is presumed that the governor will have to ignore any federal court injunctions.

"Then would come the States' Rights showdown on power, whether the federal courts would evade the showdown or order the arrest and jailing of the governor. It would have to ba political decision based on the risks involved.

"All federal court decisions in the area of civil and states' rights have been political in nature," Rainach said.

Rainach said interposition worked in Mansfield, Texas, when former Gov. Allan Shivers sent two Texas Rangers to escort Negro children from a white school.

rel with his wife, "I was hot headed. I blew up. I don't remember what it was about."

De Brozzo said Dodson and his wife had quarreled Sept. 25 and she left Dodson and the baby, then 3 months old, and went to Chicago.

The following day, De Brozzo said, Dodson wheeled the baby to a store to buy milk. Anna Stratton, 40, a widow with two children, was leaving the store and stoppd to admire the baby. Dodson asked her if she "wanted" the child and she said she did.

"Okay, you can have her," Dodson was quoted as saying.

Mrs. Stratton said Dodson visited the baby several times and on last Sunday night wanted to take it back but she refused because the baby was running a temperature and was teething.

Mrs. Dodson returned Oct. 1 and wanted to know where the baby was, but, she said, her husband wouldn't tell her. Police learned of the case Friday from a friend of the Dodsons. Dodson was questioned and told where he had left the baby.

populations between 1,000 and 13,000 under civil service.

At present civil service takes in firemen in municipalities of 13,000 to 250,000 population. New Orleans operates under a separate act.

In addition, there is opposition to this amendment on grounds that civil service provisions should not be placed in the Constitution.

In short, this proposal would require cities or parishes to notify the state or city civil service commission six months in advance before placing an unclassified employe under civil service.

The purpose of this amendment is to prevent a newly defeated public official from placing his unclassified employes under civil service prior to leaving office.

came here with the team included John Mettleship, sports editor of the San Luis Obisp Telegram Tribune. It was not known if he was aboard the plane.

Crowds of curious flocked to the scene, blocking roads to the airport and snarling police and rescue traffic. Authorities appealed to the public to stay out of the area, where traffic was painfully slow because of the fog.

The pilot of the ill-fated plane was identified as Capt. Bob Flemming of Brooklyn, N.Y., with Capt. Don Chescher of Oakland, Calif., as the co-pilot. The stewardess was Miss Dannie Miller of Seattle, Wash.

Rival Chairmen Both See Win

WASHINGTON (AP)—National chairman of the Republican and Democratic parties climbed boldly out on prediction limbs Saturday. Each flatly said his side will win the presidential election.

It was a face-to-face exchange on television, even though the Democratic Chairman, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, was in San Antonio, Tex., while the Republican chief, Sen. Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky, was in an NBC studio here.

Jackson first laid it on the line for the Kennedy-Johnson ticket like this: "We are well ahead, and we're going to win."

Morton lost no time in entering this dissent in behalf of his Nixon-Lodge team: "I disagree. We're going to win."

Morton promised some exciting campaigning in the next 10 days and staked a claim to a surprise vote in the South for Richard M. Nixon, the Republican nominee.

"I don't believe that this administration has been foresighted," he said. "I don't believe that they have understood the kind of revolutionary world in which we live."

There was a kind of parallel to the Saturday campaigning by Kennedy and Nixon. Both Philadelphia and Chicago are normally Democratic and are ringed by suburbs, likely to vote Republican.

Kennedy was trying to blunt this trend around Philadelphia; Nixon was trying to spur it on around the edges of Chicago.

"He was a very close friend of mine and in my opinion was one of the outstanding newspapermen I knew. We in Louisiana will miss him, I know the Shreveport Times and the entire profession will miss him."

C. P. Liter, general manager of the Baton Rouge Morning Advocate - State Times, also sent regrets.

"Another old timer has left the field of Louisiana Journalism" said Liter. "I have known Mr. Hazen for 35 years, working both with him and competitively. I have found that he is one of the finest newspapermen and one of the men who will be missed in our profession."

Ken Davis, manager of the New Orleans Bureau of Associated Press said,

"Charles Hazen represented the highest type of newspaperman — sincere, talented and devoted to his chosen job of informing his fellow citizens. Years of experence deepened his sensitivity to people and their problems and his unfailing courtesy and understanding. His death is a personal as well as a professional loss."

"Mr. Hazen was a man of the most unquestioned integrity I have ever known in the newspaper business. He and I often disagreed on issues but never questioned one another's honesty and integrity. We need more men like him in the business."

Newspaper leaders from north Louisiana also sent messages of condolence.

Douglas Attaway, president and publisher of the Shreveport Journal, said, "I knew Mr. Hazen for a long time and I certainly respected him. He was a very personal friend of mine. I have a high respect for his ability."

Richard Hale, general manager of the News-Star—World in Monroe, messaged—

"I have known Mr. Hazen for easily 30 years. He was one of the best editors I have ever known."

Cloudbursts Hit In Texas, 8 Die

Ronnie Smith, 12, clung to a tree until the water subsided.

Missing was Dorothy Marburger of Dime Box, Tex., who was in the Blasig car. The Blasig's son, Charles, was rescued from a tree and was in a Giddings hospital suffering from shock. He was Miss Marburger's fiance.

The Smith boy and Blasig were both suffering from shock and were unable to give details.

Mrs. McJenkins and Mrs. Beckwith were trapped in their automobile at a normally dry creek crossing one mile west of Austin after a downpour dropped approximately seven inches of rain in the area.

Police said an eyewitness told them the two women, despite warnings, tried to wade through the torrent from their car and were swept away.

The rain slackened at dawn and skies cleared at mid-morning. Additional heavy rains were forecast for the area Saturday night.

Cuban Plane Guard Slain, 3 Wounded

ficial wound in the back of his head. Both were treated at Monroe General Hospital and released to U.S. officials.

The boy, who was shot through both thighs, was Argelio Hernandez of Havana. He and his parents planned to return to Havana Saturday night.

The body of the military guard, Castula Acosta, was being sent to Havana aboard the same plane. Some sources said Acosta was killed by his own riot gun, and a witness said the body was "full of holes."

Cuban authorities said another plane would be sent with a crew to take back the ill-fated airliner, which was undamaged except for bullet holes in the pilot's compartment.

Edward Ahrens, district director of the U.S. Immigration Service at Miami, said the plane was Flight 905 and in addition to the 34 passengers had a pilot, copilot, stewardess and the guard, listed as an extra crewman.

Ahrens said the pilot related that the plane was airborne at 7:25 a.m. and 5 or 10 minutes later the copilot jumped from his seat, grabbed the guard and shoved a gun into the pilot's back.

The pilot said he was told to swing around and fly to Key West and that he replied, "You think I'm crazy?"

The remark touched off the shooting and after he was wounded the pilot headed for Key West, he related.

Ahrens said that during the shooting the guard was killed.

"Only nine persons apparently were involved," Ahrens declared, "and the 26 others want to go back to Cuba. Two others not involved are happy to have landed in the United States and are asking permission to stay."

Ahrens declined to say if firearms were aboard but conceded that "a number of shots were fired." A Cuban doctor aboard gave medical aid to the wounded.

Davis Keeps Silence On Session Aims

sion, said he believes interposition will be the main theme.

"This is the showdown," he said, "on whether the state or the federal government runs our schools."

The session convenes at noon Friday. By law it could be extended to 30 days. Some administration lawmakers said it may meet five straight days, right through the Nov. 8 election, to get a package program going. Normally, it takes only five days to enact rush legislation.

There are new rumors in some sections of the state, according to informants, that attempts may be made to force a recess until after the presidential election.

The governor's call used only general terms, mentioning education, schools, preservation of states' rights and protection of public health, peace and good order. No bills have been made public.

The federal courts issued orders against Davis and Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion interfering in New Orleans schools, after Davis tried without success in August to seize the schools.

At that time, the courts knocked out seven of the new school segregation efforts the Legislature had just adopted.

Supt. James F. Redmond of New Orleans schools, preparing for the Nov. 14 deadline, has recommended five Negro girls be admitted to white schools. Originally, there were 137 Negro applicants for white classes.

In an editorial Saturday, the New Orleans States-Item said the public "is entitled to prompt, full information about state government, and accordingly we suggest that the governor clarify the purpose of his call in more specific language. . . .

"We hope assurance will come soon that the chances of the schools being kept open — in Orleans Parish and throughout the state — will not be diminished by the Nov. 4 special session of the Legislature."

In Homer, former Sen. William Rainach, a States' Rights presidential elector and longtime segregation voice, said interposition can work.

"Interposition could be an expression by the Legislature," he said, "which the governor would have to execute as the state's chief administrative officer. Or interposition could be exercised by the governor without express action by the Legislature."

To make interposition work, Rainach said, "it is presumed that the governor will have to ignore any federal court injunctions.

"Then would come the States' Rights showdown on power, whether the federal courts would evade the showdown or order the arrest and jailing of the governor. It would have to ba political decision based on the risks involved.

"All federal court decisions in the area of civil and states' rights have been political in nature," Rainach said.

Rainach said interposition worked in Mansfield, Texas, when former Gov. Allan Shivers sent two Texas Rangers to escort Negro children from a white school.

Father Admits Giving Stranger Baby Daughter

rel with his wife, "I was hot headed. I blew up. I don't remember what it was about."

De Brozzo said Dodson and his wife had quarreled Sept. 25 and she left Dodson and the baby, then 3 months old, and went to Chicago.

The following day, De Brozzo said, Dodson wheeled the baby to a store to buy milk. Anna Stratton, 40, a widow with two children, was leaving the store and stoppd to admire the baby. Dodson asked her if she "wanted" the child and she said she did.

"Okay, you can have her," Dodson was quoted as saying.

Mrs. Stratton said Dodson visited the baby several times and on last Sunday night wanted to take it back but she refused because the baby was running a temperature and was teething.

Mrs. Dodson returned Oct. 1 and wanted to know where the baby was, but, she said, her husband wouldn't tell her. Police learned of the case Friday from a friend of the Dodsons. Dodson was questioned and told where he had left the baby.

populations between 1,000 and 13,000 under civil service.

At present civil service takes in firemen in municipalities of 13,000 to 250,000 population. New Orleans operates under a separate act.

In addition, there is opposition to this amendment on grounds that civil service provisions should not be placed in the Constitution.

In short, this proposal would require cities or parishes to notify the state or city civil service commission six months in advance before placing an unclassified employe under civil service.

The purpose of this amendment is to prevent a newly defeated public official from placing his unclassified employes under civil service prior to leaving office.

came here with the team included John Mettleship, sports editor of the San Luis Obisp Telegram Tribune. It was not known if he was aboard the plane.

Crowds of curious flocked to the scene, blocking roads to the airport and snarling police and rescue traffic. Authorities appealed to the public to stay out of the area, where traffic was painfully slow because of the fog.

The pilot of the ill-fated plane was identified as Capt. Bob Flemming of Brooklyn, N.Y., with Capt. Don Chescher of Oakland, Calif., as the co-pilot. The stewardess was Miss Dannie Miller of Seattle, Wash.

Rival Chairmen Both See Win

WASHINGTON (AP)—National chairman of the Republican and Democratic parties climbed boldly out on prediction limbs Saturday. Each flatly said his side will win the presidential election.

It was a face-to-face exchange on television, even though the Democratic Chairman, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, was in San Antonio, Tex., while the Republican chief, Sen. Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky, was in an NBC studio here.

Jackson first laid it on the line for the Kennedy-Johnson ticket like this: "We are well ahead, and we're going to win."

Morton lost no time in entering this dissent in behalf of his Nixon-Lodge team: "I disagree. We're going to win."

Morton promised some exciting campaigning in the next 10 days and staked a claim to a surprise vote in the South for Richard M. Nixon, the Republican nominee.

"I don't believe that this administration has been foresighted," he said. "I don't believe that they have understood the kind of revolutionary world in which we live."

There was a kind of parallel to the Saturday campaigning by Kennedy and Nixon. Both Philadelphia and Chicago are normally Democratic and are ringed by suburbs, likely to vote Republican.

Kennedy was trying to blunt this trend around Philadelphia; Nixon was trying to spur it on around the edges of Chicago.

FOR BRITISH JUVENILES

Criminal Liability Age Raise Is Urged

LONDON (AP)—A government committee investigating juvenile delinquency recommends that the age of criminal liability in Britain be raised from 8 to 12.

The committee also urged more humane treatment of juveniles under the law and proposed measures which would recognize a greater degree of partental responsibility for the acts of young persons.

It said juvenile courts should be empowered to deal with all young offenders up to the age of 12 and encouraged to show greater regard for the welfare of the child and his future.

The report of the 13-member committee took four years to prepare. It is in tune with current British moves toward liberalizing the penal code. It contains 125 detailed recommendations which will come before the House of Commons.

"People who are disturbed at the thought of a child who is over 8, but still a child, being labelled for life as a thief say that the age should be raised," the committee said.

The recommendation is not intended to show greater leniency to children who disobey the law, but to allow juvenile courts to treat them in the context of their families and home situations without the rigidity of the criminal code.

The committee proposed that parents be summoned into juvenile Court with their children to insure their cooperation in dealing with young offenders said to be "in need of protection and discipline."

"It must not be thought that this would be a charge against the parents," the committee added.

"As parties, the parents would be joined to the action partly for their own benefit, for they would be entitled to address the court and call evidence."

Enterprise Sets Hymn Sing Meet

ENTERPRISE (Special) —"The Glorious Christ" will be the theme of the Ouachita Baptist Associational Hymn Sing to be conducted Sunday, Oct. 30, at 2:30 p.m., with the New Ouachita Baptist church, Enterprise, according to district missionary Walter G. Barnard.

The Rev. Harold Davis, associational music director, will be in charge of the program.

The musical numbers will present Christ as to His Glorious Name, His Glorious Birth, His Glorious Ministry, His Glorious Death, His Glorious Ressurection, His Glorious Return and His Glorious Eternity.

There will be congregational and choir singing. Special choir numbers will be presented by the choirs of the following churches: Evangeline, Pleasant Grove, New Ouachita, Jonesville First, Harrisonburg First and Sicily Island First.

Round-A-Bout

With Ezra Adams, State Editor

Today we inaugurate this new Sunday commentary column for the northeast Louisiana area.

Comments, views and news of, about and by area folks are welcome.

We hear a new port is in operation down on the Ouachita near Columbia, with barges transporting oil that's trucked in from a Winn Parish field. And we expect to have a full report on this soon.

In Concordia Parish, folks are talking about getting a new hospital built near the highway between Ferriday and Vidalia.

Mention of this reminds us that construction on the hospital for West Monroe is underway.

Most cotton farmers of the area are about finished gathering, but over in the delta section near St. Joseph and Newellton, picking of a bumper crop is reported just getting into full swing.

Some there are reporting per acre yields of 2½ bales.

An all - metal, 37-foot boat built in spare time in a year and a half by James Gregory and his dad, Lee Grogory, both of Oak Grove, is reported now plying the Ouachita.

Lee Gregory told us a couple of days ago that the boat was sold to a Mr. Pardue of Lake Village, Ark. who launched it in the Mississippi first, took it to Greenville, Miss. to equip it with a second engine, then brought it back to Monroe on the Ouachita, where it is now pushing barges.

George Foster, 81, of Pollock, for many years a member of the state Wildlife and Fisheries Commission until earlier this year, has returned home from New Orleans where he underwent treatment in a hospital for several days.

Known all around the state, he is owner of Pollock businesses and of a large Baton Rouge insurance company, in which he is still semi-active.

It seems that the good folks of Tullos are trying to stop such things as Sunday beer sales and other "uninhibited" activities, to "clean up" their town.

The new Union Parish court house is on its way up, and Dennis Long, president of the parish police jury, says work is on schedule.

For the first time in many years, the annual northeast Louisiana livestock show in Delhi may be in jeopardy.

It is usually held in February or March, but some are concerned now that Gov. Jimmie Davis will not approve the usual funds for premiums at the show.

Of course there's time yet, and the show that's widely heralded by livestock men and carnival-goers may still go on.

A big crop of pecans in the area has started to drop to the ground, and those with some for sale should get a good price.

The price is good because although there is a bumper crop this year, last year's production was low, and buyers from outside this country are reported making contacts in northeast Louisiana for purchases.

Joseph Atlas, East Carroll Negro whose complaint touched off an FBI investigation recently to see if Sheriff J. W. (Red) Gilbert was preventing Atlas from ginning his cotton in the parish, tells us he really is having trouble getting his cotton ginner.

But he declined to say whether he has charged that the sheriff is keeping him from having his cotton ginned in the parish.

Atlas was one of two East Carroll Negroes who this summer testified in New Orleans before the Civil Rights Commission, looking into alleged voter registration discrimination.

AT GUANTANAMO BASE

Marines Land To Remind Castro Of U.S. Might

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whatever its real intention, the United States made a show of force in the classis pattern Saturday when the Navy sent 1,450 Marines to its Guantanamo base in Cuba for the weekend.

At a time when Cuba is becoming increasingly a Soviet pawn in East-West power politics, the Marine landing—even though officially not related to the Cuban tensions—is expected in diplomatic and military quarters here to have these results:

1. To demonstrate to the Communist - oriented government of Prime Minister Fidel Castro that the United States intends to make normal use of its base rights at Guantanamo despite Cuban attacks on the 57-year-old treaty establishing those rights.

2. To remind Castro that the United States has in readiness forces to deal with any emergency which Castro might decide to create.

3. To show, by withdrawing the Marines on Monday as promised, that the United States is not interested in building up at Guantanamo the military strength which might be considered useful if this country were planning aggressive action against Cuba.

The Eisenhower administration has determined to defend Guantanamo should Castro's military forces attack it. The decision to fight if attacked was announced by the chief of naval operations, Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, earlier this month. Actually top officials do not expect an attack and do not see a military conflict between Cuba and the United States as the true danger in the crisis.

Nor is direct Soviet intervention, as once threatened by Soviet Premier Khrushchev, considered a real danger. In fact, State Department officials are intrigued by some evidence that Khrushchev wants to place a distinct limit on his commitment to Castro.

Interesting is the way in which Moscow handled Saturday a Khrushchev interview a week ago with a group of Cuban newspapermen. A report published Friday in the semiofficial Havana newspaper Revolucion put the emphasis on Khrushchev's statement that Soviet missiles were ready to assist Cuba if needed, though it would be better to avoid using rockets.

The Soviet news agency Tass, by contrast, quoted Khrushchev as saying that "Promised rocket aid to Cuba should be considered symbolic." Tass also reported Khrushchev would prefer his statement "regarding aid to Cuba in case of armed aggression against that country" to be considered symbolic.

This change of tone from Khrushchev's threats of last summer struck diplomats here as another indication of a possible change of tactics by the Soviet leader.

Having campaigned with bitter words against President Eisenhower since the U2 spy plane incident last May, Khrushchev may now be shifting course toward a new target—that is, a summit conference with the next American president sometime next year.

There has been a general expectation that Khrushchev would at some point begin to try to create pressures calculated to lead to a 1961 summit conference where he might win concessions from the West.

While strongly backing Castro and pouring arms into his country, Khrushchev may well be determined that his Cuban policy should not wreck his over-all strategy. If that is a correct Washington assumption, Castro must be expected to feel the check of the Soviet reins from time to time.

It is widely believed in the State Department that Khrushchev is well aware that Cuba is in the zone of primary U. S. security interest—just as U. S. officials recognized four years ago that Hungary was in the region of major concern for Soviet security.

This fact would serve as another limitation on Khrushchev's commitment to Castro in engaging in any military ventures—such as an attack on Guantanamo—which might embarrass, if not actually involve, the Soviet Union.

Khrushchev evidently hopes that Cuba will be able to serve as a base for subversive operations against other American countries without interfering with Khrushchev's larger schemes for expanding Communist influence.

The United States thus does not so much fear a direct military clash with Castro forces as it fears expanding subversive operations against other American nations. The major U.S. defensive steps in the next few weeks—like Friday's call for action by a hemispheric good offices committee—will be directed toward rallying other countries to joint economic and political defensive efforts.

Legislators Backing Unpledged Electors

Mississippi's unpledged electors headquarters Saturday claimed the support of a majority of both houses of the state Legislature.

State Sen. John McLaurin of Brandon, state campaign chairman, said most legislators "favor giving Mississippi a bargaining voice rather than just a ring in the nose.

He announced that chairmen of 23 of the 48 house committees, plus "a big majority" of the other representatives and 27 of the 49 senators are backing the unpledged bolt from the Democrats.

Meanwhile, Gov. Ross Barnett issued a release giving an economic twist to his campaign for the unpledged group.

He said his group's victory against "the socialistic trends" of both Democrats and Republicans Nov. 8 would "prove to the industrialists of this nation that Mississippi is the last home of free enterprise."

Barnett said, "the platforms of both the national Republican and national Democratic parties are pledged to give big labor bosses more power."

"The trend of many of the states toward socialism and the welfare state places constantly rising tax burdens on invested capital and industry," he said.

In other political developments, Mississippi Democrats announced that Sen. John McLellan, D-Ark., would speak over a statewide television network Wednesday for the Kennedy-Johnson ticket.

And Gulfport Mayor Billy Meadows retorted to Republican charges that he tried to sabotage the Thursday speech of Rep. Walter Judd, R-Minn., in the Gulf Coast city.

McClellan, chairman of the Senate rackets committee, will be interviewed by a panel of newsmen on a half - hour program starting at 7:30 p.m. (CST), said state Democratic publicity director Phil Mullen.

When Judd spoke at Gulfport's east beach community house, state GOP Chairman Wirt Yerger Jr. complained that Meadows would not rope off downtown streets by the city hall for a better location.

"We could not block those streets off in the middle of the day for anyone," said Meadows. "Every governor in Mississippi for the past 16 years and senators (James) Eastland and (John) Stennis have spoken at the community house."

Fifth Debate Appears Out, Charges Fly

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Negotiations for another nationwide TV debate between the presidential candidates collapsed Saturday. Vice President Richard M. Nixon demanded that rival John F. Kennedy apologize for "bad faith" charges, and the senator bluntly refused to do so.

Each candidate accused the other of being unwilling to go before the television public for a fifth exchange on campaign issues.

Fred Scribner Jr., Nixon's debate negotiator, called an official halt to the talks in a telegram to J. Leonard Reinsch, his counterpart in the Kennedy organization. "There can be no further negotiations unless Sen. Kennedy apologizes for the charge of bad faith which has been made and withdraws his ill-advised ultimatum," he said.

Kennedy, who had demanded that Nixon give him a final answer on debate arrangements by Saturday night, gave this reply from the campaign platform in Pennsylvania:

The senator flatly denied the Nixon charge that he and his aides had violated agreements on the debate negotiations three times within the past two days.

The Democratic nominee insisted he had met all Nixon's conditions, including a restriction limiting the subject to Cuba, and having the vice presidential nominees join in the exchange.

Scribner said Kennedy himself committed the third violation Friday when he wired the vice president "demanding a final answer" on debate arrangements.

The earlier breaches of agreement, he said, came when a Kennedy aide released details of the negotiations and when Reinsch wired the radio and television networks accusing Nixon of bad faith.

"There can be no further negotiations unless Sen. Kennedy apologizes for the charge of bad faith which has been made and withdraws his ill-advised ultimatum," Scribner said in his message to Reinsch.

Five Charged With Assault In Shootings

MEMPHIS (AP) — Five young white men have been arrested and charged with assault to murder in the shotgun shootings of two Negroes that for 21 months had remained a mystery.

The break came when homicide inspectors questioned a youth in an entirely different case. They did not say how he provided the clue.

The shootings occurred Feb. 2, 1959. The victims said they were fired upon from a moving automobile. Another Negro man reported he also was fired upon but was not hit. They said the attacks were unprovoked.

Those arrested were S. Edward Shea, 21, an unemplyed radio announcer; Larry E. Coleman, 22, a mechanic; Robert Trotter, 23, a salesman; Byron Frank Hindman, 18, a high school student, and Theodore L. Bruehl, 19, son of a deputy sheriff.

Inspector W. W. Wilkinson said Bruehl admitted he was the one who fired the shotgun.

Stores Close On Sitters In Tennessee

JACKSON Tenn (UPI) — One store closed voluntarily and police asked a second store to shut its doors Saturday because of the "danger of something happening" as Negro student demonstrators showed up in the downtown section here for the third day in a row.

Negro demonstrators were subjected to name-calling by whites who tossed eggs and tulip bulbs taken from store racks.

The F. W. Woolworth Co., closed its doors after Negroes appeared at the lunch counter. Whites had surged forward "up to 20-deep," according to Gene Williams, news director of WDXI-TV here.

"Whites tossed eggs and tulip bulbs," Williams said.

"The situation has been one of tenseness throughout the morning even before the stores opened."

Negro sit-in demonstrators appeared on the scene about 9 a.m. (cst), and shortly thereafter assistant Police Chief Raymond Gaba prevailed on the McMcllellan store manager to shut down, said Williams.

The newsman said that about 600 to 700 whites were concentrated in a two-block area where the stores are located.

With the stores closed, three Negroes took up picketing outside each store.

The students were said to be from the Negro Lane College here. The city of 35,000 also houses two white church supported colleges, Union and Lambuth.

Police seemed to have the situation under control, where in past days whites had bodily ejected Negro demonstrators from the two stores.

State Architects Take Honors At Regional Meeting

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Louisiana architects received three of four honor awards given at the 10th Gulf States Regional Conference, AIA, held in Hot Springs, Ark., recently, according to Ralph Mott, Fort Smith, chairman of the Honor Awards Committee.

Entries from the 14 chapters of the American Institute of Architects in Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, Tennessee and Louisiana were judged.

Curtis & Davis, Associated Architects and Engineers, Inc., of New Orleans were awarded an honor award for the Tulane University Student Center.

An award of merit was made to Lawrence, Saunders and Calongne and to Louis Goldstein of the New Orleans Chapter of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Lemann in New Orleans.

Special comment was made on the James R. Lamantia, Jr., residence in New Orleans to the firm of Burk, LeBreton and Lamantia, Architects and Engineers, Inc., of New Orleans.

The office of Walk C. Jones, Jr., of the Memphis Chapter was awarded the fourth honor award.

Cubans Seize Possessions Of U.S. Citizens

HAVANA (AP) — Cuban army officers seized the personal possesions of former American executives of the Texas Oil Co., refinery and announced they are being passed out to peasants in the Sierra Maaestra area, reports from Santiago said Saturdy.

The belongings, packed and standing in a wharehouse awaiting shipment, included household furnishings, the reports added.

Furniture belonging to several hundred American families which left Cuba when the government seized business firms here has been held in warehouses awaiting Cuban clearance for shipment to the United States.

The Santiago report did not indicate the reason why officials of Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime grabbed the warehouse goods. Inquiries at Havana warehouses disclosed no similar siezures here.

Officials at the U.S. Embassy said that, if the reports from Santiago are true, they probably will protest formally to the Cuban Foreign Ministry.

AT GUANTANAMO BASE

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whatever its real intention, the United States made a show of force in the classis pattern Saturday when the Navy sent 1,450 Marines to its Guantanamo base in Cuba for the weekend.

At a time when Cuba is becoming increasingly a Soviet pawn in East-West power politics, the Marine landing—even though officially not related to the Cuban tensions—is expected in diplomatic and military quarters here to have these results:

1. To demonstrate to the Communist - oriented government of Prime Minister Fidel Castro that the United States intends to make normal use of its base rights at Guantanamo despite Cuban attacks on the 57-year-old treaty establishing those rights.

2. To remind Castro that the United States has in readiness forces to deal with any emergency which Castro might decide to create.

3. To show, by withdrawing the Marines on Monday as promised, that the United States is not interested in building up at Guantanamo the military strength which might be considered useful if this country were planning aggressive action against Cuba.

The Eisenhower administration has determined to defend Guantanamo should Castro's military forces attack it. The decision to fight if attacked was announced by the chief of naval operations, Adm. AT LOUISIANA COLLEGE

Farmerville Co-ed Homecoming Queen

The senior mathematics major will be honored during the school's attractive Homecoming Day program set for Saturday, Nov. 5.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Allen of Farmerville, Linda Kay was recently selected by Wildcat football players from eight "beauties" chosen by the L. C. student body.

The honor is nothing new to her as she served as L. C. May Queen last spring. She is also a member of the Booster Club and the Cadmian Society at L. C. In 1958, she received the mathematics award for having the highest average in the freshman class.

Miss Allen will be crowned Saturday night at 7:50 just prior to the kick-off of the Louisiana College-East Central Oklahoma football game at Pineville's Alumni Stadium. Dr. G. Earl Guinn, L. C. president, will again "do the honors." Mrs. Guinn will also present the Queen with a bouquet of red roses.

Peggy Sue Koch, auburn haired junior from Eunice, is the L. C. Homecoming Maid of Honor. Recently elected to the 'Cat cheerleading staff, she is also a member of the Booster Club and Cadmian Society. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Koch of Eunice.

The project was again sponsored by the Booster Club, L. C. women's service organization. Members of the Wildcat football team selected the Queen and Maid from the eight beauties who had previously been picked by the student body.

Seven of the beauties will be escorted onto the gridiron that night by their fathers as follows: Queen Linda Kay by A. R. Allen of Farmerville, Maid Peggy Sue by H. E. Koch of Eunice, Miss Kees by W. E. Kees of Pineville, Miss Aldredge by H. K. Aldredge of St. Francisville. Miss Wade by R. K. Wade of Farmerville, Miss Holloway by Lloyd L. Holloway, and Miss Jackson by H. G. Jackson of Eunice. Miss Foyil will be escorted by Clyde Tyler, uncle, from Oakdale.

"Come Back and Look Ahead" will be the theme of this annual Louisiana College celebration, which is expected to draw several hundred old grads to the Pineville campus.

Other features of the extravaganza will be the annual parade, which will start at 2:45 p.m. instead of the usual 10 a.m. A testimonial dinner honoring Col. Henry E. Walden, retiring long-time athletic director-coach-health and physical education department chairman at 5 p.m. in the Student Center, supper in L. C.'s new cafeteria at 6 p.m. and the football game at 8 p.m.

Registration for the day will begin at 10 a.m. in the Student Center, which will be general headquarters for the event.

The Alumni Association's executive committee will enjoy a 12 noon luncheon also in the modernized L. C. cafeteria.

TALLULAH (Special) — The annual Halloween carnival, sponsored by the Tallulah Parent Teachers Association will be held on the patio of the Tallulah elementary school on Monday, October 31 at 6:30 p.m.

Highlight of the event will be the costume contest in four categories, funniest, scariest, prettiest and most original, with prizes for each.

Typical Halloween games and stunts will take place in booths around the patio. In other booths refreshments of all kinds will be available as well as rides —hay-rides and merry-go-round, each for the price of five cents. Proceeds of the carnival will be used by teachers in their individual rooms.

LSU Prepares For Homecoming November 5

BATON ROUGE (Special) — The campus of Louisiana State University is the scene of heightened activity as faculty and students are making final preparations for the University's three-day Homecoming celebration next weekend.

Several innovations are planned to make this year's Homecoming even more entertaining to the thousands of LSU alumni expected to attend. Homecoming activities will begin Thursday (Nov. 3) and will end in ceremonies at the LSU-South Carolina football game, when the Homecoming Queen and her court will be presented:

Finalists for Homecoming Queen are: Donna Dantagnan and Zizi Ogden of New Orleans and Sue Simmons of Vivian. They were selected from 30 candidates chosen by members of the Tiger football team. The student body elected the queen early last week, but her name will not be revealed until Friday evening, Nov. 4, at a student variety show.

The student show will also present some of the top student talent on the LSU campus. There will be six variety acts and six skits, all centered around the Homecoming "Tiger Tantrums" theme. Jodie Smith of Baton Rouge is the student director of the show.

A $1,000 fireworks display, to be handled by professional pyrotechnicians, will highlight a pep rally after the student show. Other activities Friday evening include an all-student dance and decoration parties. Les Nicholson of Memphis, Tenn. and Ellis Cooper, Jr. of Springhill, are the student chairmen in charge of the pep rally and the dance.

Saturday's events include departmental open houses, tours of the campus, a military review and a reunion luncheon for the Class of 1920.

An open house honoring all alumni will be held from 2:30 to 5 p.m. at the Alumni House.

Fail To Find Revised Will Of Earl Long

WINNFIELD (Special) — An alleged missing will of the late Gov. Earl Long has not turned up in a court-ordered search.

The secretary of the Police Jury, ordered to make the search, has asked to be relieved of the job.

Two sisters and a great-nephew filed suit claiming the ex-governor had drawn up a will during the last 12 months of his life, and District Judge Harwell Allen ordred the search five days after Long's funeral.

The sisters, Mrs. Olive Cooper of Natchitoches and Mrs. Clara Knott of Many, and the nephew, John Ducourneau of Natchitoches, said they believed Long had revised his will since his estrangement from his wife two summers ago.

AT LOUISIANA COLLEGE

Farmerville Co-ed Homecoming Queen

The senior mathematics major will be honored during the school's attractive Homecoming Day program set for Saturday, Nov. 5.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Allen of Farmerville, Linda Kay was recently selected by Wildcat football players from eight "beauties" chosen by the L. C. student body.

The honor is nothing new to her as she served as L. C. May Queen last spring. She is also a member of the Booster Club and the Cadmian Society at L. C. In 1958, she received the mathematics award for having the highest average in the freshman class.

Miss Allen will be crowned Saturday night at 7:50 just prior to the kick-off of the Louisiana College-East Central Oklahoma football game at Pineville's Alumni Stadium. Dr. G. Earl Guinn, L. C. president, will again "do the honors." Mrs. Guinn will also present the Queen with a bouquet of red roses.

Peggy Sue Koch, auburn haired junior from Eunice, is the L. C. Homecoming Maid of Honor. Recently elected to the 'Cat cheerleading staff, she is also a member of the Booster Club and Cadmian Society. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Koch of Eunice.

The project was again sponsored by the Booster Club, L. C. women's service organization. Members of the Wildcat football team selected the Queen and Maid from the eight beauties who had previously been picked by the student body.

Seven of the beauties will be escorted onto the gridiron that night by their fathers as follows: Queen Linda Kay by A. R. Allen of Farmerville, Maid Peggy Sue by H. E. Koch of Eunice, Miss Kees by W. E. Kees of Pineville, Miss Aldredge by H. K. Aldredge of St. Francisville. Miss Wade by R. K. Wade of Farmerville, Miss Holloway by Lloyd L. Holloway, and Miss Jackson by H. G. Jackson of Eunice. Miss Foyil will be escorted by Clyde Tyler, uncle, from Oakdale.

"Come Back and Look Ahead" will be the theme of this annual Louisiana College celebration, which is expected to draw several hundred old grads to the Pineville campus.

Other features of the extravaganza will be the annual parade, which will start at 2:45 p.m. instead of the usual 10 a.m. A testimonial dinner honoring Col. Henry E. Walden, retiring long-time athletic director-coach-health and physical education department chairman at 5 p.m. in the Student Center, supper in L. C.'s new cafeteria at 6 p.m. and the football game at 8 p.m.

Registration for the day will begin at 10 a.m. in the Student Center, which will be general headquarters for the event.

The Alumni Association's executive committee will enjoy a 12 noon luncheon also in the modernized L. C. cafeteria.

W. W. Brewer, a veteran appliance sales and service manager in this area for many years, has been assigned as manager of the business.

Brewer has a background of 26 years in the appliance sales and service field.

"We are looking forward to maintaining one of the most efficient and dependable appliance sales and service operations ever established in the Monroe trade territory," Brewer said.

Finch-Tregoff Jury Still Out

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Finch murder trial jurors listened to rereading of testimony Saturday morning, then recessed and returned to their hotel for the remainder of the weekend.

Jurors interrupted their ninth day of deliberations Friday with a request to hear again the statements of Carole Tregoff. She and her lover, Dr. R. Bernard Finch, are charged with murdering the physician's wife, Barbara. Their first trial ended last March with a deadlocked jury.

Rereading of Miss Tregoff's testimony was expected to resume Monday.

Nixon Gives Aims On Conservation

CHICAGO (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon said Saturday that he believed the past decade eventually would be recognized as one in which conservation and resources development were advanced "on a scale unmatched in our history."

The Republican presidential candidate made the assertion in a position paper on natural resources, the latest of a series of such statements of his expanded views to be issued in the campaign.

Nixon said his aim as president would be "intensified conservation and management for the better use of each of our resources."

He said such programs would be essential to meet the demands "from our exploding population" at home and the demands of America's free world allies abroad.

Democrats have been sharply critical of the Eisenhower administration's resources conservation policies in such fields as water pollution, reclamation, and public power projects.

The vice president did not promise any big new federal spending programs in these fields. But he did pledge vigorous joint action with federal, local government and private participation, to assure that the nation kept abreast of its natural resources needs.

The paper said "the Eisenhower-Nixon administration now has under way the greatest water conservation program in our history" at a cost now exceeding one billion dollars a year.

Nixon claimed 49 new reclamation starts in the administration compared to 38 in the Truman years. He conceded that 24 of the Eisenhower starts were forced by Democratic-controlled congresses, but said that 20 of the Truman proects were begun with Republican congresses,

President Eisenhower has vetoed some of the water project bills sent to him. The first of his vetoes to be overridden was in this field.

On water pollution, the Republican nominee said there should be increased support for basic research and development. Eisenhower vetoed legislation to increase federal grants to cities in this field, and the vice president did not differ with the President in the statement. He said present federal incentive money was bringing a great boost in state and local spending for sewage treatment plants.

On electric power, Nixon favored the Eisenhower program of cooperation between private utilities and government agencies in development of new projects.

The Electrolux Corporation yesterday announced the formal opening of a modern appliance and service center at 1023 North Third street in Monroe.

A complete line of Electrolux products will be featured at the center. In addition, a factory trained repairman has been secured to head the service department.

The sales department will be manned by 12 experienced salesmen who will work the Monroe trade territory with the complete Electrolux line of top quality appliances.

W. W. Brewer, a veteran appliance sales and service manager in this area for many years, has been assigned as manager of the business.

Brewer has a background of 26 years in the appliance sales and service field.

"We are looking forward to maintaining one of the most efficient and dependable appliance sales and service operations ever established in the Monroe trade territory," Brewer said.

Finch-Tregoff Jury Still Out

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Finch murder trial jurors listened to rereading of testimony Saturday morning, then recessed and returned to their hotel for the remainder of the weekend.

Jurors interrupted their ninth day of deliberations Friday with a request to hear again the statements of Carole Tregoff. She and her lover, Dr. R. Bernard Finch, are charged with murdering the physician's wife, Barbara. Their first trial ended last March with a deadlocked jury.

Rereading of Miss Tregoff's testimony was expected to resume Monday.

Nixon Gives Aims On Conservation

CHICAGO (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon said Saturday that he believed the past decade eventually would be recognized as one in which conservation and resources development were advanced "on a scale unmatched in our history."

The Republican presidential candidate made the assertion in a position paper on natural resources, the latest of a series of such statements of his expanded views to be issued in the campaign.

Nixon said his aim as president would be "intensified conservation and management for the better use of each of our resources."

He said such programs would be essential to meet the demands "from our exploding population" at home and the demands of America's free world allies abroad.

Democrats have been sharply critical of the Eisenhower administration's resources conservation policies in such fields as water pollution, reclamation, and public power projects.

The vice president did not promise any big new federal spending programs in these fields. But he did pledge vigorous joint action with federal, local government and private participation, to assure that the nation kept abreast of its natural resources needs.

The paper said "the Eisenhower-Nixon administration now has under way the greatest water conservation program in our history" at a cost now exceeding one billion dollars a year.

Nixon claimed 49 new reclamation starts in the administration compared to 38 in the Truman years. He conceded that 24 of the Eisenhower starts were forced by Democratic-controlled congresses, but said that 20 of the Truman proects were begun with Republican congresses.

President Eisenhower has vetoed some of the water project bills sent to him. The first of his vetoes to be overridden was in this field.

On water pollution, the Republican nominee said there should be increased support for basic research and development. Eisenhower vetoed legislation to increase federal grants to cities in this field, and the vice president did not differ with the President in the statement. He said present federal incentive money was bringing a great boost in state and local spending for sewage treatment plants.

On electric power, Nixon favored the Eisenhower program of cooperation between private utilities and government agencies in development of new projects.

Senator Talks On Welfare Laws

HARRISONBURG (Special) — An informative talk on welfare assistance and laws recently enacted by the Louisiana state legislature was given by State Senator J. C. "Sonny" Gilbert at the October meeting of the Harrisonburg Woman's club.

Gilbert pointed out the part the state government, as well as the federal government renders to carry out the welfare program in Louisiana.

He also discussed briefly the set-up of the Louisiana Highway Department, including the state board and the local boards, and how the various projects for the construction and maintaining of state highways are carried out.

Mrs. Mamie Trunzler was in charge of the program.

The group enjoyed sandwiches and refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Mildred McGee and Mrs. Louise Webb.

Members of the club attending were Mesdames: Rachel McGee, Gene Boyd, Juanita Terry, Nettie Jo Ewing, Daisy Johnson, Iola Hendricks, Lillie Moses, Sophie Reeves, Dorothy Reeves, Edith Doughty, Lillian Aplin, Ella Cassels, Myrtle Finlay, Hazel Lanier, Mamie Trunzler, Mildred McGee and Louise Webb.

Snowman Hunt Ends In Failure

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — Sir Edmund Hillary's search for the Abominable Snowman has ended with nothing more substantial than the sighting of footprints in the snow.

Official sources said Saturday Sir Edmund has left Rolwaling Valley of the Himalayas and is heading for the nearby Thangboche Monastery area, where he and others of his scientific expedition will spend the winter in a hut at about 19,500 feet, testing the effects of altitude.

Informants said that although Hillary discovered advanced proof of the existence of the Abominable snowman, the party was disappointed at not capturing or at least photographing the legendary beast.

Monroyan Jailed On 4 Charges

A 34 - year - old Monroe man was in the city jail yesterday under a $1000 bond, charged with resisting arrest and striking a policeman who was arresting him for being drunk and disorderly.

The charges against Ira Jennings, 511 Hall St., included resisting arrest, simple battery, disturbing the peace by using loud and profane language and being drunk and disorderly, officers said.

According to reports, Monroe policemen were arresting Jennings for public drunkenness when he hit one of the officers with his fist. Jennings was apprehended at the intersection of 6th and Grammont Streets about 12:30 a.m.

Persons arrested for being drunk and disorderly generally post a $28 bond.

Fabled White Stag Is Dead

LONDON (AP)—The white stag of Epping Forest, which county folk believe only appears to herald national disasters, was found dead among the trees Saturday. It had eluded shooting and hunting parties for years.

"Its breed and origin are a complete mystery," said a forest ranger. "It fooled us to the end.

Passman Favors Tax Exemption On Implements

Congressman Otto E. Passman has publicly expressed "full endorsement and support" for proposed Constitutional Amendment No. 32, exempting farm implements from local and state property taxes, on the November 8 Louisiana general election ballot.

Responding to inquiries as to his views on the subject from numerous citizens and several organizations in the Fifth Congressional District, he said yesterday in a statement from Washington that, in his opinion, the "interests of Louisiana agriculture and, consequently, of the entire state would be best served by bringing under property tax exemption the essential equipment for operating our farms, which constitute the basic foundation of our economy and way of life."

He pointed out that these exemptions would be in the nature of an "industry inducement" plan for agriculture, and "completely in line" with other state tax exemptions which are granted to encourage economic growth.

The existing legal tax exemption on agricultural tools is now limited to a valuation up to $500, but the actual practice primarily in effect in Louisiana has been, generally, to exempt this type of equipment from taxation. However, it has been pointed out, the Louisiana Tax Commission has reminded assessors in all parishes of the "letter" of the present law and, it has been reported, directed them to fix valuations accordingly if proposed Amendment No. 32 is not passed.

This type of taxation on Louisiana's agriculture, Congressman Passman said he has concluded, would result in an "additional tax burden which many — actually, most — of our farmers would be unable to bear."

As other proponents of this amendment are doing, the Fifth District's member of Congress noted that "our farming in Louisiana is now undergoing a rapid changeover to mechanization, and this has resulted, and is resulting, in a heavy capital outlay for practically all, if not every one, of our farms. Furthermore," he said, "this mechanization is resulting in rapid depreciation of farm equipment.

"So, when all the factors are considered," Congressman Passman added, "it is clearly evident that taxing this equipment now would create and place on most of our farmers a new burden which they simply could not afford."

Daylight Time Out For Winter

NEW YORK (AP) — Standard time returned for its winter visit at 2 a.m. Sunday.

Affected were the New England states, the Middle Atlantic states, District of Columbia and some individual communities elsewhere.

Other states that use daylight saving time returned to standard time after Labor Day. Some towns in Indiana and the southeast remain on daylight time all year.

The return to standard time requires turning the clock back one hour, that is, from 2 a.m. to 1 a.m.

AFTER 15 YEARS

Franklin Murders Remain Unsolved

By OTIS HASSELL
Staff Correspondent

WINNSBORO — "Mr. and Mrs. Sam Paola died of gunshot wounds by a person or persons unknown," was the verdict of the coroner's jury following the mysterious double - slaying of the well - liked Winnsboro couple on Halloween night in 1948.

Now, twelve years later, this statement still holds true, with not enough concrete evidence to support an arrest or trial of anyone. Although the case is still open, it could, for all practical purposes be called a "perfect crime." Anyway, it has been perfect for twelve years, and with each passing year chances for a solution grow dimmer.

Hiram B. Waller was sheriff of Franklin Parish at the time of the double murder and spearheaded an intensive investigation which for eleven and one-half years failed to turn up enough evidence to warrant an arrest.

A. J. Stephens took office as Franklin sheriff on June, 1, 1960, (five months ago), and as yet does not have any information or file on the case. However, Sheriff Stephens said that he intended to locate the file and check into the case.

Back to the mysterious double - slaying — It happened on Halloween night, 1948, unusually chilly and damp for this section of Louisiana; pranksters played "trick or treat" small boys roamed the unlighted streets of Winnsboro, and some residents prepared to see the sights next day in the city of Shreveport, principally the Louisiana State Fair.

Mary and Sam (Mr. and Mrs.) Paola, owners of a small radio - electrical shop, had ideas of making that 150 mile trip to Shreveport, Sunday, October 31. Their trip with friends was postponed—forever — by a killer who came through an unlocked door of their home at 1710 Tensas Street, armed with a .22 calibre automatic pistol.

The rest is history . . . sad history for Winnsboro. The double murder is a mystery which has baffled the experts, taken law enforcement officers and special investigators from Winnsboro to West Virginia, to Georgia, Washington D. C., New Orleans, Monroe, and investigation through the mails with army officials overseas. All this to no avail. The Paolas are dead, buried with solemn requiem high mass shortly after their bodies were found by a friend "ham" radio operator almost 38 hours after the fatal double shooting.

Their lives were relatively short, he 47, she 42. The Paolas, of Italian descent, were devout Catholics.

What's so strange about two people being killed? Circumstances!

Circumstances oddly differ from other murders, circumstances which permitted a still - wanted killer to escape, leaving no clues except four spent. 22 cartridges on the shiny waxed floor of the Paola home.

It was Halloween night. A slight drizzel was noticeable outside in the chilly wind which partially dampened the spirits of the usual group of masked, yelling pranksters, but failed to halt the intentions of a murder

Sam Paola operated his radio short wave set until 11 o'clock, undressed and went to bed in the back bedroom of the modest home. Undoubtedly, he said his nightly prayers, and clad only in his underwear, crawled between blankets to sleep peacefullly.

About 2 a.m., he was awaken by a noise in the house . . . a noise in the kitchen. Still clad only in his underclothes, he stepped into the kitchen - dinette and snapped on the ceiling light. Whether there was any conversation between the victim and the murderer is not known.

The small automatic spoke once, the slug entering the upper abdomen, lodging in the spinal column. Mrs. Paola heard the disturbance, arose sleepily, and made her way toward the lighted kitchen. Upon reaching the doorway, leading from the dinette to the hallway which separates the bath and kitchen, she saw the killer who fired at her, the bullet hitting her in the right breast and ranging downward. She lay screaming, prostrate on the hallway floor.

The killer made a few steps forward and, at close range, fired a second shot into the screaming woman's head, behind the right ear. Dying, frantic gasps and almost inaudible calls for help came from the mouth of the fatally wounded Sam. His appeal for aid was drowned by a bullet from the automatic. All was quite, the light still shown and the murderer stepped into the black, misty night.

More than 36 hours elapsed before a friend and fellow "ham" operator, William R. Baker, discovered the prostrate forms of the Paolas at dusk dark on Monday November 1. Baker notified Sheriff Hiram B. Waller of the double deaths and Winnsboro fairly rocked with excitement. Hardware stores were requested to reopen to sell locks, barrell — bolts and other locking devices. Their stocks were soon spent. Families moved, neighbors spent the night with neighbor and everybody talked, talked too much and found out nothing. Investigators investigated and discovered or uncovered little more.

The sheriff's department, district attorney, state police and town authorities found out: Sam Paola's billfold, containing several hundred dollars in cash was missing, as well as his watch. Mrs. Paola's purse lay untouched and nothing else was disturbd in the household. No fingerprints were located on the door, windows, tables or furniture . . . the prints were nowhere.

Sheriff Waller had giant photographs made of the spent cartridges and contracted manufacturers of automatic pistols who gave him this information: "The firing pin has been tampered with, apparently filed." However, to this day the murder weapon has not been found.

A lie detector was flown in from Chicago and several citizens were subjected to the examination which showed little and revealed nothing.

A total of $1250 in rewards ($500 by the parish, $500 by an individual and $250 by the Franklin Sun) was offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the parties, and as yet no one has stepped forward to claiim the reward money.

The fact that the double murder occured on Saturday night which was also Halloween, was probably the reason it was not discovered at once. Neighbors of the Paolas heard the shots and what could have been screams, and some of them went outside of their homes to investigate, but when nothing unusual was seen the natural assumption was that the disturbance was caused by Halloween pranksters.

This is, without doubt, one of the most complex murder mysteries recorded in police history. Why would anyone want to kill the well - liked couple who had spent most of their lives in this community (Investigations have not turned up a single enemy)? Why did the murder take time to shoot both of them twice, once in the body and once in the head? Mrs. Paola's money which she had planned to use on the trip to Shreveport the next day was not bothered. Where is the missing gun and why was no one seen when neighbors looked out after the shots were fired?

A member of the investigating team has described the case as being like a chain with a missing link and all that is needed to complete the chain and bring the murderer to justice is one little link. But, after 12 years this link is still missing.

George Paola, only surviving member of the Paola family, was working in Texas at the time his parents were killed in 1948. His older brother was killed by German anti - aicraft fire over Italy in World War II.

George, with his wife and two children, are living in his parents home which has recently been remodeled. He has discounted the theory that a strange prowler committed the murders, because, as he explained, "it had to be someone very familiar with the inside of the house."

2 Drunk Driving Charges Listed

Monroe police yesterday arrested two persons charging them with counts of operating motor vehicles while under the influence of intoxicating beverages.

Charles Warren, of El Dorado, Ark, and Ronald G. Fairless, 25, of Dodson, were both arrested in the early morning hours.

Warren was free after posting a $433 bond early yesterday, while Fairless was still in the city jail, last night under an identical bond.

ANNA MEYER BRANCH

Dedication Today For New Library

Dedication ceremonies for the new Anna Meyer Branch of the Ouachita Parish Public Library are set for 3 p.m. today. The building represents the last of three construction projects growing from a $700,000 bond issue approved in 1956.

An open house will follow at the new building, located at 418 Jackson St., site of the original parish library.

Presiding at the activities will be Mrs. Bernard W. Biedenharn, chairman of the library board of control. The invocation will be given by the Rev. Father James C. Wattley, vicar of St. Thomas Episcopal Church.

M. W. Montgomery, president of the Ouachita Parish police jury, will present the building and Alan Sugar, president of the Anna Meyer Charities, Inc., will present the donations from that fund to the library.

Accepting these from the library board of control, the city of Monroe and for the police jury will be Mrs. William King Stubbs, Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard and Rankin Earle, chairman of the library committee respectively.

Rabbi Martin I. Silverman of Temple B'Nai Israel will give the prayer of dedication and the Rev. John Stewart will present the benediction.

Following the dedication, the open house will be in charge of Mrs. Henry Whitfield and Mrs. William Whitfield.

In the receiving line will be members of the library board of control: Mrs. B. W. Biedenharn, Mrs. C. M. Strauss, Mrs. J. B. Kugler, Mrs. William King Stubbs, Miss Carrie Dee Drew and M. W. Montgomery; also Miss Frances Flanders, parish librarian, and Mrs. William Wilson, librarian at the Anna Meyer branch lirary.

Jury Committee OKs Purchases At Friday Meet

The Ouachita Parish police jury purchasing committee signed purchase orders for 112 feet of culverts Friday afternoon.

Thirty - six feet of 12 - inch concrete culvert will go for the Good Hope Road in ward five, 36 feet of 18 inch concrete culvert will be used at the Horse Show Lake Road in ward one and 40 feet of 36 inch metal culvert will go to the Caldwell Road in ward five.

A. E. Montgomery Sr. committee chairman from ward 10, Rankin Earle, ward three, L. U. Fourmy, ward 10, Leslie Hamm, ward five, M. W. Montgomery, ward ten and L. B. Pettit, ward three, attended the session.

They purchased a truck load of asphalt, one 825 by 20 tire and tube and one 750 by 20 tire and tube and one 750 by 20 tire and tube for highway department trucks, six kegs each of 80 penny and 60 penny nails for the bridge crew, six road flares and 25 gallons of paint for the highway department.

Supplies for the Police Jury office, coroner's office, courthouse and jail and clothing for two in jail for a year were purchased.

Man Leaps On Kennedy's Car, Gets Arrested

WILLOW GROVE, Pa. (AP)—An excited man leaped onto Sen. John F. Kennedy's open car as the Democratic presidential candidate's car arrived at a rally Saturday.

Police said the man started to pummel the senator on the back. They pulled him off and later charged him with being drunk and disorderly.

At his next stop Kennedy expressed surprise. He said he had not been hurt in anyway and that he thought the man was friendly. He sent along his personal wish that the man should be released.

Joseph McCabe, of the Willow Grove police, said Rock had shouted curses at Kennedy and later, when pulled away from the car, tried to attack the police. A policeman knocked him down. Rock was handcuffed and taken to a police station.

Kennedy appeared completely unruffled and unhurt as he spoke at the rally.

John Driscoll, Philadelphia police inspector, quoted Kennedy as saying he did not desire prosecution and that if the incident was personal, he requested that the man be released.

Passman Favors Tax Exemption On Implements

Congressman Otto E. Passman has publicly expressed "full endorsement and support" for proposed Constitutional Amendment No. 32, exempting farm implements from local and state property taxes, on the November 8 Louisiana general election ballot.

Responding to inquiries as to his views on the subject from numerous citizens and several organizations in the Fifth Congressional District, he said yesterday in a statement from Washington that, in his opinion, the "interests of Louisiana agriculture and, consequently, of the entire state would be best served by bringing under property tax exemption the essential equipment for operating our farms, which constitute the basic foundation of our economy and way of life."

He pointed out that these exemptions would be in the nature of an "industry inducement" plan for agriculture, and "completely in line" with other state tax exemptions which are granted to encourage economic growth.

The existing legal tax exemption on agricultural tools is now limited to a valuation up to $500, but the actual practice primarily in effect in Louisiana has been, generally, to exempt this type of equipment from taxation. However, it has been pointed out, the Louisiana Tax Commission has reminded assessors in all parishes of the "letter" of the present law and, it has been reported, directed them to fix valuations accordingly if proposed Amendment No. 32 is not passed.

This type of taxation on Louisiana's agriculture, Congressman Passman said he has concluded, would result in an "additional tax burden which many — actually, most — of our farmers would be unable to bear."

As other proponents of this amendment are doing, the Fifth District's member of Congress noted that "our farming in Louisiana is now undergoing a rapid changeover to mechanization, and this has resulted, and is resulting, in a heavy capital outlay for practically all, if not every one, of our farms. Furthermore," he said, "this mechanization is resulting in rapid depreciation of farm equipment.

"So, when all the factors are considered," Congressman Passman added, "it is clearly evident that taxing this equipment now would create and place on most of our farmers a new burden which they simply could not afford."

MAIN RECREATION CENTER with artist sketch and floor plan will be located in the Parkview subdivision on the southside of Monroe. This will be one of four centers (two white and two Negro which will be erected if approved by the Nov. 5 vote of the property owners of Monroe. The other recreation center for the white will be located between Lamy Lane and Sterlington Road for the northside and college area. The main Negro centers will be on Renwick street across from Carroll High School. This center will have a swimming pool. The other Negro center will be located between Berg Jones Lane and Beverly St. which will serve the Bryant's Addition. Each center will have gymnasium, game room, arts and crafts room reading and club rooms. The two main centers will have swimming pools. All centers will be equipped with a stage and the multipurpose rooms. The centers will be available to civic groups for meetings, garden and book clubs, private birthday parties, and showers at no cost. The parking lots can double as skating rinks and for other outings. The landscaped grounds will be equipped with tennis courts, barbeque pits, playground equipment and ball fields.

Monroe Recreation Bond Election Set

and 13 precincts in ward 10 will be included in the election.

Plans for the recreation facilities, if the money is provided, include:

Two white recreation centers, at Parkview and Oaklawn Streets on the Southside and near Westminister Street and the Sterlington Road in the College area.

Two recreation centers for Negroes, on Berg Jones Lane and Renwick Street.

Each center will have a gymnasium, game room, club rooms, dark room, small kitchen, handcraft and art rooms, concession lobby. The southside center will be the headquarters building for recreation offices.

Hesketh sees the centers as a means of preventing the basis for juvenile delinquency: nothing to do.

"We think that if more people take part in and keep busy with wholesome, constructive recreation programs, they won't have time to be roaming the streets," he points out.

"While they're at the recreation centers, they will be under proper adult supervision," he added.

With the facilities requested, the recreation department will be able to put on an accelerated program for all ages. Girls, adults and old people will share in the program, as well as teenage boys using the facilities.

All kinds of quiet games, plus volleyball, badminton, pingpong, baton twirling, cooking classes for young girls, "anything they want", will be offered.

Monroe then will be up to standards, when compared to other cities of equal size.

Swimming pools will allow swimming meets with other cities' teams, and contests among local people of the same age groups, "strictly as a recreation activity."

Last year, the Little League had 741 boys playing ball on only two diamonds. These teams have no place to practice.

The Dixie League for boys 13 and 14 years old does not have a regulation field to play on at the present time.

"More boys came out for Dixie League last year than ever before. Half of the boys could not play on a team because of the lack of a ballfield," Heskith revealed.

Here is the listings of the voting places in wards three and 10. Not voting in this election will be precincts 11 and 12 of ward three, precincts 13 and 14 of ward 10.

Ward three:

Precinct one, courthouse building, Monroe.

Rickover Hits Complacency In U.S. Education

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Vice Adm. Hyman, G. Rickover said Saturday night the United States has let its great national wealth delude it into a dangerous sense of complacency.

"By foolishly equating a high material standard of living with general excellence and political supremacy," he said, "we misread our true position in the world and thereby run the risk of being bypassed by nations more alert to reality."

Rickover, called the father of the atomic Navy, renewed his criticisms of the present state of public education in a speech prepared for an alumni meeting at St. John's College.

"The wall behind which we have been nursing the illusion that 'our schools are the best in the world' is being rudely pulled down and we must face up to the truth, remedy our educational errors and do a great deal better by our children," he said.

Rickover Hits Complacency In U.S. Education

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Vice Adm. Hyman, G. Rickover said Saturday night the United States has let its great national wealth delude it into a dangerous sense of complacency.

"By foolishly equating a high material standard of living with general excellence and political supremacy," he said, "we misread our true position in the world and thereby run the risk of being bypassed by nations more alert to reality."

Rickover, called the father of the atomic Navy, renewed his criticisms of the present state of public education in a speech prepared for an alumni meeting at St. John's College.

"The wall behind which we have been nursing the illusion that 'our schools are the best in the world' is being rudely pulled down and we must face up to the truth, remedy our educational errors and do a great deal better by our children," he said.

President Race Viewed As Close

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Both political camps viewed the 1960 presidential race Saturday as a neck-and-neck affair which could be won or lost in the remaining 10 days of the campaign.

Neither Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the Republican candidate, nor Sen. John F. Kennedy, his Democratic rival, was casting as the all-out, stretch drive for votes began. Both have scheduled random stops next week in thinly populated territory but reserved most of their time for the pivotal states with large blocs of electoral votes.

There was Kennedy landslide talk among some Democrats but more cautious Kennedy supporters said the race still was close.

Although Republicans were gloomy about Nixon's chances of winning New York's prized electoral votes, they were still fighting to carry that most populous state. They were saying that the vice president could win the White House without New York.

Having made his first major campaign appearance and TV speech from Philadelphia Friday night, President Eisenhower will join Nixon and Henry Cabot Lodge, GOP vice presidential nominee, in another TV show from New York Wednesday night.

The President, who had been held back for the climax of the campaign, also will make a nationally televised appearance Tuesday night with Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson to discuss money policy. He will have another joint appearance with Nixon and Lodge Nov. 7, election eve.

One objective of Eisenhower's Philadelphia visit was to cut into an expected Democratic majority and strengthen Nixon's chances of winning a statewide majority in Pennsylvania.

Kenedy has national TV network speeches set for next Saturday and for the eve of the election.

Republicans have been jolted and Democrats elated during the past week by New York Daily News and Chicago Sun - Times polls showing Kennedy ahead in New York and Illinois by what appeared to be comfortable margins. The Illinois poll was the bigger surprise because that state had been classed as a toss - up, or with Nixon in front.

Besides New York with 45 and Illinois with 27, other states with large blocs of electoral votes are Pennsylvania and California with 32 each, Ohio with 25, Texas with 24, Michigan with 20, and Massachusetts and New Jersey with 16 apiece.

Kennedy forces concede none of the nine states to Nixon. Except for Kennedy's home state of Massachusetts, Republican campaign managers concede none to Kennedy.

In a press statement, Rep. William E. Miller, N.Y., chairman of the GOP congressional campaign committee, said Kennedy had passed his crest and begun to slip.

"The bandwagon psychology which Sen. Kennedy and his supporters have been trying to generate has flopped," Miller said.

Rummel Resting 'Comfortably'

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel of New Orleans spent a very good night and is resting comfortably, a hospital medical report said Saturday.

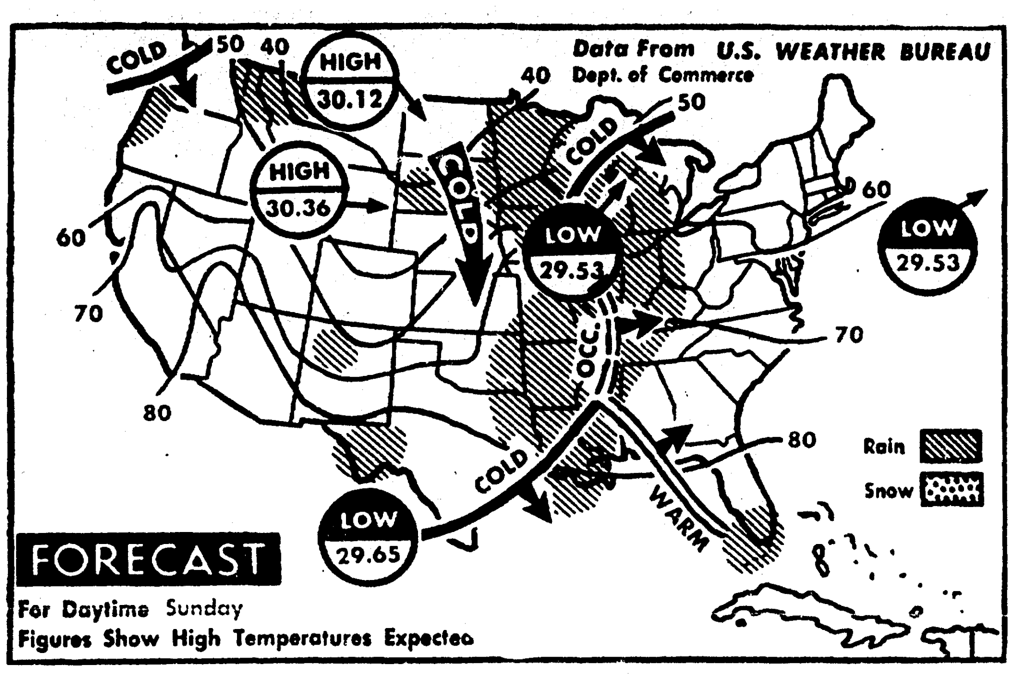
Our Lady of the Lake Hospital said he "spent a very good night and after attending the usual morning Mass, he enjoyed a good breakfast.

"He will continue with the physio-therapeutic program today. His injuries are responding well to the physio-therapeutic procedure, which is being used."



RAIN WILL FALL Sunday over upper and middle Mississippi Valley, Ohio Valley, southern Texas and Florida, northern Plateau and New Mexico and the Pacific northwest. Snow is expected in the northern Plains states. Changes in temperature should include warmer weather in northern Rockies; colder weather in the Plains and upper Mississippi Valley. MAP SUMMARY

A flow of moist air from the south spread occasional rain and showers from Arkansas into Minnesota with the precipitation extending into eastern portions of the North and Central Plains during late Saturday. Thundershowers were reported from Eastern Oklahoma into Kansas while northerly winds with gusts to over 50 m.p.h. spread occasional snow from the North and Central Rockies into Western Nebraska and South Dakota. Except for spotty light rain extending from Maryland into New Jersey skies were mostly fair over the Atlantic states. Skies were also mostly fair from the Pacific states through the Southern Rockies into western portions of the Southern Plains while considerable cloudiness prevailed from the Ohio Valley into the Central Gulf region.

Relatively mild temperatures extended over most of the eastern half of the country and the southwest. Afternoon temperatures in the 50's and 60's were reported from the North and Middle Atlantic states into the Middle and Upper Mississippi Valley. The 70's were mixed with the 80's in the Gulf states and the extreme southwest with a few 90's noted in Southern California. In contrast the 20's and 30's were observed from Colorado into Montana while in the Pacific northwest readings were mostly in the 50's.

The colder overnight temperatures are expected to spread southward into Northern Texas and eastward into Minnesota and Iowa today while occasional snow lingers in the northern half of the Plains.

City Police Holding Pair For Robbery

Local police last night arrested two men and were holding them for questioning in connection with the armed robbery of an El Dorado, Ark., liquor store last Friday night which netted between $900 and $1000.

The two were identified as Robert Ford Holman, 38, 411 Layton St., Monroe, and James Warren Byrnes, 31, with no address listed.

Their arrests came after two men held up the Warren Liquor store in El Dorado, tied up Horace Warren, the owner, with adresive tape and escaped with between $700 and $800 in cash, $57 in change from a metal box, and three $50 travelers checks from the proprietor's billfold.

El Dorado police said they received a call from Warren at 9:34 p.m. saying that his place had been robbed.

Investigating officers said Warren had been tied with his hands behind him and his feet had also been secured with tape. Warren said the robbers had also stuck his handkerchief in his mouth before fleeing.

Warren told police it took several minutes for him to free himself. Officers said he was still removing tape when they arrived at the scene.

Warren described the two men as being about 25 to 30 years of age weighting from 145 to 155. He said one had a ruddy complexion and dark hair, while the other was fair with blonde hair.

Churck Latest Type Of Fowl

The hybrid fowl is a cross between a turkey and a chicken developed in experimental work by Dr Marlow Olsen at the Agriculture Department's center in suburban Beltsville, Md.

The turkey ancestry stems from the widely known Beltsville turkey, a bird developed with an exceptionally broad breast, to provide more white meat. The chicken side of the family—the rooster —is Cornish.

Three of the churks are alive at the center. They are not expected to be able to reproduce themselves and commercial use of the hybrid is unlikely.

Churck Latest Type Of Fowl

The hybrid fowl is a cross between a turkey and a chicken developed in experimental work by Dr Marlow Olsen at the Agriculture Department's center in suburban Beltsville, Md.

The turkey ancestry stems from the widely known Beltsville turkey, a bird developed with an exceptionally broad breast, to provide more white meat. The chicken side of the family—the rooster—is Cornish.

Three of the churks are alive at the center. They are not expected to be able to reproduce themselves and commercial use of the hybrid is unlikely.

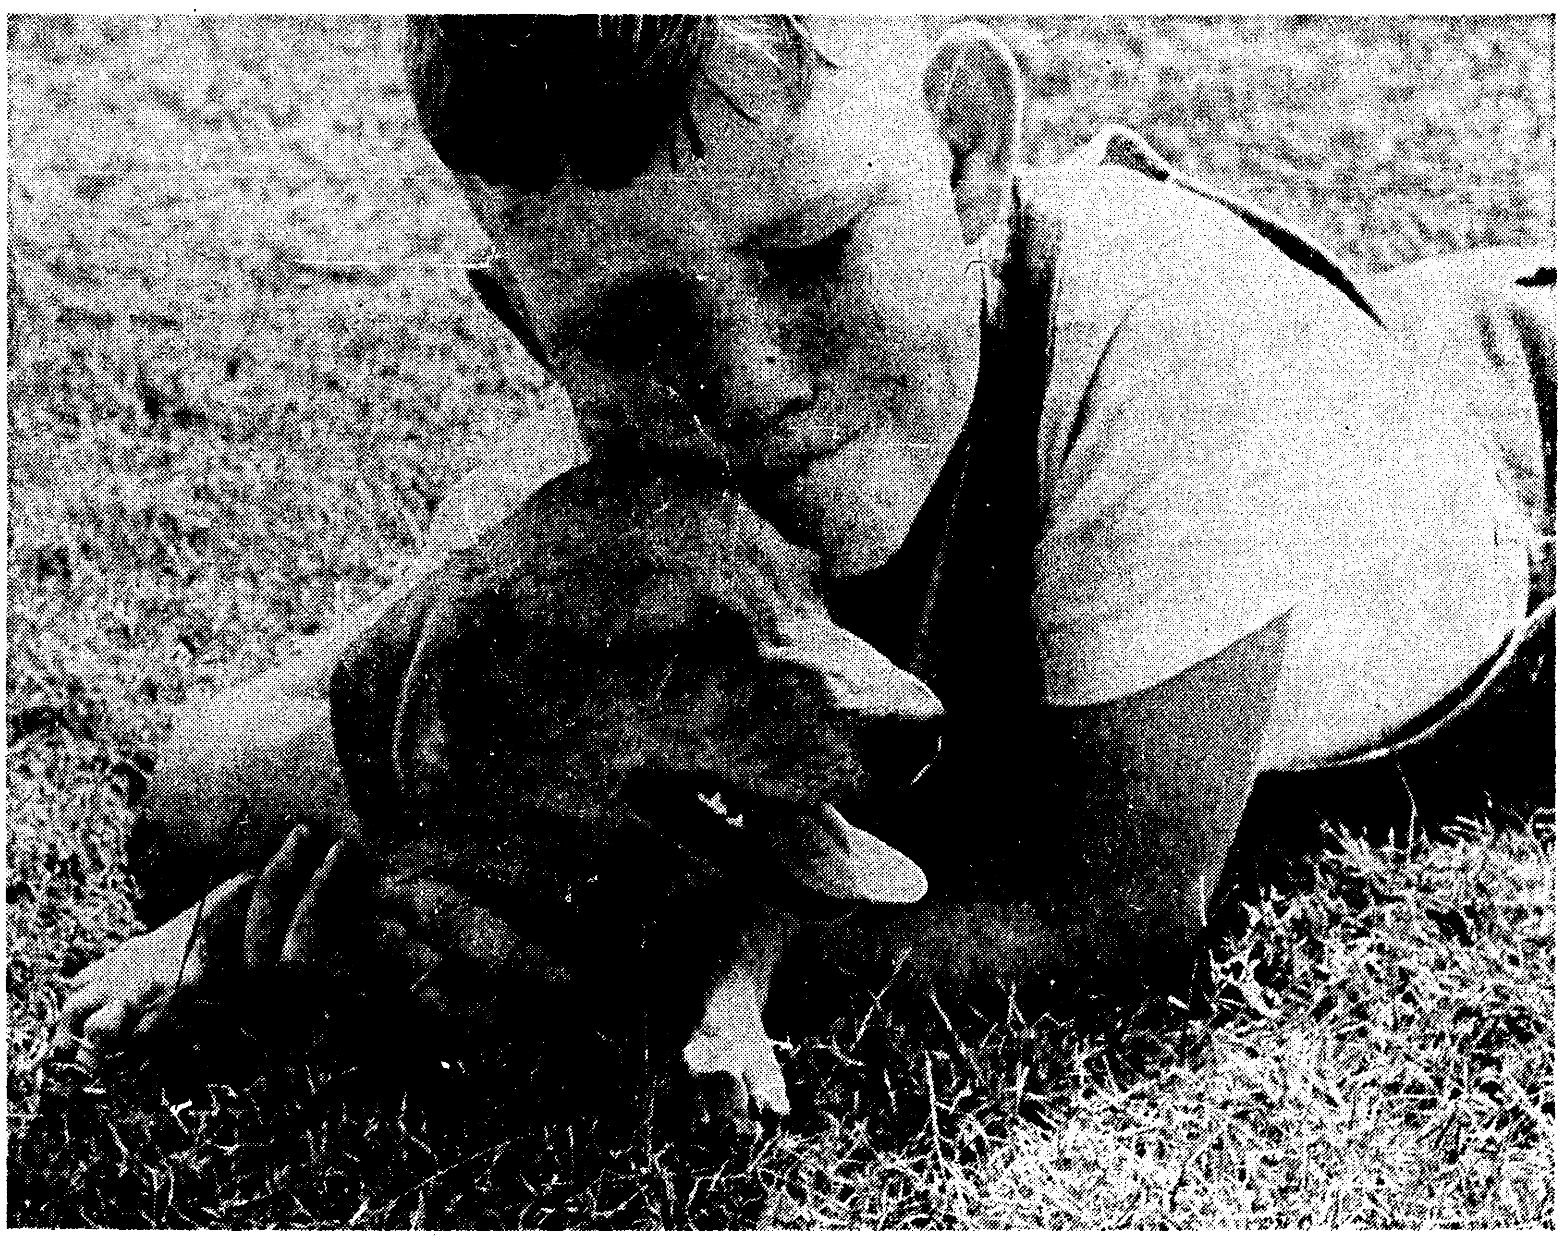
SOME OF CHILDHOOD'S happiest moments center around the combination of boys and dogs, as graphically recorded here by Greg Hare of the News-Star-World staff. Leading in pursuit of the frisky puppy, Sandy, is his master, Leo "Nubbins" Dixon, 6, while following close behind is Alan Benard Love, 5. The boys are residents of Swartz community, Leo's parents are Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Dixon. Alan's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Benard Love.



EVIDENCE THAT the chase was all in fun, and being caught was another pleasant chapter in the game, is seen here, as "Nubbins" Dixon, cuddles his puppy.

Halloween Goes Hollywood

Fun, Fantasy

Editor's note—When you open the door to trick or treaters Oct. 31, don't be surprised if you see most of TV-land standing there with palms outstretched. For Halloween has gone Hollywood and an old-fashioned witch these days doesn't stand a ghost of a chance.

By SID MOODY

NEW YORK (AP)—Braced like a hunter against a charging rhinoceros stands the Halloween costume business. It has only one shot all year, and if it misses—disaster.

But it never misses.

"Halloween is as sure shot a holiday as there is," says one confident industry salesman. "Mom may be scrimping and saving, but she's going to be sure her kids have a costume for Halloween," says another.

Seems they're right. Merchants of trick or treat wear are smiling broader than jack o' lanterns this season as customers come knocking at their doors in record numbers.

"You can put it down, Halloween is booming," said Harry Mirsky, who waits all year, every year. for Oct. 31. Mirsky is sales representative for J. Halpern Co., one of the major costume manufacturers.

DIFFERENT

But while it's booming Halloween also has put on a different face. Pranks have been replaced by philanthropy. And you won't find many devils or witches on the front porch Monday. Look instead for the likes of Alvin Chipmunk, Yogi Bear or Charley Weaver.

"Oh, we still sell devil suits, and witches and hobgoblins, but we're getting away from those kinds of weirdies," said Mirsky. "Television did it. Nowadays kids don't want to be skeletons. They want to dress up like the characters they see on TV."

With that Mirsky threw open a closet door. Inside hanging from a pipe rack was TV's Charley Weaver.

Here's our biggest seller this year," said Mirsky, reaching into the bowels of the closet. "Our beatnik suit."

COSTUME

He held up a black costume complete with painted rope belt, striped apache shirt with a comb, obviously unused, sticking from the breast pocket. The mask was bearded, equipped with dark glasses and topped by a rakish black beret.

The accident victim costume, available in small, medium and large, shows a man, his head swathed in bandages, holding a sign: "I've had it." There's a cast on one leg autographed "Get well soon, but not too soon" and "swell party, wasn't it?" for the sick-sick fans, no doubt.

"It's selling all right," said Mirsky.

"We gotta keep changing," said Mirsky. "Weaver, for instance. He'll last maybe two more years. We have to keep coming up with something new."

There are other hazards. One manufacturer found so many youngsters injuring themselves by trying to fly in their superman costumes they had to put in notes warning the suits were strictly earthbound.

Treats Replace Tricks

Beside Weaver Halpern has in its stable such TV figures as Matt Dillon and his sidekick, Chester; Alvin Chipmunk; and Steve Canyon. Collegeville Flag & Mfg. Co. has Maverick, Bugs Bunny and Popeye, while Ben Cooper, the third of the big three costume makers, handles Superman, Bat Masterson, Paladin, Zoro, Huckleberry Hound—very big this year—and Capt. Kangaroo.

COURAGE

"You have to have courage and foresight," said another costume representative. "You plan years ahead to nail down a TV character, and then he's a bust, and you're holding the bag."

And it's a pretty big bag. No figures are available, but estimates put the gross halloween costume business at upwards of $10 million.

"Don't forget the influence of the United Nations on Halloween. It's . . . Excuse me," said Mirsky as the phone interrupted. He jotted down some figures and told the caller at the other end he'd take care of him right away.

Mirsky beamed an I-told-you-so beam.

"Like I said, TV has really boosted Halloween and so had the U.N. Schools are encouraging the kids to ask for pennies while they're out trick or treating. The money goes to UNICEF (United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund). Rather than knocking over things, the kids are doing something constructive," indicating what's good for UNICEF is good for Halloween.

All the manufacturers have blasted off into the space age with an earthly wardrobe of Mr. Satellite, Moon Man and Rocket Pilot costumes.

SURPRISING

"But surprising to say, space has not caught the kids' imagination," said Mirsky. "It's not a big item."

Cowboys are. "They're so many Westerns around the stores don't know what suits to buy. They're going crazy," said Ralph Trishon of Sackman Bros.

Sackman is touching all bases. It has in its corral, all branded with a Sackman license, such assorted podners as Johnny Ringo, Roy Rogers, Dale Evans, The Rebel, Cisco Kid and a character from Wagon Train.

In the trade, Sackman is known as a playsuit manufacturer, Malpern a costume maker. Playsuits are replicas of actual uniforms such as a policeman or soldier or nurse.

Playsuit and costume makers have agreed tacitly to walk their separate sides of the street. "We don't make playsuits, and they don't make costumes," said Mirsky.

Mechanical Brain Is 'Magnificient Moron'

Editor's Note—Electronic brains are busy as bees, selling life insurance, firing missiles, handling payrolls and countless other counting jobs. But they still can't think any better than a worm.

By CHARLES STAFFORD

Associated Press Writer

The mechanical brain is overrated.

Choose any one you wish — Univac, Mark, Romac, It can't think, has no emotions, originality, judgment or will.

In short, the mechanical brain is a magnificent moron.

In the time it takes a thinking man to wink at a pretty girl, an electronic computer can add 300,000 figures, or subtract them, divide them, multiply them, or compare them.

This speed has earned the computor its reputation as a brain. It has also caused dire predictions that machines one day will enslave mankind.

MANY

There are about 3,500 electronic computers in the United States. They have made themselves indispensible to the businesses of firing missiles, building airplanes and selling life insurance. They are taking on new jobs every day.

Dr. Norbert Wiener of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, originator of the science of cybernetics, which is the study of electronic computers as they compare with the human nervous system, warns:

"We wish a slave to be intelligent to be able to assist us in the carrying out of our tasks. However, we also wish him to be subservient. Complete subservience and complete intelligence do not go together.

"If the machines become more and more efficient and operate at a higher and higher psychological level, the catastrophe of the dominance of the machine comes nearer and nearer."

But for now, even Wiener will admit that the computer is to the mind only what the magnifying glass is to the eye—a tool. It can no more think than the glass can see.

This great-grandchild of the ancient abacus is an impressive sight, its spools of magnetic tape whirling madly, the tiny lights winking, the whole bulk softly purring.

But the brain of the machine is probably sitting unobtrusively in a corner, sipping coffee or scratching away at a piece of graph paper with a prosiac pencil.

NEW TYPE

He's the programmer, a new breed of white collar worker who speaks a computer's language. He analyzes a problem, decides how it can be solved, tells the computer how to do it and translates data into numbers.

Men who build computers say their innards are simplicity itself—just a huge collection of switches that are open or shut in different combinations. But it's an expensive collection.

Depending on size, a computer rents for $1,600 to $300,000 a month, or sells for $60,000 to $13 million.

They pay off by doing new jobs man can't do or old ones faster than he ever could.

A space-bound missile is piloted by an earth-bound computer. It receives information on the missile's course from tracking stations, compares it with the planned course, and, if necessary, radios instructions to the missile that corrects its flight. It does all of this before a human could pick up his slide rule.

The Chesapeake & Ohio Railway uses a computer to issue 34,000 paychecks in half a day, turn out the road's annual financial report by the fourth day of the new year, and plan the proper dispersal of its rolling stock.

At the rate of 70 cows a minute, computers at Cornell, Iowa State and North Carolina State consider the butterfat production, feed consumption, milk prices, feed costs and so on of dairy farm herds. Without any trace of sentiment, they tell the farmer whether he should keep a cow or get rid of it.

SOPHISTICATED

These working computers are becoming more and more sophisticated.

When your employer mails in his report on your Social Security tax, the information goes to a computer in Baltimore, Md. The computer brings your records up to date. But suppose your Social Security number is 235-30-5559, and is mistakenly listed as 325-30-5559.

When the machine finds that one of the most common mistakes is the transposition of the digits, it reverses the digits, finds your name, and records the information.

The computer is only doing what it has been told to do.

The computer industry is working now to make the telling easier. Radio Corp. of America has perfected "Cobol," a common business-oriented language, for its computers. Remington Rand expects to shortly, and the other companies aren't far behind.

With Cobol, simple words are used to instruct the computer. An example: "Subtract net pay from gross pay." The machine then does the job of translating the words into numbers. Cobol will speed up programming, says Donald H. Kunsman, vice president of RCA's electronic data division. More important, he says, "Cobol for the first time lets management know where it invested its money and see how it's being used. The day of lack of knowledge of what is going on in the computing room is disappearing."

MORE

A firm in Needham Heights, Mass., Farrington Manufacturing Co., has developed a mechanical translator. This is an optical scanner which will read letters, numbers and handwriting and translate into machine language.

RACE

The race to shrink the size of computers and speed them up, which began when the first electronic degital computer was built at the University of Pennsylvania 15 years ago, is continuing. Vacuum tubes have been replaced by the much smaller transistors.

Burroughs Corp. is working on an experimental model that would house the 290,000 components of the memory and mathematical portions of a computer—the bulky portions—in a box of less than one cubic foot.

Ted Glaser, who heads the advance study group at Burroughs research center in Paoli, Pa., believes it will be possible to build a machine that can draw conclusions based on its own experience.

He cites the perceptron work of Cornell University scientists, who are trying to approximate as nearly as they know how the functionings of the still mysterious human mind. The best they can do now is a machine with the nervous system of a flatworm.

HOPE

"If we can just reach mouse-brain size in the next few years, I'll be satisfied," says Glaser.

Glaser isn't worried about the consequences of these experiments.

"We will be the slaves of machines from the standpoint that we will become more and more dependent upon them to help us make decisions which we are simply not equipped to make," says Glaser.

"But it isn't so much a question of whether man will sacrifice his freedom to computers, but rather whether he will be able to build the computers necessary to allow him to exist in the complex society of tomorrow."

'Teaching Machine' In First Mass Test

By G. K. HODENFIELD

ROANOKE, Va. (AP)—Here in the Virginia highlands where the Blue Ridge Mountains meet the Alleghenies an educational revolution is brewing which may sweep the nation.

In the first mass test of "teaching machine" techniques, nearly 1,000 high school students here are learning mathematics faster and more easily than ever before.

The students have no homework, yet most of them will complete two years' work in one. Without prodding by the teachers, the students put in a full 55 minutes of work in each class period.

OUTLOOK

This should be made clear at the outset: The teaching machine is no easy cure-all for the ills of education. It will never replace the teacher, any more than the automatic washing machine or coffee percolater will replace the housewife. It won't eliminate the teacher shortage, although it should help a good teacher do a better job with more students.

It is only a teaching tool, and it's greatest promise lies in its use by a thoroughly competent teacher.

With minor reservations the students, teachers and school officials of Roanoke are enthusiastic about the program. It has some "bugs" still to be eliminated, but it will be expanded as rapidly as possible.

There are many different models and types of the so-called "teaching machines" on the market, ranging in price from about $40 to $5,000. None actually teaches, except in the sense that a textbook might be said to teach, and some aren't even machines in the technical sense.

SELF INSTRUCTION

Basically, the "teaching machine" techniques is just a form of self-instruction which permits each student to work at his own best speed.

"If the machines become more and more efficient and operate at a higher and higher psychological level, the catastrophe of the dominance of the machine comes nearer and nearer."

But for now, even Wiener will admit that the computer is to the mind only what the magnifying glass is to the eye—a tool. It can no more think than the glass can see.

This great-grandchild of the ancient abacus is an impressive sight, its spools of magnetic tape whirling madly, the tiny lights winking, the whole bulk softly purring.

But the brain of the machine is probably sitting unobtrusively in a corner, sipping coffee or scratching away at a piece of graph paper with a prosiac pencil.

NEW TYPE

He's the programmer, a new breed of white collar worker who speaks a computer's language. He analyzes a problem, decides how it can be solved, tells the computer how to do it and translates data into numbers.

Men who build computers say their innards are simplicity itself—just a huge collection of switches that are open or shut in different combinations. But it's an expensive collection.

Depending on size, a computer rents for $1,600 to $300,000 a month, or sells for $60,000 to $13 million.

They pay off by doing new jobs man can't do or old ones faster than he ever could.

A space-bound missile is piloted by an earth-bound computer. It receives information on the missile's course from tracking stations, compares it with the planned course, and, if necessary, radios instructions to the missile that corrects its flight. It does all of this before a human could pick up his slide rule.

The Chesapeake & Ohio Railway uses a computer to issue 34,000 paychecks in half a day, turn out the road's annual financial report by the fourth day of the new year, and plan the proper dispersal of its rolling stock.

At the rate of 70 cows a minute, computers at Cornell, Iowa State and North Carolina State consider the butterfat production, feed consumption, milk prices, feed costs and so on of dairy farm herds. Without any trace of sentiment, they tell the farmer whether he should keep a cow or get rid of it.

SOPHISTICATED

These working computers are becoming more and more sophisticated.

When your employer mails in his report on your Social Security tax, the information goes to a computer in Baltimore, Md. The computer brings your records up to date. But suppose your Social Security number is 235-30-5559, and is mistakenly listed as 325-30-5559.

When the machine finds that one of the most common mistakes is the transposition of the digits, it reverses the digits, finds your name, and records the information.

The computer is only doing what it has been told to do.

The computer industry is working now to make the telling easier. Radio Corp. of America has perfected "Cobol," a common business-oriented language, for its computers. Remington Rand expects to shortly, and the other companies aren't far behind.

With Cobol, simple words are used to instruct the computer. An example: "Subtract net pay from gross pay." The machine then does the job of translating the words into numbers. Cobol will speed up programming, says Donald H. Kunsman, vice president of RCA's electronic data division. More important, he says, "Cobol for the first time lets management know where it invested its money and see how it's being used. The day of lack of knowledge of what is going on in the computing room is disappearing."

MORE

A firm in Needham Heights, Mass., Farrington Manufacturing Co., has developed a mechanical translator. This is an optical scanner which will read letters, numbers and handwriting and translate into machine language.

RACE

The race to shrink the size of computers and speed them up, which began when the first electronic degital computer was built at the University of Pennsylvania 15 years ago, is continuing. Vacuum tubes have been replaced by the much smaller transistors.

Burroughs Corp. is working on an experimental model that would house the 290,000 components of the memory and mathematical portions of a computer—the bulky portions—in a box of less than one cubic foot.

Ted Glaser, who heads the advance study group at Burroughs research center in Paoli, Pa., belives it will be possible to build a machine that can draw conclusions based on its own experience.

He cites the perceptron work of Cornell University scientists, who are trying to approximate as nearly as they know how the functionings of the still mysterious human mind. The best they can do now is a machine with the nervous system of a flatworm.

HOPE

"If we can just reach mouse-brain size in the next few years, I'll be satisfied," says Glaser.

Glaser isn't worried about the consequences of these experiments.

"We will be the slaves of machines from the standpoint that we will become more and more dependent upon them to help us make decisions which we are simply not equipped to make," says Glaser.

"But it isn't so much a question of whether man will sacrifice his freedom to computers, but rather whether he will be able to build the computers necessary to allow him to exist in the complex society of tomorrow."

'Teaching Machine' In First Mass Test

By G. K. HODENFIELD

ROANOKE, Va. (AP)—Here in the Virginia highlands where the Blue Ridge Mountains meet the Alleghenies an educational revolution is brewing which may sweep the nation.

In the first mass test of "teaching machine" techniques, nearly 1,000 high school students here are learning mathematics faster and more easily than ever before.

The students have no homework, yet most of them will complete two years' work in one. Without prodding by the teachers, the students put in a full 55 minutes of work in each class period.

OUTLOOK

This should be made clear at the outset: The teaching machine is no easy cure-all for the ills of education. It will never replace the teacher, any more than the automatic washing machine or coffee percolater will replace the housewife. It won't eliminate the teacher shortage, although it should help a good teacher do a better job with more students.

It is only a teaching tool, and it's greatest promise lies in its use by a thoroughly competent teacher.

With minor reservations the students, teachers and school officials of Roanoke are enthusiastic about the program. It has some "bugs" still to be eliminated, but it will be expanded as rapidly as possible.

There are many different models and types of the so-called "teaching machines" on the market, ranging in price from about $40 to $5,000. None actually teaches, except in the sense that a textbook might be said to teach, and some aren't even machines in the technical sense.

SELF INSTRUCTION

Basically, the "teaching machine" techniques is just a form of self-instruction which permits each student to work at his own best speed.

The Surrender Louisiana Ticket

Some spokesmen for Louisiana so-called "third slate of unpledged electors" pretend that if the presidential election is deadlocked in the electoral college and goes into the House, the two candidates or their representatives would come rushing into this state to conduct "kneel-ins" in behalf of electoral or other support.

The mere idea is disgustingly repulsive to the American concept of decency and honesty in government. It also is absurd and impossible.

Segregation, desegregation, integration are not presidential issues and cannot be. The President cannot change Federal Court decisions. He does not even appoint the personnel of the Federal Courts—he merely nominates. The Senate can confirm or reject. It holds the final power.

The greatest strength that anti-civil rights Southern forces were able to gain in the last session of Congress on any key issue was 19 votes out of 100—leaving 81 per cent on the civil rights side. Approximately the same ratio existed in the House.

For anyone to say that some kind of bargain could be made with a President whereby he would "go into Congress and influence the Legislators to change the civil rights laws," and to use as a supporting example the influence which Louisiana Governors at times may have on the State Legislature, is beyond the realm of ordinary intelligence.

The Legislators in Congress are 80 per cent or more integrationists. To try to influence them in behalf of segregation would be like the Governor of Louisiana trying to influence the State Legislature to pass laws compelling integration in every school, church, club, bus, or other public place in Louisiana.

It is equally childish to talk about making some kind of bargain whereby the President would send the U. S. Attorney General into the South to block Negro civil rights suits instead of to prosecute them.

Either that, or his Party unquestionably would be thrown out of power, so far as Congress is concerned, at the next election, which would be within two years. He himself could not obtain renomination from his Party.

Even if he did, he could not possibly be re-elected.

The voting line-up in the House and the Senate mentioned above demonstrates these things — that an overwhelming majority of the states are, as of now, pro-integration so far as Washington action is concerned.

Talk about the South bargaining with Hayes in the 1870s to give its electoral votes in return for withdrawal of federal troops has no connection whatever with present conditions. There were no Federal Court rulings involved then. The troops were, for al. practical purposes, the forces of a victorious nation occupying a defeated nation, with withdrawal certain in time.

In fact, virtually all talk about bargaining is so much dreaming — often with not as much substance as a dream.

There is nothing that could be of genuine value to the South in changing present desegregation conditions that any President could grant, even if he were willing to make the deal demanded.

Unpleasant as it may be, that is a fact that simply has to be faced.

The real question, so far as the South is concerned, is which man as President would be most likely to preserve American government under which the South could continue to fight for its rights.

On that point, there is a vast and deep difference between Mr. Nixon and Mr. Kennedy. The former believes in a government over which the people can have final control. The latter, through his utterances and his platform, clearly believes that the federal government should take over more and more control of everything and everybody.

The South's desegregation troubles are not presidential issues because neither candidate could solve them as we wish even if he wanted to, nor will either try to do so.

But one of the two, Nixon or Kennedy, will be President and our whole future philosophy of federal government—which includes the opportunity of individuals and states to carry on their fights for their rights—rests on which one.

On that issue the difference between Kennedy and Nixon is exactly and precisely as clear as the difference between traveling on down the road of socialistic federalism and turning back to the road of government as a republic.

And a vote for "third electors" in Louisiana is a vote to help put Kennedy in the White House and his philosophies on the federal statute books; neither more nor less.

Back United Givers

Next Wednesday is a big day in the life of the United Givers Fund. On that day a special "task force" of 75 to 100 civic and business leaders will drop everything as far as their business and profession is concerned to go out on a clean-up campaign in an effort to complete this year's fund drive. It is significant that these 75 to 100 men are the same ones who have already devoted great amounts of time to the important job of collecting funds for the 13 health, welfare and character-building agencies that make up the United Givers Fund.

Early last week drive leaders felt that the campaign was dragging and there was considerable doubt that the goal would be reached. A comparison of this year's contributions with those of last year for the same period tends to eliminate the doubt that the goal will be achieved. It is just a matter of going ahead and getting a job done rather than dragging it out over a prolonged period.

In Thursday's report meeting a past fund campaign chairman summed up the situation thusly: "The only reason the grand total wasn't larger was because of two people. . . . the guy who has got the envelope and hasn't done anything with it, and the guy who distributed the envelope and didn't follow it up. The solicitors need to be re-activated."

There is one more individual this leader failed to mention—the rare businessman who refuses to contribute at all to United Givers. The more than 300 volunteer workers who participate in the United Givers drive hear reports of these few individuals and express shock and surprise that any business firm who thrives on the economy of our community would refuse to contribute their fair share to the agencies whose functions are so important to our society.

Solicitors and contributors alike are urged to cooperate in the United Givers effort. Not only toward the end that the goal will be reached, but that the drive will be completed by November 3 as was planned. Let's all work toward insuring the success of this one drive which eliminates an even dozen more.

Many Wheelers, Dealers

This Will Be Remembered As Presidential Election Year When Many Whistled In Dark

This will be remembered as the Presidential election year in which never so many political wheelers and dealers whistled in the dark. And, in which it will become evident on the morning of November 9, so many of them were whistling in graveyards.

It will be remembered as a year when some politicians were a shade hesitant to make predictions, when others made strident and public claims of victory and then privately engaged in ring - around - rosy talk, which revealed that they were merely indulging in conjecture when they made the claims.

It will be remembered as the year when there was no Democratic Solid South, which Democrats could ignore while they ploughed through doubtful territory; the year when there was not a single Republican gibraltar State.

It will be remembered as a year when neither candidate appeared to have presented an image to the citizenry suggesting that he was in any way a giant yet in which each was engulfed in a mass of welcomers in city after city; of wild greetings to the candidates by tumultuous, charging crowds. Bobby - soxers squelling in the presence of Kennedy, sober - sided oldsters going into estacy at the sight of Nixon.

It will be remembered as the year which started out with most poeple saying the race between Kennedy and Nixon was an unpredictable and a race at no time—at least up to now — showing any omens of succumbing to a landslide. And if it did turn out to be a landslide the wise men had their alibis ready. They were to run something like this:

"It was the undecided voters—the people who wouldn't tell how they intended to vote. They really never spoke until they got into those voting booths."

Would it be another year like 1916 when Charles Evans Hughes quickly rolled to victory in Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan and rolled up 180 electoral votes before midnight, only to hang when late returns from the then Solid South, Ohio, Kansas and the prairie States and finally California gave Woodrow Wilson the victory that even the New York Democratic newspapers had conceded to Hughes? You will have to wait until November 9 at least, to get the answer to that.

This year will be remembered, it appears, for checkerboard results, for tides arrested at State borders. When it began to appear that conditions in New York portended a sizeable plus for Kennedy in the Empire State prospective massive Republican majorities in prosperous suburbs, small towns and rural areas apparently began to build up in Pennsylvania and Illinois to counteract the Democratic urban majorities in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Chicago.

It will be remembered as the when the Democratic' coffers were fuller than the Republicans'.

It will be remembered as the year when polls could prove almost anything, and were never received with so much skepticism.

It will be remembered ast he year when never were crystal balls so cloudy; when politicians so eagerly pressed to their bosoms even faint of omens of victory, when such omens were discoverable.

It will be remembered as the year when learned, prepared speeches, "to be held for release," were largely abandoned and Presidential candidates resorted to mediocre bread - and butter speeches, some of which would have been no credit to a candidate for State legislature.

It will be a year in which the returns from the South will be most eagerly awaited. That section took its most humiliating defeat in the most radical of all Democratic National Conventions.

Rebellion against both platform and nominees bent party lines under the strain. Whether these lines have cracked enough for the Republicans carry a sizeable number of Southern States remains to be seen.

Voting habits are difficult to change in the South. No office holders of stature have bolted, most of them are working for the party and have raised their siren cry: "The Republicans are no friends of the South. We will have to work out our problems in the frame work of the Democratic party." Whether they can thus smooth - talk the Southern rebels back into line in sufficient numbers remains to be seen.

But, if, come midnight November 8, the election seems close the nation will begin to look Southward for election returns as no one in this generation has ever remembered having seen it done.

This could be the year which would be remembered because the South decided the outcome of the election.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By U.S. Senator Barry Goldwater

In these final days before the momentous election of 1960, pollsters continue to report that many Americans are undecided. It is my conviction that most Americans are making a serious attempt to penetrate the smog of campaign statements and to reach a decision which will ultimately benefit America.

I do not believe that a majority of the voters will decide the issues of 1960 on the basis of "what's in it for me." I do not believe a majority of the voters will be captured by slogans or the impact of a television image or statements of endorsement from the President of the UAW or the National Association of Manufacturers.

This decision is too important. The future of freedom and the Republic — and perhaps the shape of the world — hangs in the balance.

I have repeatedly stated that in my opinion the radical liberals who would sacrifice the individual on the altar of the state are poorly equipped to understand the nature and intent of world communism.

We have all witnessed the spectacle of the Khrushchev performance at the United Nations. The memory of the Russian dictator's crude behavior in Paris lives vividly in our minds.

Whatever his reasons or motives Mr. Khrushchev destroyed the summit conferrence in Paris when he attacked and insulted the President and the poeple of the United States.

His recent appearance at the United Nations is further evidence of the truth of the conservative claim that Mr. Khrushchev does not want peace — that he is determined communisn shall conquer the world — and that as his first objective he intends to destroy the United States of America, its people, its government, it economic system and our faith in God.

At the United Nations, Mr. Khrushchev, using vulgar and intemperate language assaulted the United States. He attacked the Secretary General for being an instrument of the United States. He attempted to destroy the United Nations' effectiveness. He clearly revealed what conservatives have claimed — that the only way to get along with Khrushchev is to give in to Khrushchev.

This man's hands drip red with the blood of thousands of freedom loving patriots. The martyrs of Hungary and Poland and Czechoslovakia and the 120,000 casualties we suffered in Korea stand beyond the grave and point with accusing fingers at the Butcher of Budapest.

Millions of loyal Americans felt his presence on our soil was a desecration. And yet, the widow of an American President invited this man to her home and poured coca for Khrushchev.

Americans who love their country and who respect our honored dead have asked in agony: how could an American offer the hospitality of her home to a man who is responsible for the cold war, who has dedicated his life to destroying America, who has insulted our President and who has boasted that one day he will bury us?

The woman who opened her home to Khrushchev is a ringleader in the radical liberal movement of America — a guiding force, along with Walter Reuther and Arthur Schlesinger, Jr. in the Americans for Democratic Action and Jack Kennedy is the hand-picked candidate of this group.

I would not suggest that Mrs. Roosevelt is disloyal or that any of her companions in this movement are communist or even communist sympathizers. But it must be evident to all thinking Americans that radical liberals simply refuse to recognize the evil of communism.

When we go to the polling plac in November, it would be well to remember that communism made its greatest advances when the radical liberals were in control of the foreign policy of the United States.

I am indeed glad it was not the widow of a Republican President who poured cocoa for Khrushchev during that week when he was vilifying the United States and sneering at every concept of social and moral justice we hold in high regard. How do you stand, sir?

'Women's Vote'

Nixon And Kennedy Wooing Feminine Ballots Most Ardently

Is there a "woman's vote" — a vote which has the characteristics of a woman as differentiated from those of a man?

Can American women be viewed as voting as a block when so many millions who'll go to the polls a week from tomorrow have had the same educations as men, hold jobs side by side with men, carry identical responsibilities, are as aware as men, of the issues in this election campaign.

To the Presidential candidates, there obviously is a so - called woman's vote. Both Vice - President Nixon and Senator Kennedy are wooing women voters with an intensity never known before. Both are making special plays via "coffees" and "teas" and women on their staffs on a scale that has no parrallel in a national campaign. Reporters covering both sides are discussing the "feminine squeals" in response to the men and their wives in details that border on the nauseating.

To women in a position to judge, though — such as Mrs. Alice K. Leopold, Asst. to the Labor Secretary and Director of the Women's Bureau in the Labor Dept. — there is definitely no such thing.

In answer to my blunt question, "Is there really a woman's vote?" Mrs. Leopold hesitated only long enough to control her instinctive irritation with questions about masculine and feminine minds, then said:

"There is a woman's vote only in the sense that it is comparatively new, it is growing and becoming numerically powerful. The reasons men and women vote are deep - rooted, and the same for women as for men. Women have the identical concerns about fundamental issues as men, vote as people not as women. And for every woman who votes for strictly personal reasons, there will be a man doing the same thing.

When we elect our next President on Nov. 8, women will outvote men for the first time in a U.S. presidential election.

There is no doubt that this is potentially so. Women of voting age now number 56.1 million against 50.9 million for men, an edge of a full 5.2 million. Even when numbers of the armed forces of voting age are included, the total of women voters tops men by 3.4 million.

There is also little doubt that the potentiality will become reality a week from tomorrow. Registration reports indicate women have been registering in greater numbers than men in many areas. The time when only a minority of women eligible to vote cast their ballots is long since past.

What's more, this is no temporary trend. In our country women "normally" outlive men; the average life expectancy of a girl baby now is 72.7 years against 64.4 years for a boy child. War deaths in recent years have widened the margin between our male and female populations. Since the 1930s, immigration to our country has been predominantly female, while more men than women have been leaving.

The voting revolution we are about to witness — only 40 years after women won the right to vote — will continue, therefore.

To accept the myth that there is a definable woman's vote, one has to accept the idea of the American woman as isolated from the forces which influence the American man.

How can this be accepted when today almost 22.8 million women hold jobs and more than one of every three U.S. workers are women? How can it be backed up when today's American woman works in just about every field with today's man — and she represents 16 per cent of all workers in managerial positions, 35 per cent of all in professional and semi - professional positions, 68 per cent of those in clerical, 38 per cent of those in sales and more than one - fourth of those in factory jobs? How can it be upheld when the average homemaker is active in her community too, and increasing numbers are directly entering politics?

Women are individual voters with individual views, demands and hopes. The candidates are catering to a bloc which doesn't exist.

To The Editor:

I hope you will have the moral courage to carry this in your public forum, so that we can take a look at the other side of some of the issues you have been setting forth in your editorials, here of late. In about every other one of your papers, in your editorials you are lambasting the Democrats and Senator Kennedy as not being fit to run this country because of their platform. You say that you and the people of the south just can't stomach the platform of the Democrats, when as matter of fact, the only valid reason you have given is your animosity against the Democrats and Senator Kennedy. You say that Nixon is the only one that we can vote for, he is the friend of the South, he will give us our tidelands, states' rights and all the other fine things we desire. He is so well trained, as what you said about him just after Little Rock, will indicate. .

Let's see what you said in an editorial July 26, 1960, titled,

TWO BITTER PILLS - QUOTE

When Vice-Pres. Richard M. Nixon beat a path to the door of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York to beseech his help in drawing up the Republican platform he went a long way toward dashing any hopes for conservatism on the part of the Republican party. Instead of running on his own record, and on the more conservative record of the administration, Mr. Nixon seems to be determined to try to outdo the Democrats in drawing up a liberal big spending program. (end quote) Now why don't you tell the people the truth, and tell them that the Republican platform is just as bad as the Democrats. You can't polish and shine Dickie BOY up so the people won't know him. Let's look at some more of the things you had to say, (quote) It is difficult to see why Nixon thinks he himself should have the nomination if he is going to take dictation fom Rockefeller, even before he goes to the convention. This sort of appeasement even causes one to wonder how Nixon would deal with Premier Khrushchev of Russia, if he were elected. (end quote)

Now - MR. EDITOR - Why don't you be honest with the people, and tell them that Trickie Dick, is not fit to be president of these United States, that he is a tool of Nelson Rockefeller, Jacob Javits, Attny. Gen. Rodgers and HIS OWN N.A.A.C.P. Why did he sneak over to see Rockefeller at midnight? Well, I'll tell you. He Likes Money, as well as power.

In the meantime the president calmly plays golf. We wonder if as he plays, he considers himself something of a parallel to the infamous Nero who fiddled while Rome burned. The president, driven by the palace guard at the white house to violate his pledge to the south not to use troops, should go to Little Rock and get a first hand view of what it means to try to upset centuries-old traditions with a few thrusts of the bayonet. He should go and see the repulsive sight of a bayonet being thrust into the arm of a veteran army man, merely because the man would not run when ordered to do so. Eisenhower should go to Little Rock, and see the paratroopers inside Little Rock Central High School (some going into the girls washrooms) standing guard over minors in a manner never before perpetrated in this Country.

(Quote) In calling out federal troops to enforce integration in Little Rock he has bypassed congress, the Arkansas legislature and the duly elected governor of the state. The deplorable thing about this development is its close similarity to European totalitarianism in the 1930's—Hitler for an exampe. He latched his hatchet men onto the existing departments of national, regional and local governments and made them work his way. It plays into the hands and suits the aims of the N.A.A.C.P. and other left wing groups. (End quote.)

My friends we had better not let this religious issue becloud these issues I have called to your attention. I think they are a lot more to be dreaded than a Catholic president. We haven't had a clubbing until Nixon gets in We've already had a taste.

On that point, there is a vast and deep difference between Mr. Nixon and Mr. Kennedy. The former believes in a government over which the people can have final control. The latter, through his utterances and his platform, clearly believes that the federal government should take over more and more control of everything and everybody.

The South's desegregation troubles are not presidential issues because neither candidate could solve them as we wish even if he wanted to, nor will either try to do so.

But one of the two, Nixon or Kennedy, will be President and our whole future philosophy of federal government—which includes the opportunity of individuals and states to carry on their fights for their rights—rests on which one.

On that issue the difference between Kennedy and Nixon is exactly and precisely as clear as the difference between traveling on down the road of socialistic federalism and turning back to the road of government as a republic.

And a vote for "third electors" in Louisiana is a vote to help put Kennedy in the White House and his philosophies on the federal statute books; neither more nor less.

Back United Givers

Next Wednesday is a big day in the life of the United Givers Fund. On that day a special "task force" of 75 to 100 civic and business leaders will drop everything as far as their business and profession is concerned to go out on a clean-up campaign in an effort to complete this year's fund drive. It is significant that these 75 to 100 men are the same ones who have already devoted great amounts of time to the important job of collecting funds for the 13 health, welfare and character-building agencies that make up the United Givers Fund.

Early last week drive leaders felt that the campaign was dragging and there was considerable doubt that the goal would be reached. A comparison of this year's contributions with those of last year for the same period tends to eliminate the doubt that the goal will be achieved. It is just a matter of going ahead and getting a job done rather than dragging it out over a prolonged period.

In Thursday's report meeting a past fund campaign chairman summed up the situation thusly: "The only reason the grand total wasn't larger was because of two people. . . . the guy who has got the envelope and hasn't done anything with it, and the guy who distributed the envelope and didn't follow it up. The solicitors need to be re-activated."

There is one more individual this leader failed to mention—the rare businessman who refuses to contribute at all to United Givers. The more than 300 volunteer workers who participate in the United Givers drive hear reports of these few individuals and express shock and surprise that any business firm who thrives on the economy of our community would refuse to contribute their fair share to the agencies whose functions are so important to our society.

Solicitors and contributors alike are urged to cooperate in the United Givers effort. Not only toward the end that the goal will be reached, but that the drive will be completed by November 3 as was planned. Let's all work toward insuring the success of this one drive which eliminates an even dozen more.

Many Wheelers, Dealers

This Will Be Remembered As Presidential Election Year When Many Whistled In Dark

This will be remembered as the Presidential election year in which never so many political wheelers and dealers whistled in the dark. And, in which it will become evident on the morning of November 9, so many of them were whistling in graveyards.

It will be remembered as a year when some politicians were a shade hesitant to make predictions, when others made strident and public claims of victory and then privately engaged in ring-around-rosy talk, which revealed that they were merely indulging in conjecture when they made the claims.

It will be remembered as the year when there was no Democratic Solid South, which Democrats could ignore while they ploughed through doubtful territory; the year when there was not a single Republican gibraltar State.

It will be remembered as a year when neither candidate appeared to have presented an image to the citizenry suggesting that he was in any way a giant yet in which each was engulfed in a mass of welcomers in city after city; of wild greetings to the candidates by tumultuous, charging crowds. Bobby-soxers squelling in the presence of Kennedy, sober-sided oldsters going into estacy at the sight of Nixon.

It will be remembered as the year which started out with most poeple saying the race between Kennedy and Nixon was an unpredictable and a race at no time—at least up to now — showing any omens of succumbing to a landslide. And if it did turn out to be a landslide the wise men had their alibis ready. They were to run something like this:

"It was the undecided voters—the people who wouldn't tell how they intended to vote. They really never spoke until they got into those voting booths."

Would it be another year like 1916 when Charles Evans Hughes quickly rolled to victory in Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan and rolled up 180 electoral votes before midnight, only to hang when late returns from the then Solid South, Ohio, Kansas and the prairie States and finally California gave Woodrow Wilson the victory that even the New York Democratic newspapers had conceded to Hughes? You will have to wait until November 9 at least, to get the answer to that.

This year will be remembered, it appears, for checkerboard results, for tides arrested at State borders. When it began to appear that conditions in New York portended a sizeable plus for Kennedy in the Empire State prospective massive Republican majorities in prosperous suburbs, small towns and rural areas apparently began to build up in Pennsylvania and Illinois to counteract the Democratic urban majorities in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Chicago.

It will be remembered as the when the Democratic' coffers were fuller than the Republicans'.

It will be remembered as the year when polls could prove almost anything, and were never received with so much skepticism.

It will be remembered ast he year when never were crystal balls so cloudy; when politicians so eagerly pressed to their bosoms even faint of omens of victory, when such omens were discoverable.

It will be remembered as the year when learned, prepared speeches, "to be held for release," were largely abandoned and Presidential candidates resorted to mediocre bread-and butter speeches, some of which would have been no credit to a candidate for State legislature.

It will be a year in which the returns from the South will be most eagerly awaited. That section took its most humiliating defeat in the most radical of all Democratic National Conventions.

Rebellion against both platform and nominees bent party lines under the strain. Whether these lines have cracked enough for the Republicans carry a sizeable number of Southern States remains to be seen.

Voting habits are difficult to change in the South. No office holders of stature have bolted, most of them are working for the party and have raised their siren cry: "The Republicans are no friends of the South. We will have to work out our problems in the frame work of the Democratic party." Whether they can thus smooth-talk the Southern rebels back into line in sufficient numbers remains to be seen.

But, if, come midnight November 8, the election seems close the nation will begin to look Southward for election returns as no one in this generation has ever remembered having seen it done.

This could be the year which would be remembered because the South decided the outcome of the election.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By U.S. Senator Barry Goldwater

In these final days before the momentous election of 1960, pollsters continue to report that many Americans are undecided. It is my conviction that most Americans are making a serious attempt to penetrate the smog of campaign statements and to reach a decision which will ultimately benefit America.

I do not believe that a majority of the voters will decide the issues of 1960 on the basis of "what's in it for me." I do not believe a majority of the voters will be captured by slogans or the impact of a television image or statements of endorsement from the President of the UAW or the National Association of Manufacturers.

This decision is too important. The future of freedom and the Republic — and perhaps the shape of the world — hangs in the balance.

I have repeatedly stated that in my opinion the radical liberals who would sacrifice the individual on the altar of the state are poorly equipped to understand the nature and intent of world communism.

We have all witnessed the spectacle of the Khrushchev performance at the United Nations. The memory of the Russian dictator's crude behavior in Paris lives vividly in our minds.

Whatever his reasons or motives Mr. Khrushchev destroyed the summit conference in Paris when he attacked and insulted the President and the poeple of the United States.

His recent appearance at the United Nations is further evidence of the truth of the conservative claim that Mr. Khrushchev does not want peace — that he is determined communism shall conquer the world — and that as his first objective he intends to destroy the United States of America, its people, its government, it economic system and our faith in God.

At the United Nations, Mr. Khrushchev, using vulgar and intemperate language assaulted the United States. He attacked the Secretary General for being an instrument of the United States. He attempted to destroy the United Nations' effectiveness. He clearly revealed what conservatives have claimed — that the only way to get along with Khrushchev is to give in to Khrushchev.

This man's hands drip red with the blood of thousands of freedom loving patriots. The martyrs of Hungary and Poland and Czechoslovakia and the 120,000 casualties we suffered in Korea stand beyond the grave and point with accusing fingers at the Butcher of Budapest.

Millions of loyal Americans felt his presence on our soil was a desecration. And yet, the widow of an American President invited this man to her home and poured coca for Khrushchev.

Americans who love their country and who respect our honored dead have asked in agony: how could an American offer the hospitality of her home to a man who is responsible for the cold war, who has dedicated his life to destroying America, who has insulted our President and who has boasted that one day he will bury us?

The woman who opened her home to Khrushchev is a ringleader in the radical liberal movement of America — a guiding force, along with Walter Reuther and Arthur Schlesinger, Jr. in the Americans for Democratic Action and Jack Kennedy is the hand-picked candidate of this group.

I would not suggest that Mrs. Roosevelt is disloyal or that any of her companions in this movement are communist or even communist sympathizers. But it must be evident to all thinking Americans that radical liberals simply refuse to recognize the evil of communism.

When we go to the polling plac in November, it would be well to remember that communism made its greatest advances when the radical liberals were in control of the foreign policy of the United States.

I am indeed glad it was not the widow of a Republican President who poured cocoa for Khrushchev during that week when he was vilifying the United States and sneering at every concept of social and moral justice we hold in high regard. How do you stand, sir?

'Women's Vote'

Nixon And Kennedy Wooing Feminine Ballots Most Ardently

Is there a "woman's vote" — a vote which has the characteristics of a woman as differentiated from those of a man?

Can American women be viewed as voting as a block when so many millions who'll go to the polls a week from tomorrow have had the same educations as men, hold jobs side by side with men, carry identical responsibilities, are as aware as men, of the issues in this election campaign.

To the Presidential candidates, there obviously is a so-called woman's vote. Both Vice-President Nixon and Senator Kennedy are wooing women voters with an intensity never known before. Both are making special plays via "coffees" and "teas" and women on their staffs on a scale that has no parrallel in a national campaign. Reporters covering both sides are discussing the "feminine squeals" in response to the men and their wives in details that border on the nauseating.

To women in a position to judge, though — such as Mrs. Alice K. Leopold, Asst. to the Labor Secretary and Director of the Women's Bureau in the Labor Dept. — there is definitely no such thing.

In answer to my blunt question, "Is there really a woman's vote?" Mrs. Leopold hesitated only long enough to control her instinctive irritation with questions about masculine and feminine minds, then said:

"There is a woman's vote only in the sense that it is comparatively new, it is growing and becoming numerically powerful. The reasons men and women vote are deep-rooted, and the same for women as for men. Women have the identical concerns about fundamental issues as men, vote as people not as women. And for every woman who votes for strictly personal reasons, there will be a man doing the same thing.

When we elect our next President on Nov. 8, women will outvote men for the first time in a U.S. presidential election.

There is no doubt that this is potentially so. Women of voting age now number 56.1 million against 50.9 million for men, an edge of a full 5.2 million. Even when numbers of the armed forces of voting age are included, the total of women voters tops men by 3.4 million.

There is also little doubt that the potentiality will become reality a week from tomorrow. Registration reports indicate women have been registering in greater numbers than men in many areas. The time when only a minority of women eligible to vote cast their ballots is long since past.

What's more, this is no temporary trend. In our country women "normally" outlive men; the average life expectancy of a girl baby now is 72.7 years against 64.4 years for a boy child. War deaths in recent years have widened the margin between our male and female populations. Since the 1930s, immigration to our country has been predominantly female, while more men than women have been leaving.

The voting revolution we are about to witness — only 40 years after women won the right to vote — will continue, therefore.

To accept the myth that there is a definable woman's vote, one has to accept the idea of the American woman as isolated from the forces which influence the American man.

How can this be accepted when today almost 22.8 million women hold jobs and more than one of every three U.S. workers are women? How can it be backed up when today's American woman works in just about every field with today's man — and she represents 16 per cent of all workers in managerial positions, 35 per cent of all in professional and semi-professional positions, 68 per cent of those in clerical, 38 per cent of those in sales and more than one-fourth of those in factory jobs? How can it be upheld when the average homemaker is active in her community too, and increasing numbers are directly entering politics?

Women are individual voters with individual views, demands and hopes. The candidates are catering to a bloc which doesn't exist.

TAKES RAPS AT NIXON

Eros, La.

To The Editor:

I hope you will have the moral courage to carry this in your public forum, so that we can take a look at the other side of some of the issues you have been setting forth in your editorials, here of late. In about every other one of your papers, in your editorials you are lambasting the Democrats and Senator Kennedy as not being fit to run this country because of their platform. You say that you and the people of the south just can't stomach the platform of the Democrats, when as matter of fact, the only valid reason you have given is your animosity against the Democrats and Senator Kennedy. You say that Nixon is the only one that we can vote for, he is the friend of the South, he will give us our tidelands, states' rights and all the other fine things we desire. He is so well trained, as what you said about him just after Little Rock, will indicate. .

Let's see what you said in an editorial July 26, 1960, titled,

TWO BITTER PILLS - QUOTE

When Vice-Pres. Richard M. Nixon beat a path to the door of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York to beseech his help in drawing up the Republican platform he went a long way toward dashing any hopes for conservatism on the part of the Republican party. Instead of running on his own record, and on the more conservative record of the administration, Mr. Nixon seems to be determined to try to outdo the Democrats in drawing up a liberal big spending program. (end quote) Now why don't you tell the people the truth, and tell them that the Republican platform is just as bad as the Democrats. You can't polish and shine Dickie BOY up so the people won't know him. Let's look at some more of the things you had to say, (quote) It is difficult to see why Nixon thinks he himself should have the nomination if he is going to take dictation fom Rockefeller, even before he goes to the convention. This sort of appeasement even causes one to wonder how Nixon would deal with Premier Khrushchev of Russia, if he were elected. (end quote)

Now - MR. EDITOR - Why don't you be honest with the people, and tell them that Trickie Dick, is not fit to be president of these United States, that he is a tool of Nelson Rockefeller, Jacob Javits, Attny. Gen. Rodgers and HIS OWN N.A.A.C.P. Why did he sneak over to see Rockefeller at midnight? Well, I'll tell you. He Likes Money, as well as power.

In the meantime the president calmly plays golf. We wonder if as he plays, he considers himself something of a parallel to the infamous Nero who fiddled while Rome burned. The president, driven by the palace guard at the white house to violate his pledge to the south not to use troops, should go to Little Rock and get a first hand view of what it means to try to upset centuries-old traditions with a few thrusts of the bayonet. He should go and see the repulsive sight of a bayonet being thrust into the arm of a veteran army man, merely because the man would not run when ordered to do so. Eisenhower should go to Little Rock, and see the paratroopers inside Little Rock Central High School (some going into the girls washrooms) standing guard over minors in a manner never before perpetrated in this Country.

(Quote) In calling out federal troops to enforce integration in Little Rock he has bypassed congress, the Arkansas legislature and the duly elected governor of the state. The deplorable thing about this development is its close similarity to European totalitarianism in the 1930's—Hitler for an exampe. He latched his hatchet men onto the existing departments of national, regional and local governments and made them work his way. It plays into the hands and suits the aims of the N.A.A.C.P. and other left wing groups. (End quote.)

My friends we had better not let this religious issue becloud these issues I have called to your attention. I think they are a lot more to be dreaded than a Catholic president. We haven't had a clubbing until Nixon gets in. We've already had a taste.

12 AND 13 FAVORED

New Orleans, La.

To the Editor:

International House, which has done much for our industrial and economic advance, urges all Louisianians to vote on November 8 FOR Amendments 12 and 13. These laws will do a great deal to establish and keep industry in Louisiana. They are non-controversial. Governor Davis has said they will benefit our entire economy and create new jobs, new payrolls and prosperity for Louisiana. Statewide industrial, manufacturing, shipping and labor circles endorse them.

We believe Amendments 12 and 13 are vital to our industrial progress. We strongly urge people to vote for both. Let's make Louisiana an industrial state.

Stand On 55 Proposed Amendments Given

THE NEWS-STAR AND WORLD has given careful study to each of the 55 constitutional amendments which will be on the ballot November 8th. While the total is large, voters will have ample time at the polls if they will familiarize themselves with the amendments before going to the polls and take with them a check list covering their own decisions. Published on this page also is a list of the amendments, by numbers only, with the position of the News-Star—World on each—voters of course may change it to suit their own judgment as they wish.

No. 1

LSU Board of Supervisors

NO

This is probably the most controversial of all of the fifty-five proposed amendments to the Constitution of Louisiana that the voters are called upon to pass on November 8.

This amendment if passed would increase the number of members of the Board of Supervisors of LSU from 15 to 20 and would reduce the terms of office of the members from 14 to 9 years. It further provides that no member who has served five years or more would be eligible for reappointment. The members now on the board would serve out their present terms under the proposal.

Louisiana State University is "under the direction, control, supervision and management" of its Board of Supervisors. The board is now made up of 14 members appointed by the governor for 14-year terms, plus the governor as ex-officio member.

The arrangement for the board as now constituted was set up in the Constitution by an amendment passed in 1940.

The proposal of this amendment is that the board shall consist of 18 members appointed by the governor plus the governor and the president of the LSU Alumni Federation as ex-officio members. The terms of office of the new appointees would be 9 instead of 14 years.

It is certainly possible to make out a case against the length of terms of appointment to the Board of Supervisors. Terms of 14 years with eligibility for reappointment can cover a long time. This length of terms can be both an asset and a liability to the board. But the News-Star-World feels that this is not the compelling consideration in this proposed amendment.

Since the adoption of the present provisions of the Constitution in 1940 with respect to the Board of Supervisors, LSU has made great strides as one of the important state universities in the country. The taint of political control and domination has been erased. With this purging of even the appearance of political control, LSU has grown in stature in academic circles throughout the country. It has thus been able to attract to its campuses distinguished and capable educators and scholars who come with a feeling of security and pride. It is the educators and scholars of a university that are at the bottom of making it great.

We believe that any step now taken that would have even the appearance of placing LSU under political domination and control could and would do our state university great damage. All state supported universities throughout the country continuously have had to guard against political control or even the appearance of political control. Even if the amendment were passed, the present governor could not appoint a majority to the board but a succeeding governor could.

The News-Star-World believes that the best interests of LSU and therefore of the people if this state lie in defeating proposed amendment No. 1.

Vote "No" on No. 1.

No. 2-5

Wild Life and Fisheries Comm., Highways, Institutions, and Public Welfare Boards

NO

Amendments Nos. 2, 3, 4, and 5 propose to repeal the provisions of the Constitution on the wild life and fisheries commissions, the board of highways, the board of institutions, and the board of public welfare. Under these proposals the boards would come back into existence as statutory boards. This same attempt was made in 1956. It had the purpose of granting each new governor the right to appoint all of the members of these boards. Under the existing constitutional provisions, the new governor, during his term of office, gets to appoint a working majority.

We opposed these amendments in 1956, the voters of the state defeated them, and we oppose them in 1960.

No. 6-7

Insurance Commissioner, Custodian of Voting Machines

NO

These two amendments propose to place the offices of commissioner of insurance and of custodian of voting machines into the Constitution. Their powers and duties are now contained in the statutory law of Louisiana. They were elected for the first time in 1960. Prior to 1956 the functions of these two offices were under the control of the secretary of state.

The 1958 proposed constitutional amendments contained one attempting to make the office of commissioner of insurance a constitutional office as distinguished from a statutory office. We feel today as we did in 1958, that if these two offices were placed in the Constitution as elective offices, it would make the much needed administrative reorganization in Louisiana more difficult.

We recommend that the electorate vote "No" on Nos. 6 and 7.

No. 8

Toledo Bend Dam

YES

TOLEDO BEND DAM

The purpose of this proposed amendment is to make possible the construction of the Toledo Bend Dam on the Sabine River. In doing so, it would give the Sabine River Authority constitutional status. Toledo Bend Dam would create a lake along the Sabine River, extending from Vernon Parish on the south through Sabine and DeSoto Parishes to the north on the Louisiana side, and from Newton County through Sabine, Shelby and to Panola County on the Texas side.

The dam is proposed to be constructed at Toledo Bend by the Sabine River Authority of Louisiana in conjunction with a similar authority of Texas. The Louisiana Authority would be empowered to issue Fifteen Million Dollars in revenue bonds. A matching amount would come from Texas. The department of public works would make available to the Louisiana Authority Fifteen Million Dollars from the surplus revenue from the Confederate Veterans ¾ mill ad valorem tax. A similar amount would be provided by Texas.

The dam's reservoir would cover some 101,000 acres in Louisiana and some 80,000 acres in Texas.

The project is conceived to be self-supporting through the sale of electrical power and water. Electric companies have given assurances of the purchase of the electrical power from the project. From the sale of this power the revenue bonds would be retired.

Though the realization of this project. which has been so dear to most of the civic-minded people of the area affected, will eliminate many acres of valuable timberland; nevertheless. The News-Star-World feels that its benefits outweigh the objections to it.

The feasibility of the undertaking has been subjected to the most comprehensive engineering studies. There are surprisingly few families living within the area affected, and no difficulty in relocating them is anticipated.

The News-Star-World believes that this project, which will provide an unusual recreational area as well as serving the purpose of stabilizing the flow of water through the Sabine River, will give a shot in the arm to an area of our state that has felt the hard effects of the removal of Fort Polk.

We recommend to our readers the approval of this constitutional amendment.

No. 9

Voting Qualifications

YES

The purpose of proposed constitutional amendment No. 9 is to provide new and stricter qualifications for the right to vote. It outlines six elements of bad character that would disqualify a person from registering. They have to do with the conviction of a felony, the conviction of misdemeanors within the five years prior to the date of attempting to register, and within one year of the date of attempting to register. If the applicant for registration has lived in common law within five years from the date of the application to register, he or she would be disqualified. or if a woman has given birth to an illegitimate child prior to five years of such application, or if a man has been proven or acknowledged to be the father of an illegitimate child within such period of time, they would be ineligible to vote. The amendment would likewise eliminate the registration of illiterates without removing from the rolls any illiterates who are presently registered.

The News-Star-World has felt through the years that strict voter qualification laws are a necessity of good government. Though, as in the case of most efforts in the direction of stricter voter qualification, there may be some conceivable objection to certain aspects of the amendment, we believe that it is a step in the right direction and therefore recommend that our readers vote "Yes" on No. 9.

No. 10

Parish Charter Commission

YES

Proposed constitutional amendment No. 10 would authorize, but not require, parishes to set up a parish charter commission to provide for a commission form of government as distinguished from a police jury form. The amendment would not affect East Baton Rouge, Jefferson, and Orleans Parishes which do not now have a police jury form of government. This charter commission could be established upon petition of 15 per cent of the electors of the parish or on the police jurys own initiative after the commission form of government had been submitted to the voters of the parish for approval, together with the question of abolishing the police jury form. Actually, such an election can be held now on petition of 15 per cent of the voters. The amendment proposed to give the police jury the authority to call such an election also.

The amendment would not change the form of government in any parish. It would simply make it easier for the people to change their form of government from the police jury system to the commission form if the people so desired.

Vote "Yes" on No. 10.

No. 11

Integration of Public Agency

YES

Prposed amendment No. 11 provides that when any tax-supported facility of any political subdivision of the state, except school boards and districts, is ordered integrated, that agency would cease to be a function of government, its board would be disbanded, and its taxes used to pay off its indebtedness.

This is one of the segregation pieces of legislation of the recent session of the legislature. It is concerned for the most part with public recreational facilities which might be ordered integrated.

We believe that this amendment serves the best interests of all of the people of our state, and we recommend it to our readers.

No. 12-13

Tax Exemption on Imports and Exports, and Interstate Commerce shipments

YES

The purpose of proposed amendments Nos. 12 and 13 is to insure that tax exemptions will be granted to raw materials imported into the State of Louisiana while they are stockpiled, either awaiting transfer into the manufacturing process of a Louisiana business, or awaiting export from Louisiana. The same exemption would apply to property being shipped through the state to another state.

This type of property has not been taxed in the past in Louisiana. A recent ruling of the Louisiana Tax Commission indicates that there is a possibility of the imposition of ad valorem taxes on raw materials stockpiled in this state for manufacture or for shipment to other states.

The economic life of Louisiana is now well tied into our port facilities and into the importation of raw materials in our state either for manufacture into finished products or for shipment to other states.

Louisiana would be placed in an impossible competitive position if an ad valorem tax were levied upon these types of properties. Such properties are not taxed in our neighboring states. We recommend that the voters approve Nos. 12 and 13.

No. 14

Parish Residence Requirements for Voting

YES

If this amendment is enacted into law, the parish residence requirement for registration to vote would be reduced from one year to six months. A 1956 amendment approved by the voters reduced the state residence requirement from two years to one year. This reduction of parish residence from one year to six months is in line with the prior amendment, and is consistent with changes that have been made throughout the United States in recent years requiring shorter residence in a parish (county) than is required for residence in the state itself for voting.

Under the present provisions a person may live in the state more than the length of time required for voting in this state, and yet be unable to register because he has not lived in any one parish a sufficient length of time.

Vote "Yes" on No. 14.

No. 15

Appointments of Registrars of Voters

YES

Amendment No. 15 would repeal the prohibition against appointment of registrars of voters to any other office within 12 months after vacating the office of registrar. The present prohibition against a registrar being elected to another office before 12 months have elapsed would be continued.

This is another one of the integration enactments of the recent legislature. It is aimed at enabling a registrar to be appointed to another job if he is removed from his office by federal court order.

We recommend the approval of this amendment.

No. 16

Write-in Candidates

YES

This proposal with respect to write-in candidates would lengthen the time between the date a write-in candidate qualifies and the date of the election. Only ten days is now provided for by the Constitution. This amendment would give six weeks' notice in a general state election and approximately 60 days in a congressional election. The change is desirable because it would allow other candidates for the office to know who their opposition is from six to nine weeks prior to the actual voting.

Vote "Yes" on No. 16.

No. 17

Representation of E. Baton Rouge and Jefferson

YES

Proposed amendment No. 17 would provide for two additional representatives from East Baton Rouge Parish and from Jefferson Parish in the Louisiana House of Representatives. Each now has two representatives.

It is true that there should be a re-apportionment of the entire state for the purpose of representation in the legislature; nevertheless, this has not been done and the two parishes here involved are by far the most under-represented parishes in the state. Though this approach is piece-meal, it nevertheless reduces two of the most glaring inequities in apportionment.

Vote "Yes" on No. 17.

No. 18

St. Bernard Navigable Waterway and Terminal District

NO

No. 18 proposes to place into the Constitution the statutory provisions relative to the St. Bernard Navigable Waterway and Terminal District. The legislation creating this district goes into effect January 1, 1961, regardless of whether the amendment passes, and there is no necessity for the amendment.

Vote "No" on No. 18.

No. 19

Election of Governor

YES

ELECTION OF GOVERNOR

The restriction against a governor of Louisiana succeeding himself would be made more explicit by this amendment. It will be recalled that in the last gubernatorial campaign the question arose as to whether or not a governor could be his own immediate successor if he resigned before his term ended, and then was elected governor for another four years. Though the question should not have arisen, it did in fact arise, and this amendment would make the Constitution clear on the point.

Vote "Yes" on No. 19.

No. 20

Waiver of State's Immunity from Liability

YES

Amendment No. 20 is a technical amendment to clarify the results of two Louisiana Supreme Court decisions of 1959, which held that the legislatore is not authorized to waive the state's immunity from liability. In short, a person, even though authorized to sue the state, has no remedy since the sovereign immunity of the state cannot be waived, leaving no possibility of a judicial determination of a claim against the state. It does not change the necessity for special appropriations by the legislature for money to cover any such judgments obtained.

Vote "Yes" on No. 20.

No. 21

Sixteenth Section School Lands

NO

No. 21 provides that revenues derived from the sale of sixteenth section or indemnity lands would be paid directly to the school boards of parishes in which the sections are located in proportion to the percentage of such sections lying in each parish, rather than the percentage of the township within which such a section is situated that lies within a given parish.

These sixteenth section or indemnity lands were granted to the states by Congress in the early nineteenth century for the support of public schools.

The News-Star-World feels that the present basis of allocation of these lands to the various parishes is equitable, the present system has worked well, no significant reason has been advanced for changing it, and a similar proposal was defeated in 1958.

Vote "No" on No. 21.

No. 22

St. Bernard Judicial District

NO

St. Bernard and Plaquemines Parishes now make up the 25th Judicial District of Louisiana. The 1960 legislature increased the number of judges for this district from one to two. This amendment would split up the two parishes into two judicial districts with one judge each—but it would provide for an additional district attorney — one for each parish. Now there is one district attorney for the two parishes. The case load for these two parishes did not indicate the necessity for a second judge. There is no need for the expense of a second district attorney.

Vote "No" on No. 22.

No. 23

Webster Judicial District

YES

Bossier and Webster Parishes now comprise the 26th Judicial District. There are two judges for the district—one from Bossier Parish and one from Webster Parish. This amendment proposes to split the district into two judicial districts leaving one composed of each parish. It will require no additional judges but will require an additional district attorney. The case load of this judicial district justifies the split. Both parishes are growing industrially and in population. The amendment is supported generally by the authorities in both parishes. It should be passed.

Vote "Yes" on No. 23.

No. 24

Lafourche Judicial District

YES

This amendment proposes for Lafourche and Terrebonne Parishes what No. 23 proposes for Bossier and Webster Parishes. Based on case load, population and other factors, it is entitled to the same treatment as No. 23.

Vote "Yes" on No. 24.

No. 25

St. Tammany Judicial District

YES

This amendment in turn proposes for St. Tammany and Washington Parishes a split of a judicial district in the same fashion as Nos. 23 and 24. The same factors exist and the amendment is entitled to the same treatment.

Vote "Yes" on No. 25.

No. 26

Appellate Jurisdiction of Courts

YES

This is a technical amendment to the constitutional provisions on appellate jurisdiction of courts. In 1958 the voters approved an amendment putting into effect an extensive reorganization of the state's judiciary. Among other changes a new court of appeals was added, effective July 1, 1960. This proposed amendment will distribute appeals taken prior to July 1, 1960 to the four courts on an equitable basis.

Vote "Yes" on No. 26.

No. 27

Establishment of Paternity

NO

This is a glaring example of a confused effort to amend the Constitution. Its purpose was to grant the juvenile court of Orleans Parish jurisdiction to pass on the establishment or disavowal of the paternity of children. A similar amendment giving this authority to all juvenile courts of the state was lost in the legislature for some undetermined reason. This extended jurisdiction was a proposal of the Department of Public Welfare. But in writing the amendment numerous mistakes were made. For instance the proposal would reduce the number of judges of the juvenile court in Orleans Parish. This was never intended by anyone. It is important that this proposal be defeated.

Vote "No" on No. 27.

No. 28

Golden Meadow City Court

NO

The purpose of this amendment is to establish a City Court for Golden Meadow, Louisiana. This town does not meet the size requirements for a City Court under the Constitution as now written. Exceptions such as these should not be made. If the present constitutional provisions applicable all over the state are now incorrect, they should be changed. The voters should not be called upon to establish piecemeal exceptions.

Vote "No" on No. 28.

No. 29

Tax Exemption on Boats Using Diesel Fuel

NO

This amendment would exempt boats of 1,200 horsepower or less, that burn diesel fuel, from ad alorem taxes. No reason that amounts to anything but a windfall to such boat owners has been advanced for such an amendment.

Vote "No" on No. 29.

No. 30

Homes for Aged in Assumption and Lafourche

NO

The purpose of this amendment is to authorize Assumption and Lafourche Parishes to levy a two - cent sales tax, if approved by the voters of these parishes, to construct and maintain homes for the aged. There is present authority for parishes to levy taxes to construct and operate such homes. No necessity for this amendment has been shown.

Vote "No" on No. 30.

No. 31

Local Tax to Support Nicholls College

YES

This amendment would authorize the eight parishes which supply most of the students for Nicholls College at Thibodaux to levy a one-mill tax with the approval of the taxpayers involved to be used exclusively for capital improvements such as dormitories on the campus of Nichols.

Vote "Yes" on No. 31.

No. 32

Tax Exemption on Farm Implements

YES

Amendment No. 32 would exempt agricultural implements, machinery and equipment used exclusively for agricultural purposes from state and local ad valorem taxes. There has been a provision in the Constitution for many years, making an exemption up to $500.00.

At the present time there is no real effort on a statewide basis to tax the farm implements that would be exempt from ad valorem taxes by this amendment. As a matter of fact, of the paltry sum that does come in from the taxation of farm implements 40 per cent of it comes from two parishes of the state. Thirty-one of the state's 64 parishes had no agricultural equipment assessed in 1959.

Under these circumstances we feel that the practice should be made uniform throughout the state and that the only practicable method of making the assessment practice uniform as relates to farm implements is to exempt them completely. There are other cogent reasons that can be advanced for the exemption proposed here, but we feel that the factor just mentioned is significant enough for the passage of the amendment.

Vote "Yes" on No. 32.

No. 33

Refund of Motor Fuel Taxes

YES

This amendment would extend the provisions for the refund of motor fuel taxes to fuel used in stationary motors employed for agricultural purposes. Such refunds are now available to users of motor fuels in tractors, fishing boats, and aircraft. It is proper that fuel used in these stationary motors should be included in the refund arrangement.

Vote "Yes" on No. 33.

No. 34

Tax Exemption on Agricultural Aircraft

NO

The proposal here is to exempt from property taxes all aircraft used solely for agricultural purposes. The exemption would include all hangars, machine shops and equipment used to service such aircraft.

No compelling reason has been advanced for such a preferred treatment.

Vote "No" on No. 34.

No. 35

Gas Utility Districts

NO

This amendment proposes to give to the legislature authority to grant parishes the power to create gas utility districts which could in turn construct and operate revenue producing gas public utilities. The 1960 legislature has given parishes such authority. The effort here is to give constitutional dignity to the legislative authority that has been granted. The need for all of this is questionable.

Vote "No" on No. 35.

No. 36

Morgan City Port Bonding Authority

NO

This amendment would grant the Morgan City Harbor and Terminal District the right to issue Twenty Million Dollars in bonds secured by the full faith and credit of the state. The district can now issue bonds. This is an effort to have the state pay them if the district defaults.

Vote "No" on No. 36.

No. 37-38

Investment of Special 2-Mill and Special 3-Mill Tax Funds by New Orleans

YES

These two amendments would authorize New Orleans to invest the proceeds of its two-mill sewerage and drainage improvement tax and its three-mill tax for construction of water, sewerage and drainage facilities into obligations of the United States whenever for short periods of time these proceeds are not being used. Additional revenues would accrue from what would otherwise be idle funds not immediately needed. The proposal is sound, it has substantial backing in New Orleans.

Vote "Yes" on Nos. 37 and 38.

No. 39

International Trade Mart

YES

This amendment would authorize the City of New Orleans to issue revenue bonds to provide funds for the construction and operation of an international trade mart. The bonds would be paid solely out of the rentals and fees collected for the use of the mart's facilities. At the present time the trade mart in New Orleans is operated by a non-profit organization. Larger facilities are now needed by the mart which is a vital asset in promoting trade for Louisiana.

Vote "Yes" on No. 39.

No. 40

Sale of Ponchartrain Beach Area

NO

This proposal would grant the Orleans levee board authority to sell a portion of the Pontchartrain Beach area solely for the operation of an amusement park. The matter is now being handled through lease arrangements. No significant reason for changing the existing arrangement has been adanced.

Vote "No" on No. 40.

No. 41

Moisant International Airport

NO

This amendment, if passed, would authorize the city of New Orleans to issue revenue bonds for the construction of improvements at Moisant International Airport. The bonds would not constitute part of New Orleans' indebtedness. The airport is administered by the New Orleans Aviation Board, an agency of the city. It is financed by the city. The Board itself has no bonded debt. What is proposed here is New Orleans airport financing comparable to the financing —by revenue bonds— that built the magnificent New Orleans railroad union station.

Vote "Yes" on No. 41.

No. 42

New Orleans Port Nominations

NO

This amendment would enlarge the number of organizations now authorized to submit nominations for vacancies on the Board of Commissioners of the Port of New Orleans. From a list of such nominations the governor fills the vacancy. No real reason for the amendment exists. The present arrangement works well and should not be changed or enlarged.

Vote "No" on No. 42.

No. 43

Industrial Canal Bridge and Tunnel Authority

NO

Proposal No. 43 would create an industrial canal bridge and tunnel authority to construct a toll bridge or tunnel across the industrial canal in New Orleans. The new federal Interstate 10 will cross this canal at the approximate location of this proposed toll facility and then there would be a duplication of facilities. This proposal is completely without feasibility.

Vote "No" on No. 43.

No. 44

Southern University Branch at New Orleans

YES

This amendment is designed to ensure that the New Orleans branch of Southern University will remain a part of Southern University rather than being set up later as a separate college by legislative act. The principle involved is sound.

Vote "Yes" on No. 44.

No. 45

Civil Service for Firemen

NO

The provisions of this amendment would require all paid firemen in the municipalities with populations between 1,000 and 13,000 and in parishes and fire protection districts to be included under civil service. There is no sound principle of government that can justify this encroachment of the state further into local government.

Vote "No" on No. 45.

No. 46

Civil Service Positions

YES

This amendment would have the effect of preventing a defeated public official from having his unclassified employees placed in classified service under Civil Service prior to his going out of office. This would be accomplished by requiring a six months' notice before placing unclassified appointive offices and positions in classified civil service.

Vote "Yes" on No. 46.

No. 47

Greater Krotz Springs Port Commission

NO

This amendment, if passed, would place the State of Louisiana in the position of having to pay up to Fifteen Million Dollars in bonds of the Greater Krotz Springs Port Commission if there were default in payment. The News-Star-World does not believe that the full faith and credit of the state should be pledged to bonds for such purely local purposes.

Vote "No" on No. 47.

No. 48-50

Avoyelles Parish, South Louisiana and Concordia Parish Port Commission

YES

The proposals relative to the Avoyelles Parish Port Commission, the South Louisiana Port Commission, and the Concordia Parish Port Commission are different from No. 47 in that the credit of the State of Louisiana is not involved. They are local in nature, and there appers to be no sound objection to them.

Vote "Yes" on Nos. 48, 49 and 50.

No. 51

St. Charles Parish Public Improvement District

NO

This amendment, if passed, would grant the St. Charles Parish Public Improvement District sweeping powers to construct recreational facilities, airports, lay out subdivisions. It could issue Thirty Million Dollars in bonds without voter approval. No sound reason for granting such sweeping authorities has been advanced.

Vote "No" on No. 51.

No. 52

Municipal Certificates of Indebtedness

YES

The purpose of this proposal is to permit municipalities and other subdivisions to pledge their full faith and credit to the payment of certificates of indebtedness which are issued against pledged special assessments for constructing, paving and improving roads or streets or similar works of public improvement. It is common practice to issue these certificates of indebtedness. This amendment will tend to make them sell at a lower interest rate.

Vote "Yes" on No. 52.

No. 53

Zoning in Calcasieu Parish

YES

This amendment, if passed, will enlarge the zoning authority of Calcasieu Parish that was passed in a constitutional amendment of 1958. The enlargement would permit the parish to zone subdivisions approved for loans by the Federal Housing Authority and the Veterans Administration. Calcasieu Parish needs this authority.

Vote "Yes" on No. 53.

No. 54

Zoning in Rapides and Bossier Parishes

YES

The purpose of No. 54 is to give to Bossier and Rapides Parishes direct zoning powers. As The News-Star-World has stated before in connection with such proposed constitutional amendments, there is need for this type of authority in most of the parishes of the state. There should be a comprehensive amendment covering all of the state's parishes. Until that is done, the voters should approve such amendments as this. The two parishes here involved are experiencing industrial, residential, and commercial growth that makes the authority necessary now.

Vote "Yes" on No. 54.

No. 55

Retirement of Judges

YES

This amendment is designed to reduce the mandatory retirement age of judges to 75. It was so set in the 1921 Constitution. A 1936 amendment increased it to 80. This amendment would restore the original retirement age and would bring within its provisions family courts, municipal courts and traffic courts if they are courts of record.

Judges now on the bench could remain there until they are 80 or until they have had 20 years judicial service.

The amendment is well thought out and is entitled to the support of the voters.

Vote "Yes" on No. 55.

Stand On 55 Proposed Amendments Given

THE NEWS-STAR AND WORLD has given careful study to each of the 55 constitutional amendments which will be on the ballot November 8th. While the total is large, voters will have ample time at the polls if they will familiarize themselves with the amendments before going to the polls and take with them a check list covering their own decisions. Published on this page also is a list of the amendments, by numbers only, with the position of the News-Star—World on each—voters of course may change it to suit their own judgment as they wish.

No. 1 LSU Board of Supervisors

NO

This is probably the most controversial of all of the fifty-five proposed amendments to the Constitution of Louisiana that the voters are called upon to pass on November 8.

This amendment if passed would increase the number of members of the Board of Supervisors of LSU from 15 to 20 and would reduce the terms of office of the members from 14 to 9 years. It further provides that no member who has served five years or more would be eligible for reappointment. The members now on the board would serve out their present terms under the proposal.

Louisiana State University is "under the direction, control, supervision and management" of its Board of Supervisors. The board is now made up of 14 members appointed by the governor for 14-year terms, plus the governor as ex-officio member.

The arrangement for the board as now constituted was set up in the Constitution by an amendment passed in 1940.

The proposal of this amendment is that the board shall consist of 18 members appointed by the governor plus the governor and the president of the LSU Alumni Federation as ex-officio members. The terms of office of the new appointees would be 9 instead of 14 years.

It is certainly possible to make out a case against the length of terms of appointment to the Board of Supervisors. Terms of 14 years with eligibility for reappointment can cover a long time. This length of terms can be both an asset and a liability to the board. But the News-Star-World feels that this is not the compelling consideration in this proposed amendment.

Since the adoption of the present provisions of the Constitution in 1940 with respect to the Board of Supervisors, LSU has made great strides as one of the important state universities in the country. The taint of political control and domination has been erased. With this purging of even the appearance of political control, LSU has grown in stature in academic circles throughout the country. It has thus been able to attract to its campuses distinguished and capable educators and scholars who come with a feeling of security and pride. It is the educators and scholars of a university that are at the bottom of making it great.

We believe that any step now taken that would have even the appearance of placing LSU under political domination and control could and would do our state university great damage. All state supported universities throughout the country continuously have had to guard against political control or even the appearance of political control. Even if the amendment were passed, the present governor could not appoint a majority to the board but a succeeding governor could.

The News-Star-World believes that the best interests of LSU and therefore of the people if this state lie in defeating proposed amendment No. 1.

Vote "No" on No. 1.

No. 2-5 Wild Life and Fisheries Comm., Highways, Institutions, and Public Welfare Boards

NO

Amendments Nos. 2, 3, 4, and 5 propose to repeal the provisions of the Constitution on the wild life and fisheries commissions, the board of highways, the board of institutions, and the board of public welfare. Under these proposals the boards would come back into existence as statutory boards. This same attempt was made in 1956. It had the purpose of granting each new governor the right to appoint all of the members of these boards. Under the existing constitutional provisions, the new governor, during his term of office, gets to appoint a working majority.

We opposed these amendments in 1956, the voters of the state defeated them, and we oppose them in 1960.

No. 6-7 Insurance Commissioner, Custodian of Voting Machines

NO

These two amendments propose to place the offices of commissioner of insurance and of custodian of voting machines into the Constitution. Their powers and duties are now contained in the statutory law of Louisiana. They were elected for the first time in 1960. Prior to 1956 the functions of these two offices were under the control of the secretary of state.

The 1958 proposed constitutional amendments contained one attempting to make the office of commissioner of insurance a constitutional office as distinguished from a statutory office. We feel today as we did in 1958, that if these two offices were placed in the Constitution as elective offices, it would make the much needed administrative reorganization in Louisiana more difficult.

We recommend that the electorate vote "No" on Nos. 6 and 7.

No. 8 Toledo Bend Dam

YES

TOLEDO BEND DAM

The purpose of this proposed amendment is to make possible the construction of the Toledo Bend Dam on the Sabine River. In doing so, it would give the Sabine River Authority constitutional status. Toledo Bend Dam would create a lake along the Sabine River, extending from Vernon Parish on the south through Sabine and DeSoto Parishes to the north on the Louisiana side, and from Newton County through Sabine, Shelby and to Panola County on the Texas side.

The dam is proposed to be constructed at Toledo Bend by the Sabine River Authority of Louisiana in conjunction with a similar authority of Texas. The Louisiana Authority would be empowered to issue Fifteen Million Dollars in revenue bonds. A matching amount would come from Texas. The department of public works would make available to the Louisiana Authority Fifteen Million Dollars from the surplus revenue from the Confederate Veterans ¾ mill ad valorem tax. A similar amount would be provided by Texas.

The project is conceived to be self-supporting through the sale of electrical power and water. Electric companies have given assurances of the purchase of the electrical power from the project. From the sale of this power the revenue bonds would be retired.

Though the realization of this project, which has been so dear to most of the civic-minded people of the area affected, will eliminate many acres of valuable timberland; nevertheless, The News-Star-World feels that its benefits outweigh the objections to it.

The feasibility of the undertaking has been subjected to the most comprehensive engineering studies. There are surprisingly few families living within the area affected, and no difficulty in relocating them is anticipated.

The News-Star-World believes that this project, which will provide an unusual recreational area as well as serving the purpose of stabilizing the flow of water through the Sabine River, will give a shot in the arm to an area of our state that has felt the hard effects of the removal of Fort Polk.

We recommend to our readers the approval of this constitutional amendment.

No. 9 Voting Qualifications

YES

The purpose of proposed constitutional amendment No. 9 is to provide new and stricter qualifications for the right to vote. It outlines six elements of bad character that would disqualify a person from registering. They have to do with the conviction of a felony, the conviction of misdemeanors within the five years prior to the date of attempting to register, and within one year of the date of attempting to register. If the applicant for registration has lived in common law within five years from the date of the application to register, he or she would be disqualified, or if a woman has given birth to an illegitimate child prior to five years of such application, or if a man has been proven or acknowledged to be the father of an illegitimate child within such period of time, they would be ineligible to vote. The amendment would likewise eliminate the registration of illiterates without removing from the rolls any illiterates who are presently registered.

The News-Star-World has felt through the years that strict voter qualification laws are a necessity of good government. Though, as in the case of most efforts in the direction of stricter voter qualification, there may be some conceivable objection to certain aspects of the amendment, we believe that it is a step in the right direction and therefore recommend that our readers vote "Yes" on No. 9.

No. 10 Parish Charter Commission

YES

Proposed constitutional amendment No. 10 would authorize, but not require, parishes to set up a parish charter commission to provide for a commission form of government as distinguished from a police jury form. The amendment would not affect East Baton Rouge, Jefferson, and Orleans Parishes which do not now have a police jury form of government. This charter commission could be established upon petition of 15 per cent of the electors of the parish or on the police jurys own initiative after the commission form of government had been submitted to the voters of the parish for approval, together with the question of abolishing the police jury form. Actually, such an election can be held now on petition of 15 per cent of the voters. The amendment proposed to give the police jury the authority to call such an election also.

The amendment would not change the form of government in any parish. It would simply make it easier for the people to change their form of government from the police jury system to the commission form if the people so desired.

Vote "Yes" on No. 10.

No. 11 Integration of Public Agency

YES

Prposed amendment No. 11 provides that when any tax-supported facility of any political subdivision of the state, except school boards and districts, is ordered integrated, that agency would cease to be a function of government, its board would be disbanded, and its taxes used to pay off its indebtedness.

This is one of the segregation pieces of legislation of the recent session of the legislature. It is concerned for the most part with public recreational facilities which might be ordered integrated.

We believe that this amendment serves the best interests of all of the people of our state, and we recommend it to our readers.

No. 12-13 Tax Exemption on Imports and Exports, and Interstate Commerce shipments

YES

The purpose of proposed amendments Nos. 12 and 13 is to insure that tax exemptions will be granted to raw materials imported into the State of Louisiana while they are stockpiled, either awaiting transfer into the manufacturing process of a Louisiana business, or awaiting export from Louisiana. The same exemption would apply to property being shipped through the state to another state.

This type of property has not been taxed in the past in Louisiana. A recent ruling of the Louisiana Tax Commission indicates that there is a possibility of the imposition of ad valorem taxes on raw materials stockpiled in this state for manufacture or for shipment to other states.

The economic life of Louisiana is now well tied into our port facilities and into the importation of raw materials in our state either for manufacture into finished products or for shipment to other states.

Louisiana would be placed in an impossible competitive position if an ad valorem tax were levied upon these types of properties. Such properties are not taxed in our neighboring states. We recommend that the voters approve Nos. 12 and 13.

No. 14 Parish Residence Requirements for Voting

YES

If this amendment is enacted into law, the parish residence requirement for registration to vote would be reduced from one year to six months. A 1956 amendment approved by the voters reduced the state residence requirement from two years to one year. This reduction of parish residence from one year to six months is in line with the prior amendment, and is consistent with changes that have been made throughout the United States in recent years requiring shorter residence in a parish (county) than is required for residence in the state itself for voting.

Under the present provisions a person may live in the state more than the length of time required for voting in this state, and yet be unable to register because he has not lived in any one parish a sufficient length of time.

Vote "Yes" on No. 14.

No. 15 Appointments of Registrars of Voters

YES

Amendment No. 15 would repeal the prohibition against appointment of registrars of voters to any other office within 12 months after vacating the office of registrar. The present prohibition against a registrar being elected to another office before 12 months have elapsed would be continued.

This is another one of the integration enactments of the recent legislature. It is aimed at enabling a registrar to be appointed to another job if he is removed from his office by federal court order.

We recommend the approval of this amendment.

No. 16 Write-in Candidates

YES

This proposal with respect to write-in candidates would lengthen the time between the date a write-in candidate qualifies and the date of the election. Only ten days is now provided for by the Constitution. This amendment would give six weeks' notice in a general state election and approximately 60 days in a congressional election. The change is desirable because it would allow other candidates for the office to know who their opposition is from six to nine weeks prior to the actual voting.

Vote "Yes" on No. 16.

No. 17 Representation of E. Baton Rouge and Jefferson

YES

Proposed amendment No. 17 would provide for two additional representatives from East Baton Rouge Parish and from Jefferson Parish in the Louisiana House of Representatives. Each now has two representatives.

It is true that there should be a re-apportionment of the entire state for the purpose of representation in the legislature; nevertheless, this has not been done and the two parishes here involved are by far the most under-represented parishes in the state. Though this approach is piece-meal, it nevertheless reduces two of the most glaring inequities in apportionment.

Vote "Yes" on No. 17.

No. 18 St. Bernard Navigable Waterway and Terminal District

NO

No. 18 proposes to place into the Constitution the statutory provisions relative to the St. Bernard Navigable Waterway and Terminal District. The legislation creating this district goes into effect January 1, 1961, regardless of whether the amendment passes, and there is no necessity for the amendment.

Vote "No" on No. 18.

No. 19 Election of Governor

YES

ELECTION OF GOVERNOR

The restriction against a governor of Louisiana succeeding himself would be made more explicit by this amendment. It will be recalled that in the last gubernatorial campaign the question arose as to whether or not a governor could be his own immediate successor if he resigned before his term ended, and then was elected governor for another four years. Though the question should not have arisen, it did in fact arise, and this amendment would make the Constitution clear on the point.

Vote "Yes" on No. 19.

No. 20 Waiver of State's Immunity from Liability

YES

Amendment No. 20 is a technical amendment to clarify the results of two Louisiana Supreme Court decisions of 1959, which held that the legislatore is not authorized to waive the state's immunity from liability. In short, a person, even though authorized to sue the state, has no remedy since the sovereign immunity of the state cannot be waived, leaving no possibility of a judicial determination of a claim against the state. It does not change the necessity for special appropriations by the legislature for money to cover any such judgments obtained.

Vote "Yes" on No. 20.

No. 21 Sixteenth Section School Lands

NO

No. 21 provides that revenues derived from the sale of sixteenth section or indemnity lands would be paid directly to the school boards of parishes in which the sections are located in proportion to the percentage of such sections lying in each parish, rather than the percentage of the township within which such a section is situated that lies within a given parish.

These sixteenth section or indemnity lands were granted to the states by Congress in the early nineteenth century for the support of public schools.

The News-Star-World feels that the present basis of allocation of these lands to the various parishes is equitable, the present system has worked well, no significant reason has been advanced for changing it, and a similar proposal was defeated in 1958.

Vote "No" on No. 21.

No. 22 St. Bernard Judicial District

NO

St. Bernard and Plaquemines Parishes now make up the 25th Judicial District of Louisiana. The 1960 legislature increased the number of judges for this district from one to two. This amendment would split up the two parishes into two judicial districts with one judge each—but it would provide for an additional district attorney — one for each parish. Now there is one district attorney for the two parishes. The case load for these two parishes did not indicate the necessity for a second judge. There is no need for the expense of a second district attorney.

Vote "No" on No. 22.

No. 23 Webster Judicial District

YES

Bossier and Webster Parishes now comprise the 26th Judicial District. There are two judges for the district—one from Bossier Parish and one from Webster Parish. This amendment proposes to split the district into two judicial districts leaving one composed of each parish. It will require no additional judges but will require an additional district attorney. The case load of this judicial district justifies the split. Both parishes are growing industrially and in population. The amendment is supported generally by the authorities in both parishes. It should be passed.

Vote "Yes" on No. 23.

No. 24 Lafourche Judicial District

YES

This amendment proposes for Lafourche and Terrebonne Parishes what No. 23 proposes for Bossier and Webster Parishes. Based on case load, population and other factors, it is entitled to the same treatment as No. 23.

Vote "Yes" on No. 24.

No. 25 St. Tammany Judicial District

YES

This amendment in turn proposes for St. Tammany and Washington Parishes a split of a judicial district in the same fashion as Nos. 23 and 24. The same factors exist and the amendment is entitled to the same treatment.

Vote "Yes" on No. 25.

No. 26 Appellate Jurisdiction of Courts

YES

This is a technical amendment to the constitutional provisions on appellate jurisdiction of courts. In 1958 the voters approved an amendment putting into effect an extensive reorganization of the state's judiciary. Among other changes a new court of appeals was added, effective July 1, 1960. This proposed amendment will distribute appeals taken prior to July 1, 1960 to the four courts on an equitable basis.

Vote "Yes" on No. 26.

No. 27 Establishment of Paternity

NO

This is a glaring example of a confused effort to amend the Constitution. Its purpose was to grant the juvenile court of Orleans Parish jurisdiction to pass on the establishment or disavowal of the paternity of children. A similar amendment giving this authority to all juvenile courts of the state was lost in the legislature for some undetermined reason. This extended jurisdiction was a proposal of the Department of Public Welfare. But in writing the amendment numerous mistakes were made. For instance the proposal would reduce the number of judges of the juvenile court in Orleans Parish. This was never intended by anyone. It is important that this proposal be defeated.

Vote "No" on No. 27.

No. 28 Golden Meadow City Court

NO

The purpose of this amendment is to establish a City Court for Golden Meadow, Louisiana. This town does not meet the size requirements for a City Court under the Constitution as now written. Exceptions such as these should not be made. If the present constitutional provisions applicable all over the state are now incorrect, they should be changed. The voters should not be called upon to establish piece-meal exceptions.

Vote "No" on No. 28.

No. 29 Tax Exemption on Boats Using Diesel Fuel

NO

This amendment would exempt boats of 1,200 horsepower or less, that burn diesel fuel, from ad alorem taxes. No reason that amounts to anything but a windfall to such boat owners has been advanced for such an amendment.

Vote "No" on No. 29.

No. 30 Homes for Aged in Assumption and Lafourche

NO

The purpose of this amendment is to authorize Assumption and Lafourche Parishes to levy a two - cent sales tax, if approved by the voters of these parishes, to construct and maintain homes for the aged. There is present authority for parishes to levy taxes to construct and operate such homes. No necessity for this amendment has been shown.

Vote "No" on No. 30.

No. 31 Local Tax to Support Nicholls College

YES

This amendment would authorize the eight parishes which supply most of the students for Nicholls College at Thibodaux to levy a one-mill tax with the approval of the taxpayers involved to be used exclusively for capital improvements such as dormitories on the campus of Nichols.

Vote "Yes" on No. 31.

No. 32 Tax Exemption on Farm Implements

YES

Amendment No. 32 would exempt agricultural implements, machinery and equipment used exclusively for agricultural purposes from state and local ad valorem taxes. There has been a provision in the Constitution for many years, making an exemption up to $500.00.

At the present time there is no real effort on a statewide basis to tax the farm implements that would be exempt from ad valorem taxes by this amendment. As a matter of fact, of the paltry sum that does come in from the taxation of farm implements 40 per cent of it comes from two parishes of the state. Thirty-one of the state's 64 parishes had no agricultural equipment assessed in 1959.

Under these circumstances we feel that the practice should be made uniform throughout the state and that the only practicable method of making the assessment practice uniform as relates to farm implements is to exempt them completely. There are other cogent reasons that can be advanced for the exemption proposed here, but we feel that the factor just mentioned is significant enough for the passage of the amendment.

Vote "Yes" on No. 32.

No. 33 Refund of Motor Fuel Taxes

YES

This amendment would extend the provisions for the refund of motor fuel taxes to fuel used in stationary motors employed for agricultural purposes. Such refunds are now available to users of motor fuels in tractors, fishing boats, and aircraft. It is proper that fuel used in these stationary motors should be included in the refund arrangement.

Vote "Yes" on No. 33.

No. 34 Tax Exemption on Agricultural Aircraft

NO

The proposal here is to exempt from property taxes all aircraft used solely for agricultural purposes. The exemption would include all hangars, machine shops and equipment used to service such aircraft.

No compelling reason has been advanced for such a preferred treatment.

Vote "No" on No. 34.

No. 35 Gas Utility Districts

NO

This amendment proposes to give to the legislature authority to grant parishes the power to create gas utility districts which could in turn construct and operate revenue producing gas public utilities. The 1960 legislature has given parishes such authority. The effort here is to give constitutional dignity to the legislative authority that has been granted. The need for all of this is questionable.

Vote "No" on No. 35.

No. 36 Morgan City Port Bonding Authority

NO

This amendment would grant the Morgan City Harbor and Terminal District the right to issue Twenty Million Dollars in bonds secured by the full faith and credit of the state. The district can now issue bonds. This is an effort to have the state pay them if the district defaults.

Vote "No" on No. 36.

No. 37-38 Investment of Special 2-Mill and Special 3-Mill Tax Funds by New Orleans

YES

These two amendments would authorize New Orleans to invest the proceeds of its two-mill sewerage and drainage improvement tax and its three-mill tax for construction of water, sewerage and drainage facilities into obligations of the United States whenever for short periods of time these proceeds are not being used. Additional revenues would accrue from what would otherwise be idle funds not immediately needed. The proposal is sound, it has substantial backing in New Orleans.

Vote "Yes" on Nos. 37 and 38.

No. 39 International Trade Mart

YES

This amendment would authorize the City of New Orleans to issue revenue bonds to provide funds for the construction and operation of an international trade mart. The bonds would be paid solely out of the rentals and fees collected for the use of the mart's facilities. At the present time the trade mart in New Orleans is operated by a non-profit organization. Larger facilities are now needed by the mart which is a vital asset in promoting trade for Louisiana.

Vote "Yes" on No. 39.

No. 40 Sale of Ponchartrain Beach Area

NO

This proposal would grant the Orleans levee board authority to sell a portion of the Pontchartrain Beach area solely for the operation of an amusement park. The matter is now being handled through lease arrangements. No significant reason for changing the existing arrangement has been adanced.

Vote "No" on No. 40.

No. 41 Moisant International Airport

NO

This amendment, if passed, would authorize the city of New Orleans to issue revenue bonds for the construction of improvements at Moisant International Airport. The bonds would not constitute part of New Orleans' indebtedness. The airport is administered by the New Orleans Aviation Board, an agency of the city. It is financed by the city. The Board itself has no bonded debt. What is proposed here is New Orleans airport financing comparable to the financing —by revenue bonds— that built the magnificent New Orleans railroad union station.

Vote "Yes" on No. 41.

No. 42 New Orleans Port Nominations

NO

This amendment would enlarge the number of organizations now authorized to submit nominations for vacancies on the Board of Commissioners of the Port of New Orleans. From a list of such nominations the governor fills the vacancy. No real reason for the amendment exists. The present arrangement works well and should not be changed or enlarged.

Vote "No" on No. 42.

No. 43 Industrial Canal Bridge and Tunnel Authority

NO

Proposal No. 43 would create an industrial canal bridge and tunnel authority to construct a toll bridge or tunnel across the industrial canal in New Orleans. The new federal Interstate 10 will cross this canal at the approximate location of this proposed toll facility and then there would be a duplication of facilities. This proposal is completely without feasibility.

Vote "No" on No. 43.

No. 44 Southern University Branch at New Orleans

YES

This amendment is designed to ensure that the New Orleans branch of Southern University will remain a part of Southern University rather than being set up later as a separate college by legislative act. The principle involved is sound.

Vote "Yes" on No. 44.

No. 45 Civil Service for Firemen

NO

The provisions of this amendment would require all paid firemen in the municipalities with populations between 1,000 and 13,000 and in parishes and fire protection districts to be included under civil service. There is no sound principle of government that can justify this encroachment of the state further into local government.

Vote "No" on No. 45.

No. 46 Civil Service Positions

YES

This amendment would have the effect of preventing a defeated public official from having his unclassified employees placed in classified service under Civil Service prior to his going out of office. This would be accomplished by requiring a six months' notice before placing unclassified appointive offices and positions in classified civil service.

Vote "Yes" on No. 46.

No. 47 Greater Krotz Springs Port Commission

NO

This amendment, if passed, would place the State of Louisiana in the position of having to pay up to Fifteen Million Dollars in bonds of the Greater Krotz Springs Port Commission if there were default in payment. The News-Star-World does not believe that the full faith and credit of the state should be pledged to bonds for such purely local purposes.

Vote "No" on No. 47.

No. 48-50 Avoyelles Parish, South Louisiana and Concordia Parish Port Commission

YES

The proposals relative to the Avoyelles Parish Port Commission, the South Louisiana Port Commission, and the Concordia Parish Port Commission are different from No. 47 in that the credit of the State of Louisiana is not involved. They are local in nature, and there appers to be no sound objection to them.

Vote "Yes" on Nos. 48, 49 and 50.

No. 51 St. Charles Parish Public Improvement District

NO

This amendment, if passed, would grant the St. Charles Parish Public Improvement District sweeping powers to construct recreational facilities, airports, lay out subdivisions. It could issue Thirty Million Dollars in bonds without voter approval. No sound reason for granting such sweeping authorities has been advanced.

Vote "No" on No. 51.

No. 52 Municipal Certificates of Indebtedness

YES

The purpose of this proposal is to permit municipalities and other subdivisions to pledge their full faith and credit to the payment of certificates of indebtedness which are issued against pledged special assessments for constructing, paving and improving roads or streets or similar works of public improvement. It is common practice to issue these certificates of indebtedness. This amendment will tend to make them sell at a lower interest rate.

Vote "Yes" on No. 52.

No. 53 Zoning in Calcasieu Parish

YES

This amendment, if passed, will enlarge the zoning authority of Calcasieu Parish that was passed in a constitutional amendment of 1958. The enlargement would permit the parish to zone subdivisions approved for loans by the Federal Housing Authority and the Veterans Administration. Calcasieu Parish needs this authority.

Vote "Yes" on No. 53.

No. 54 Zoning in Rapides and Bossier Parishes

YES

The purpose of No. 54 is to give to Bossier and Rapides Parishes direct zoning powers. As The News-Star-World has stated before in connection with such proposed constitutional amendments, there is need for this type of authority in most of the parishes of the state. There should be a comprehensive amendment covering all of the state's parishes. Until that is done, the voters should approve such amendments as this. The two parishes here involved are experiencing industrial, residential, and commercial growth that makes the authority necessary now.

Vote "Yes" on No. 54.

No. 55 Retirement of Judges

YES

This amendment is designed to reduce the mandatory retirement age of judges to 75. It was so set in the 1921 Constitution. A 1936 amendment increased it to 80. This amendment would restore the original retirement age and would bring within its provisions family courts, municipal courts and traffic courts if they are courts of record.

Judges now on the bench could remain there until they are 80 or until they have had 20 years judicial service.

The amendment is well thought out and is entitled to the support of the voters.

Vote "Yes" on No. 55.

Odd-ball Restrictions On Voting In The U. S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you plan to fight a duel, beat your wife, or go to the poorhouse, you'd better wait until after the Nov. 8 elections. Otherwise you may lose the right to vote in some states.

These are some of the odd-ball restrictions turned up in a nationwide Associated Press survey of voting qualifications — some of them hotly controversial — imposed by various states.

In Alabama, for example, the state constitution bars wife beaters from voting. It doesn't say what happens ot the little lady who clobbers her husband, the brute.

Duels have long since gone out of fashion, but at least 10 states —Arkansas, California, Florida, Maryland, Mississippi, Nevada, Oregon, Texas, Virginia and Wisconsin—still have laws barring duellists either from voting or holding public office, or both.

Seven states specifically outlaw the ballot to paupers or those who reside in an "almshouse." They are California, Maine, New Hampshire, Oklahoma, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia.

Twenty-eight states forbid lunatics or "idiots" to vote, while one state, Michigan, has no sanity test and thus makes it theoretically possible for a mental hospital patient to ballot. In 1950 a man named T. Edward Aho was nominated for the office of Marquette County treasurer a few weeks after being declared insane by the county probate judge. He was not elected.

Two states, Florida and Wisconsin, lower the voting boom on those who make an election bet. Florida even bars anyone who is "interested in any wager depending on the result of any election." It doesn't define what it means by "interested."

For the first time this year, all away-from-home U.S. military personnel may vote in a presidential election by absentee ballot. Pennsylvania and South Carolina recently changed their laws to permit such absentee votes, as the other 48 had already.

The Army voting office in Washington says however that persons stationed at stateside U.S. military reservations cannot vote in that state unless they qualify as legal residents there.

Residency requirements vary widely, generally ranging from six months to two years. In California, a new law will permit new residents to vote in the presidential election if they have lived in the state just 54 days. They'll get a special ballot, listing only the presidential tickets.

New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller says millions of Americans move annually and should not be penalized by being denied an opportunity to vote. He'd make it a matter of national policy.

All but four of the 50 states set a minimum voting age of 21. Hawaii's limit is 20, Alaska's 19, while Georgia and Kentucky agree on 18.

A slow-fuse trend toward lowering the voting age has sputtered more or less spasmodically ever since World War I when the federal government drafted 18-year-olds into uniform and touched off the cry, "If they're old enough to fight, they're old enough to vote."

The same cry was repeated in World War II, but not much has been done about it.

Among others, voters in Louisiana and North Dakota have defeated numerous efforts in recent years to lower the voting age from 21 to 18. In Idaho, voters will ballot Nov. 8 on a proposed constitutional amendment to cut the age barrier from 21 to 19.

By far the biggest storm over voting requirements has blown up around the question of so-called "literacy tests" which have served as a traditional weapon to discourage Negroes from voting.

At least 20 states — seven of them below the Mason-Dixon line — have some form of test designed to find out whether the would-be voter can read and write.

In Illinois, by contrast, the voter doesn't have to know how to read, and if he can't write his name, he may affix his mark.

Here, in brief, are some of the test requirements:

Alabama — Prospective voters must answer a questionnaire prepared by the state supreme court including such questions as "Name some of the duties and obligations of citizenship." It's up to the county boards of registrars to determine whether the answers are satisfactory. Negroes in some counties complain that registrars discriminate by requiring Negro applicants but not whites) to write long portions of the constitution.

Alaska—Voters must be able to speak or to read English.

Arizona—Must be able to read the constitution in English "in a manner showing he is neither prompted nor reciting from memory" and sign name.

California—Read the constitution in English and write name.

Connecticut—Read the constitution or any section of state statutes in English.

Delaware—Read and write in English, but those born before 1900 need not be literate to vote.

Georgia—Understand the duties and obligations and citizenship, or read and write a section of the state or federal constitution. If unable to read and write, applicant must answer correctly 20 to 30 prescribed questions propounded by county board of registrars.

Hawaii—Read and write either English or Hawaiian.

Louisiana—Read and write, either in English or native tongue, or, if unable to do so, must give "a reasonable interpretation" of a section of the federal or state constitution.

Maine—Read the state constitution in English and write own name.

Massachusetts—Pass a test on reading and interpreting the constitution to the satisfaction of the circuit court clerk, plus a test on the duties of citizenship given by the clerk.

New Hampshire—Writing and reading test, almost never used.

New York — Read and write English. Adopted in 1921, the rule was originally designed to foster patriotism and competency in English among immigrants, but has now become a center of controversy. The provision is being bitterly attacked by Puerto Ricans, who are U. S. citizens by birth. An estimated 125,000 Puerto Ricans in New York City know only Spanish. New York courts have upheld the requirement.

North Carolina—Read and write sections of the state constitution.

Oregon—Read a paragraph of own choosing and sign name.

South Carolina — Upon request, applicant must be able to read a section of the state constitution and copy another paragraph in handwriting. This test is waived for those who can show proof they own property worth $300.

Virginia—Must apply in own handwriting "without aid, suggestion or memorandum in the presence of the registration officer," stating name, age, birthplace, residence, occupation, etc. Registrar may also require applicant to answer, under oath, any questions affecting qualifications.

Washington—Read and speak English.

Wyoming—Read the state constitution.

At least two states, Alabama and Louisiana, have sought to bar the ballot to partners in common-law marriage and parents of illegitimate children.

Louisiana votes on the matter next month. Alabama's legislature killed a similar proposal.

Three states—Washington, Minnesota and New Mexico—have laws restricting the franchise of Indians.

In Minnesota, the state constitution technically forbids the ballot to "persons of Indian blood . . . who have not adopted the language, customs and habits of civilization." However, the state's attorney general has ruled Indians may vote if they meet other routine conditions.

In New Mexico, the state constitution still bars Indians not taxed from voting, but a three-judge federal court ruled in 1948 that they may vote.

In Idaho, the state constitution still bars Chinese and other Orientals from voting unless they were born in this country. The provision stems back to the early Gold Rush days.

Idaho's Secretary of State Arnold Williams says the law became inoperative when the federal government authorized naturalization of Orientals.

Poll taxes must also be paid before voting in Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, Texas, Virginia and New Hampshire.

Most states have voting restrictions against convicted lawbreakers, often running the gamut from simple vagrancy to murder and treason, and against those who seek to sell their vote or to buy others.

Idaho denies the franchise to polygamists and prostitutes, and registrars are instructed in a lengthy section on prostitution to question persons seeking to register to make sure they qualify.

The state bars voting by anyone convicted of specified crimes of moral turpitude, ranging from rape, arson and robbery to horse stealing and breaking into an outhouse—but not murder.

JET AGE CAMPAIGN

Writer's Impression Of The Presidential Campaign

EDITORS NOTE: Arthur Edson, who traveled with both Vice President Nixon and Sen. Kennedy before the conventions, has been out with each of them twice during the campaign. Here he records some impressions of the mad scramble for votes in this jet age, with special emphasis on a political phenomenon you probably never heard of, the advance man.

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) —Hurriedly the band begins to play.

Quickly the members of the girls' drill team start to prance, often in weather so chilly they're covered with goose pimples if little else.

Signs go up like magic.

Girls squeal as if the latest rock 'n' roll king had just undulated into sight.

And here comes our hero, the candidate who will be introduced as the next President of the United States, all smiles and graciousness.

If one looks closely enough, it's possible even in this excitement to spot a harried young man on the outskirts of the crowd. He seems to be trying to size up this political concoction, much like a chef who peers through a slit in the curtain to see if his guests are enjoying their meal.

This young man is the advance agent. Few people know he exists, but he has become an absolute necessity in jet age campaigning.

A candidate may be whisked across the continent within a few hours, or he may be toted slowly but stylishly by convertible through heavily populated areas.

But wherever Vice President Richard M. Nixon or Sen. John F. Kenndey go, they're preceded by men who are carefully chosen to smooth the way.

These advance men make sure that the hall or the stadium is available, that the public address system is working, that cars and buses are lined up for the parade, that drivers are available for the cars, that bands are either hired or borrowed from the local high schools, that both the route the candidate will take and the meeting he will address are well publicized.

This leads to what Nixon himself has called "crowdsmanship."

They study the proposed schedule, and try to cut out events if it seems to be cluttered, they study the local political situation, and try to make sure the right men and women squeeze on to the platform and the wrong ones are shooed off.

They are supposed to dot his with such tact that all ruffled feathers are carefully patted down. And, contrary to popular impression, politicians often have the world's thinnest skins, and the easiest ruffled feathers.

Kennedy has 40 working for him. Nixon, who normally makes fewer appearances each day, has 18.

If Kennedy expects to spend two days in a state, as many as 10 advance men may go there to prepare the way for him.

Exact figures are hard to come by, but this is far more than has been used in previous campaigns, when a few men hedgehopped in front of the candidate and whipped up interest.

But then, no campaign has ever been waged like this one, with Nixon speaking on one coast in the morning and the other coast at night, with Kennedy in Maine one day and in Alaska the next.

Each side proudly points to the big crowds its man is drawing. Neither mentions the tedious advance work and planning that helped make these crowds possible.

But if few people show up along the street—as Kennedy failed to draw in Seattle and Nixon failed in Milwaukee—reporters may get this story: No attempt was made to get spectators to the parade route and the emphasis was all put on the meeting—or maybe the advance man failed to do his duty.

In short, it can be anyone's fault except the candidate's, whose popularity must never be allowed to waver.

You hit a town and are told that this crowd tops the one the other candidate had here two weeks ago. Or, if the other candidate hasn't been here, this is bigger than the one Truman drew or Stevenson drew or Eisenhower drew.

At one Kennedy stop, the master of ceremonies proudly announced that the crowd was greater than anything since the Harlem Globe Trotters.

At the National Plowing Contest in Sioux Falls, S.D., Kennedy spoke his piece first—and some optimist guessed the crowd at 70,000. (Probably nine crowd estimates out of 10 are far too high; the tenth is only a little bit too high).

Nixon came the next day, and this reporter scurried up a ladder to compare the crowds.

A farm lady watched with interest.

"How many are here?" she asked. "Seventy-one thousand?"

It was after the television debate of Oct. 7 that Nixon spoke of crowdsmanship.

"Let's just say we're both drawing good crowds," Nixon said. "Okay?"

"Okay," Kennedy said.

But the crowdsmanship goes on. And may the best advance men win.

He's probably in his 30s. He's on leave of absence from his regular job. He doesn't mind working long hours and hard, and usually he does it without pay, getting only his expenses.

He's likely to be a lawyer, but the Nixon crew includes a real estate man and a Ph. D. in Geology.

Part of the time Linton was out in the middle of the road, directing traffic, trying to keep local big shots from pushing into the motorcade ahead of their turn.

It had been a frustrating day for Linton, a newspaperman before he joined Kennedy in April.

The schedule had been made up before he arrived in Illinois. Far too many stops were planned, and far too little time was left for travel between stops.

To add to Linton's burdens, unscheduled stops were tossed in, so that Kennedy wound up the day making 16 speeches—and running around two hours late.

"This is the guts of politics," he said. "Everyone has his own ambitions, everyone his own desires. You've got to see to it that some how it all runs smoothly."

Or here's E. R. Haldeman, a New York advertising man whom everybody calls Bob. He heads the Nixon advance men, and unlike most of his colleagues and nearly all of his opponents, he's had experience. He was an advance man for Nixon's vice presidential campaign in 1956.

Kennedy's strategy apparently is to be seen by as many voters as possible. He scarcely hits one spot before it's hurry on to another.

Nixon isn't exactly dawdling either, but he does allow more time for each city. This makes it easier to improvise when the unexpected happens. Which, despite all scheming, it frequently does.

"We may have allowed some local congressman a couple of minutes for the introductions," Haldeman said. "But maybe he's never had an audience of more than 100 or so before. Here he has 10,000, and he isn't about to let it go."

Nixon's motorcade, like Kennedy's, is frequently forced to stop because idiots—there is, alas, no other word for them—literally try to throw themselves in front of his car.

But if the jet age makes unusual demands on advance planning, it also makes unusual demands on those who wage, or even watch, the campaign.

It may make dramatic reading that Nixon or Kennedy was in Baltimore in the morning and San Francisco at night. But it upsets one's eating and sleeping habits, assuming any time is left for eating or sleeping.

Climatic conditions take their toll, too. In one day Nixon spoke in 38-degree weather in Billings, Mont., in warm, lovely sunshine in Denver and in rain in Salt Lake City.

But, worse, is the relentless drive, drive, drive. On, on, on.

And reporters, stumbling and grumbling along behind, can't help but ask: Why?

Why does Nixon choose to spend 36 hours in Montana, a state with four electoral votes, and skip blithely through more populous ones?

The answers are complex.

Here a congressman is in trouble, or is a close friend, so the candidate is prevailed upon to come by.

There party leaders have assured the candidate they can get up a monstrous rally, certain to make a national impression.

Everywhere state chairmen need help raising money.

One pull has to be balanced against another.

As Nixon has said:

"When the campaign nears the end, the pressures are tremendous."

But one question remains unanswered.

Why is it so essential that a candidate keep a pace that often makes him look as if he were understudying St. Vitus? Why wouldn't it be better if he travelled a little less and stopped to think a little more?

Interesting Book About Middle East

BEHIND THE EGYPTIAN SPHINX, A Prelude to World War Three By Irving Sedar and Harold J. Greenberg (Chilton, $4).

Colonel Nasser and his UAR have made no secret of their determination to crush Israel and eventually to expropriate the properties, plants and oil concessions of the "Western Imperalist."

But in this book, the authors have claimed to have discovered that these avowed aims are but the initial smoke screen barrage behind which a strange alliance is engaged in a far more grandiose and sinister scheme.

They claim that many of Hitler's top Nazis are today in key positions in the Egyptian government; that the remnants of Rommel's Afrika Korps are daily training a desert army in the Nile Valley; and that certain powerful elements in West Germany are quietly co-operating with Nasser in building Egypt's economic and military strength.

According to the authors, their eventual goal is to establish a third or middle power block between the West and East, and their slogan is the old Pan-Germantic Drang nach Osten of the Kaiser's Reich.

This sounds fantastic, but the authors cite names and dates. Whether you'll agree with the theory expressed here, the book is of immense importance. And if true, it is indeed a witches' brew of fierce political hatreds and loyalties, and the fires beneath the cauldron are fanned by fanatical religious and ideological draughts.

STEP IN THE RIVER

Southern Political Empire Is Described

A STEP IN THE RIVER By Francis Irby Gwaltney (Random House, $3.95).

Despite a few little off-color phrases in this book, it is one just about everyone interested in politics should read. Although it is fiction, the lesson in it is all too true.

When Preacher Clutts, a self-styled evangelist thoroughly versed in the art of wooing bucolic voters, declined his annual bribe and decided to run for governor of a Southern state, he set into action a wild, brutal, and corrupt political campaign.

Against his will, Calvin Hall, the narrator of this story, became involved in the political fray. He had never had much interest in politics, even though one of his cousins was political boss of the state and another was Clutts' opponent.

Calvin was pressed into service to fly his cousins and their aide around on a frenzied tour of the rural districts, a tour that, in the end, was conducted like a tawdry carnival. As he watched the tumbling clowns, listened to the meaningless promises and vile accusations, he recorded with increasing awareness and disillusionment the greed, the lust, and the total dishonesty of the campaigners. Then, armed with the love of a woman reporter who was opposed to his cousin's political methods, Calvin came to the conclusion that an evil world does not necessarily collapse of its own corruption. He was not able to act on this knowledge, however, until after he had witnessed a shocking scene of depravity.

This novel is no ordinary dissection of contemporary Southern manners and morals. It is a forceful, highly explosive, and timely exploration of the precarious foundations of a family political empire and of how one young man lost his innocence but gained his maturity.

A Civil War Treasury Of Tales, Legends

A Civil War Treasury Of Tales, Legends, and Folklore by B. A. Botkin (Random House, Inc., $7.95).

For those who like to read about the Civil War, this is a must book. More than almost any other American war, the Civil War was a storyteller's war. It is also our national epic, The American Iliad.

This book contains a rich sampling of Civil War storytelling of all types — personal, narrative, anecdotes, hero tales, legends, historical traditions, yarns, tall tales, jests, strange tales, fables.

Culled from a wide variety of contemporary sources — letters, diaries, newspapers, periodicals, pamphlets and from the great body of Civil War reminiscences and regimental histories, over 330 stories have been arranged both chronologically and by subject to form a story history of the war.

The whole constitutes a collective saga of the human side of the Civil War, its typical experiences.

Another Civil War Work Good

Why The North Won The Civil War, published by the Louisiana State University Press ($2.95).

An excellent book, both for background material and enjoyable reading.

The book is put together by five of the country's leading Civil War scholars and it offers new and unique insights into this perennially fascinating question of Why the North Won the War.

Several reasons are listed. One points to the staggering economic superiority of the North. Another was the fact that the civilian resources of the South were impotent when pitted against those of the North under the conditions of war. Surprisingly, a third reason listed was the fact that the Confederacy was too democratic to win a war.

Verdi Opera Is Current Sensation

NEW YORK (UPI)—It's hardly believable that music capable of animating an American emotion of 1960 could have been composed in Italy 120 years ago, but how else can you account for Verdi's opera "Nabucco" being a current success on the boards of the Metropolitan Opera?

As operatic art it isn't much. No one has ever seriously suggested otherwise, not even at the time of its first performances in Italy in 1841. Verdi was young then and few if any could see he was a giant among geniuses who was going to spreadeagle Italian opera with many masterpieces.

It was only his third opera. He was handicapped emotionally as well as technically. His wife and two small children had all died within months of one another. "Nabucco" has rated so poorly among his total operas that only this season did it get its first performance at the Met although the Met has always been a house wholeheartedly devoted to Verdi.

"Nabucco" was a success in Italy in 1841 and for many years after that not because it was great opera but because it was a great affirmation of freedom and the sanctity of the free individual.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

All efforts of the Cataloging and processing staff of the Ouachita Parish Public Library have been concentrated this week on getting as many books as possible ready for the Opening of the Anna Meyer Branch Library. The book collection is looking very good and additional books will be added each week.

In the field of fiction several titles which will be extremely popular were added to the book collection. "I Swear and I Vow" is the title of a book by Stefan Olivier. It has it's setting in a large German municipal hospital. It is a story of Doctor's and what they owe to the colleagues as well as the public. Books about physicians and hospitals are always popular with the readers of the Library books and we predict a big success for this one. A new book by Frank Yerby is always eagerly received. His latest title is "Gillian" and I need not tell you the plot. They are all very much the same, but the readers keep coming back for more. "The Trend Is Up" by Anthony West is a modern novel concerned with the world of big business. This sort of book has been very popular lately and should find a ready audience.

A perfectly beautiful new book and one which will be extremely useful is "The Bible Companion" edited by William Neil. This is a complete pictorial and reference guide to the people, places, background and faith of the Bible. This book, although of the reference type has been placed in the circulating collection of the Library, for so many people will need to take it home and study. Three copies of the book were given as memorials for the library. One in Headquarters, one in West Monroe and one for the Anna Meyer Branch.

Another memorial gift to the Library collection was "The Catholic Youth's Guide to Life and Love" written by George A. Kelly. This book should be of interest to all young people and espeically those of the Roman Catholic faith. "The American Bridge to the Israel Commonwealth" by Bernard Abraham Rosenblatt is a very fine discussion of the aid which our country has given to the people of Israel and is well worth reading.

Many of our readers remember the fine reporting job which William L. Shirer did from Berlin in the days when Nazi Germany was making it's power felt. His "Berlin Diary" was read by millions. Mr. Shirer has now completed a monumental work which will probably take its place as the definitive book on World War II and it's causes. It is called "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich." It is a carefully documented book and is necessarily long, but it is well worth your attention. People are always interested in a book about Natchez, our lovely antebellum neighbor city to the south of us. A new book has just been published, written by Robert Gordon Pishel calle "Natchez, Museum City of the Old South." It is a beautiful book, profusely illustrated and breathing the spirit of forgotten splendors and a more gracious way of life than we know.

Two books which will add much to the genealogy collection of the Library are "A History of Bristol Parish, with Genealogies of Families Connected Therewith" by the Rev. Philip Slaughter and "Marriage Bonds and Other Marriage Records of Amherst County, Virginia 1763-1800" by William Montgomery Sweeney. Both of these books were memorial gifts and will be greatly used by the many people who are interested in this field of research.

RUNNING THE SCALES

With JOHN CALE

With the "Seven Year Itch" closing a successful eight-day run at Selman Field Playhouse last week, the Monroe Little Theatre will relinquish the live stage to a mass effort by a group equally stage struck.

The Junior Charity League held a pow-wow Tuesday to send up the first smoke signal for the 1960 "Follies." The last of these streamlined home talent variety shows was held in the spring of 1957 and was dubbed "Holidaze." It was just that for the cast, director and audience.

PROJECT

Funds from ticket sales of the last effort went to the purchase of a permanent fence for the Bendel Memorial Little League Stadium in Forsythe Park, a station wagon, tables and wheelchairs for the Cerebral Palsy Center, a movie projector for the Y.M.C.A. and vertical blinds for the Carolyn Rose Strauss Rehabilitation Center. Money from this year's effort is directed toward purchase of special equipment for a school for hard of hearing children planned for the Monroe area.

Not only does the "Follies" workout provide funds for the organization's well - administered projects, but serves as a recreational outlet for a group of women who work from 80 to 100 hours annually for community services.

Highlights of the 1957 show included a group of "lost" Indians who got off their beaten track, then made tracks clear off the reservation. The result was a true example of ultra-modern dance with no beat, no two Indians dancing alike and finally, no Indians. Following the exit—or countdown—the audience called for more. But since the act had not been rehearsed as presented, there was no way to perform an encore.

There was also a large group "Mardi Gras" scene including the entire 115-member cast which was as colorful and lively as an thing on the professional stag So it's "Follies" time agai keep an ear to the ground f latest developments.

WEEK'S EVENTS

Odd-ball Restrictions On Voting In The U. S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you plan to fight a duel, beat your wife, or go to the poorhouse, you'd better wait until after the Nov. 8 elections. Otherwise you may lose the right to vote in some states.

These are some of the odd-ball restrictions turned up in a nationwide Associated Press survey of voting qualifications — some of them hotly controversial — imposed by various states.

In Alabama, for example, the state constitution bars wife beaters from voting. It doesn't say what happens ot the little lady who clobbers her husband, the brute.

Duels have long since gone out of fashion, but at least 10 states —Arkansas, California, Florida, Maryland, Mississippi, Nevada, Oregon, Texas, Virginia and Wisconsin—still have laws barring duellists either from voting or holding public office, or both.

Seven states specifically outlaw the ballot to paupers or those who reside in an "almshouse." They are California, Maine, New Hampshire, Oklahoma, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia.

Twenty-eight states forbid lunatics or "idiots" to vote, while one state, Michigan, has no sanity test and thus makes it theoretically possible for a mental hospital patient to ballot. In 1950 a man named T. Edward Aho was nominated for the office of Marquette County treasurer a few weeks after being declared insane by the county probate judge. He was not elected.

Two states, Florida and Wisconsin, lower the voting boom on those who make an election bet. Florida even bars anyone who is "interested in any wager depending on the result of any election." It doesn't define what it means by "interested."

For the first time this year, all away-from-home U.S. military personnel may vote in a presidential election by absentee ballot. Pennsylvania and South Carolina recently changed their laws to permit such absentee votes, as the other 48 had already.

The Army voting office in Washington says however that persons stationed at stateside U.S. military reservations cannot vote in that state unless they qualify as legal residents there.

Residency requirements vary widely, generally ranging from six months to two years. In California, a new law will permit new residents to vote in the presidential election if they have lived in the state just 54 days. They'll get a special ballot, listing only the presidential tickets.

New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller says millions of Americans move annually and should not be penalized by being denied an opportunity to vote. He'd make it a matter of national policy.

All but four of the 50 states set a minimum voting age of 21. Hawaii's limit is 20, Alaska's 19, while Georgia and Kentucky agree on 18.

A slow-fuse trend toward lowering the voting age has sputtered more or less spasmodically ever since World War I when the federal government drafted 18-year-olds into uniform and touched off the cry, "If they're old enough to fight, they're old enough to vote."

The same cry was repeated in World War II, but not much has been done about it.

Among others, voters in Louisiana and North Dakota have defeated numerous efforts in recent years to lower the voting age from 21 to 18. In Idaho, voters will ballot Nov. 8 on a proposed constitutional amendment to cut the age barrier from 21 to 19.

By far the biggest storm over voting requirements has blown up around the question of so-called "literacy tests" which have served as a traditional weapon to discourage Negroes from voting.

At least 20 states — seven of them below the Mason-Dixon line — have some form of test designed to find out whether the would-be voter can read and write.

In Illinois, by contrast, the voter doesn't have to know how to read, and if he can't write his name, he may affix his mark.

Here, in brief, are some of the test requirements:

Alabama — Prospective voters must answer a questionnaire prepared by the state supreme court including such questions as "Name some of the duties and obligations of citizenship." It's up to the county boards of registrars to determine whether the answers are satisfactory. Negroes in some counties complain that registrars discriminate by requiring Negro applicants but not whites) to write long portions of the constitution.

Alaska—Voters must be able to speak or to read English.

Arizona—Must be able to read the constitution in English "in a manner showing he is neither prompted nor reciting from memory" and sign name.

California—Read the constitution in English and write name.

Connecticut—Read the constitution or any section of state statutes in English.

Delaware—Read and write in English, but those born before 1900 need not be literate to vote.

Georgia—Understand the duties and obligations and citizenship, or read and write a section of the state or federal constitution. If unable to read and write, applicant must answer correctly 20 to 30 prescribed questions propounded by county board of registrars.

Hawaii—Read and write either English or Hawaiian.

Louisiana—Read and write, either in English or native tongue, or, if unable to do so, must give "a reasonable interpretation" of a section of the federal or state constitution.

Maine—Read the state constitution in English and write own name.

Massachusetts—Pass a test on reading and interpreting the constitution to the satisfaction of the circuit court clerk, plus a test on the duties of citizenship given by the clerk.

New Hampshire—Writing and reading test, almost never used.

New York — Read and write English. Adopted in 1921, the rule was originally designed to foster patriotism and competency in English among immigrants, but has now become a center of controversy. The provision is being bitterly attacked by Puerto Ricans, who are U. S. citizens by birth. An estimated 125,000 Puerto Ricans in New York City know only Spanish. New York courts have upheld the requirement.

North Carolina—Read and write sections of the state constitution.

Oregon—Read a paragraph of own choosing and sign name.

South Carolina — Upon request, applicant must be able to read a section of the state constitution and copy another paragraph in handwriting. This test is waived for those who can show proof they own property worth $300.

Virginia—Must apply in own handwriting "without aid, suggestion or memorandum in the presence of the registration officer," stating name, age, birthplace, residence, occupation, etc. Registrar may also require applicant to answer, under oath, any questions affecting qualifications.

Washington—Read and speak English.

Wyoming—Read the state constitution.

At least two states, Alabama and Louisiana, have sought to bar the ballot to partners in common-law marriage and parents of illegitimate children.

Louisiana votes on the matter next month. Alabama's legislature killed a similar proposal.

Three states—Washington, Minnesota and New Mexico—have laws restricting the franchise of Indians.

In Minnesota, the state constitution technically forbids the ballot to "persons of Indian blood . . . who have not adopted the language, customs and habits of civilization." However, the state's attorney general has ruled Indians may vote if they meet other routine conditions.

In New Mexico, the state constitution still bars Indians not taxed from voting, but a three-judge federal court ruled in 1948 that they may vote.

In Idaho, the state constitution still bars Chinese and other Orientals from voting unless they were born in this country. The provision stems back to the early Gold Rush days.

Idaho's Secretary of State Arnold Williams says the law became inoperative when the federal government authorized naturalization of Orientals.

Poll taxes must also be paid before voting in Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, Texas, Virginia and New Hampshire.

Most states have voting restrictions against convicted lawbreakers, often running the gamut from simple vagrancy to murder and treason, and against those who seek to sell their vote or to buy others.

Idaho denies the franchise to polygamists and prostitutes, and registrars are instructed in a lengthy section on prostitution to question persons seeking to register to make sure they qualify.

The state bars voting by anyone convicted of specified crimes of moral turpitude, ranging from rape, arson and robbery to horse stealing and breaking into an outhouse—but not murder.

JET AGE CAMPAIGN

Writer's Impression Of The Presidential Campaign

EDITORS NOTE: Arthur Edson, who traveled with both Vice President Nixon and Sen. Kennedy before the conventions, has been out with each of them twice during the campaign. Here he records some impressions of the mad scramble for votes in this jet age, with special emphasis on a political phenomenon you probably never heard of, the advance man.

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) —Hurriedly the band begins to play.

Quickly the members of the girls' drill team start to prance, often in weather so chilly they're covered with goose pimples if little else.

Signs go up like magic.

Girls squeal as if the latest rock 'n' roll king had just undulated into sight.

And here comes our hero, the candidate who will be introduced as the next President of the United States, all smiles and graciousness.

If one looks closely enough, it's possible even in this excitement to spot a harried young man on the outskirts of the crowd. He seems to be trying to size up this political concoction, much like a chef who peers through a slit in the curtain to see if his guests are enjoying their meal.

This young man is the advance agent. Few people know he exists, but he has become an absolute necessity in jet age campaigning.

A candidate may be whisked across the continent within a few hours, or he may be toted slowly but stylishly by convertible through heavily populated areas.

But wherever Vice President Richard M. Nixon or Sen. John F. Kenndey go, they're preceded by men who are carefully chosen to smooth the way.

These advance men make sure that the hall or the stadium is available, that the public address system is working, that cars and buses are lined up for the parade, that drivers are available for the cars, that bands are either hired or borrowed from the local high schools, that both the route the candidate will take and the meeting he will address are well publicized.

This leads to what Nixon himself has called "crowdsmanship."

They study the proposed schedule, and try to cut out events if it seems to be cluttered, they study the local political situation, and try to make sure the right men and women squeeze on to the platform and the wrong ones are shooed off.

They are supposed to dot his with such tact that all ruffled feathers are carefully patted down. And, contrary to popular impression, politicians often have the world's thinnest skins, and the easiest ruffled feathers.

Kennedy has 40 working for him. Nixon, who normally makes fewer appearances each day, has 18.

If Kennedy expects to spend two days in a state, as many as 10 advance men may go there to prepare the way for him.

Exact figures are hard to come by, but this is far more than has been used in previous campaigns, when a few men hedgehopped in front of the candidate and whipped up interest.

But then, no campaign has ever been waged like this one, with Nixon speaking on one coast in the morning and the other coast at night, with Kennedy in Maine one day and in Alaska the next.

Each side proudly points to the big crowds its man is drawing. Neither mentions the tedious advance work and planning that helped make these crowds possible.

But if few people show up along the street—as Kennedy failed to draw in Seattle and Nixon failed in Milwaukee—reporters may get this story: No attempt was made to get spectators to the parade route and the emphasis was all put on the meeting—or maybe the advance man failed to do his duty.

In short, it can be anyone's fault except the candidate's, whose popularity must never be allowed to waver.

You hit a town and are told that this crowd tops the one the other candidate had here two weeks ago. Or, if the other candidate hasn't been here, this is bigger than the one Truman drew or Stevenson drew or Eisenhower drew.

At one Kennedy stop, the master of ceremonies proudly announced that the crowd was greater than anything since the Harlem Globe Trotters.

Even the audience gets into this act.

At the National Plowing Contest in Sioux Falls, S.D., Kennedy spoke his piece first—and some optimist guessed the crowd at 70,000. (Probably nine crowd estimates out of 10 are far too high; the tenth is only a little bit too high).

Nixon came the next day, and this reporter scurried up a ladder to compare the crowds.

A farm lady watched with interest.

"How many are here?" she asked. "Seventy-one thousand?"

It was after the television debate of Oct. 7 that Nixon spoke of crowdsmanship.

"Let's just say we're both drawing good crowds," Nixon said. "Okay?"

"Okay," Kennedy said.

But the crowdsmanship goes on. And may the best advance men win.

He's probably in his 30s. He's on leave of absence from his regular job. He doesn't mind working long hours and hard, and usually he does it without pay, getting only his expenses.

He's likely to be a lawyer, but the Nixon crew includes a real estate man and a Ph. D. in Geology.

Part of the time Linton was out in the middle of the road, directing traffic, trying to keep local big shots from pushing into the motorcade ahead of their turn.

It had been a frustrating day for Linton, a newspaperman before he joined Kennedy in April.

The schedule had been made up before he arrived in Illinois. Far too many stops were planned, and far too little time was left for travel between stops.

To add to Linton's burdens, unscheduled stops were tossed in, so that Kennedy wound up the day making 16 speeches—and running around two hours late.

"This is the guts of politics," he said. "Everyone has his own ambitions, everyone his own desires. You've got to see to it that somehow it all runs smoothly."

Or here's E. R. Haldeman, a New York advertising man whom everybody calls Bob. He heads the Nixon advance men, and unlike most of his colleagues and nearly all of his opponents, he's had experience. He was an advance man for Nixon's vice presidential campaign in 1956.

Kennedy's strategy apparently is to be seen by as many voters as possible. He scarcely hits one spot before it's hurry on to another.

Nixon isn't exactly dawdling either, but he does allow more time for each city. This makes it easier to improvise when the unexpected happens. Which, despite all scheming, it frequently does.

"We may have allowed some local congressman a couple of minutes for the introductions," Haldeman said. "But maybe he's never had an audience of more than 100 or so before. Here he has 10,000, and he isn't about to let it go."

Nixon's motorcade, like Kennedy's, is frequently forced to stop because idiots—there is, alas, no other word for them—literally try to throw themselves in front of his car.

But if the jet age makes unusual demands on advance planning, it also makes unusual demands on those who wage, or even watch, the campaign.

It may make dramatic reading that Nixon or Kennedy was in Baltimore in the morning and San Francisco at night. But it upsets one's eating and sleeping habits, assuming any time is left for eating or sleeping.

Climatic conditions take their toll, too. In one day Nixon spoke in 38-degree weather in Billings, Mont., in warm, lovely sunshine in Denver and in rain in Salt Lake City.

But, worse, is the relentless drive, drive, drive. On, on, on.

And reporters, stumbling and grumbling along behind, can't help but ask: Why?

Why does Nixon choose to spend 36 hours in Montana, a state with four electoral votes, and skip blithely through more populous ones?

Why does Kennedy hit one small town and bypass others?

The answers are complex.

Here a congressman is in trouble, or is a close friend, so the candidate is prevailed upon to come by.

There party leaders have assured the candidate they can get up a monstrous rally, certain to make a national impression.

Everywhere state chairmen need help raising money.

One pull has to be balanced against another.

As Nixon has said:

But one question remains unanswered.

Why is it so essential that a candidate keep a pace that often makes him look as if he were understudying St. Vitus? Why wouldn't it be better if he travelled a little less and stopped to think a little more?

Interesting Book About Middle East

BEHIND THE EGYPTIAN SPHINX, A Prelude to World War Three By Irving Sedar and Harold J. Greenberg (Chilton, $4).

Colonel Nasser and his UAR have made no secret of their determination to crush Israel and eventually to expropriate the properties, plants and oil concessions of the "Western Imperalist."

But in this book, the authors have claimed to have discovered that these avowed aims are but the initial smoke screen barrage behind which a strange alliance is engaged in a far more grandiose and sinister scheme.

They claim that many of Hitler's top Nazis are today in key positions in the Egyptian government; that the remnants of Rommel's Afrika Korps are daily training a desert army in the Nile Valley; and that certain powerful elements in West Germany are quietly co-operating with Nasser in building Egypt's economic and military strength.

According to the authors, their eventual goal is to establish a third or middle power block between the West and East, and their slogan is the old Pan-Germantic Drang nach Osten of the Kaiser's Reich.

This sounds fantastic, but the authors cite names and dates. Whether you'll agree with the theory expressed here, the book is of immense importance. And if true, it is indeed a witches' brew of fierce political hatreds and loyalties, and the fires beneath the cauldron are fanned by fanatical religious and ideological draughts.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

All efforts of the Cataloging and processing staff of the Ouachita Parish Public Library have been concentrated this week on getting as many books as possible ready for the Opening of the Anna Meyer Branch Library. The book collection is looking very good and additional books will be added each week.

In the field of fiction several titles which will be extremely popular were added to the book collection. "I Swear and I Vow" is the title of a book by Stefan Olivier. It has it's setting in a large German municipal hospital. It is a story of Doctor's and what they owe to the colleagues as well as the public. Books about physicians and hospitals are always popular with the readers of the Library books and we predict a big success for this one. A new book by Frank Yerby is always eagerly received. His latest title is "Gillian" and I need not tell you the plot. They are all very much the same, but the readers keep coming back for more. "The Trend Is Up" by Anthony West is a modern novel concerned with the world of big business. This sort of book has been very popular lately and should find a ready audience.

A perfectly beautiful new book and one which will be extremely useful is "The Bible Companion" edited by William Neil. This is a complete pictorial and reference guide to the people, places, background and faith of the Bible. This book, although of the reference type has been placed in the circulating collection of the Library, for so many people will need to take it home and study. Three copies of the book were given as memorials for the library. One in Headquarters, one in West Monroe and one for the Anna Meyer Branch.

Another memorial gift to the Library collection was "The Catholic Youth's Guide to Life and Love" written by George A. Kelly. This book should be of interest to all young people and espeically those of the Roman Catholic faith. "The American Bridge to the Israel Commonwealth" by Bernard Abraham Rosenblatt is a very fine discussion of the aid which our country has given to the people of Israel and is well worth reading.

Many of our readers remember the fine reporting job which William L. Shirer did from Berlin in the days when Nazi Germany was making it's power felt. His "Berlin Diary" was read by millions. Mr. Shirer has now completed a monumental work which will probably take its place as the definitive book on World War II and it's causes. It is called "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich." It is a carefully documented book and is necessarily long, but it is well worth your attention. People are always interested in a book about Natchez, our lovely antebellum neighbor city to the south of us. A new book has just been published, written by Robert Gordon Pishel calle "Natchez, Museum City of the Old South." It is a beautiful book, profusely illustrated and breathing the spirit of forgotten splendors and a more gracious way of life than we know.

Two books which will add much to the genealogy collection of the Library are "A History of Bristol Parish, with Genealogies of Families Connected Therewith" by the Rev. Philip Slaughter and "Marriage Bonds and Other Marriage Records of Amherst County, Virginia 1763-1800" by William Montgomery Sweeney. Both of these books were memorial gifts and will be greatly used by the many people who are interested in this field of research.

BROADWAY PLAYGUIDE

30 Attractions On Broadway

NEW YORK (AP)—Broadway is in lively midseason form for November showgoers. Six new attractions join 24 on the current playguide calendar.

Scheduled arrivals are Nov. 28, "The Rape of the Belt, "comedy based on the Greek legend of Amazons, at the Martin Beck; 3, "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," musical, Winter Garden; 10, "Period of Adjustment," Tennessee Williams' latest, Hayes.

Also, Nov. 16, "Under the Yum Yum Tree," a comedy, Miller's; 17, "Advise and Consent," based on a best-seller, Cort; 30, "All the Way Home," another novel-into-drama, Belasco.

Top boxoffice interest centers on eight sellout shows, four of them recent premieres.

Here is an alphabetical guide to all productions now on the boards, including title, theater, stars, subject and ticket availability (an "X" before title indicates show new this season)

X-"A Taste of Honey," Lyceum-Joan Plowright, Angela Lansbury in wild, bittersweet slice-of-live drama, set in English slums. Weekends very heavy, few tickets for other days available.

X-"Becket," St. James-Sir Laurence Olivier, Anthony Quinn score brilliantly in Jean Anouilh version of an historic martyrdom. Order tickets well in advance.

"Bye Bye Birdie," 54th Street-A rollicking troupe of young performers in musical comedy spoof of the rock'n'roll craze. Another scarce ticket.

X-"Face of a Hero," O'Neill-Jack Lemmon goes serious in a murky drama about a young lawyer who tries a man for a murder that he knows never happened. Available.

"Firello!," Broadhurst-Tom Bosley heads the Pulitzer Prize musical about politics, poker and reform in New York's yesterday. Standing room only.

"Gypsy," Imperial-Ethel Merman trumpets the story of a show business mamma who prods two tots toward stardom. Heavy weekends, otherwise available.

X-"Invitation to a March," Music Box-Celeste Holm in the center of a two-family struggle over status. Available.

"La Plume de ma Tante," Royale-French girls and gags. Available.

X-"An Evening with Mike Nichols & Elaine May," Golden-The TV pair in an impromptu rundown of satiric sketches. Another best-seller, get tickets ahead.

"My Fair Lady," Hellinger-On and on rolls the famous damsel. Pamela Charles and Michael Allison now head cast. Available.

"Take Me Along," Shubert-Bill Bendix is in charge now of this musical version of long ago small-town family life. Heavy weekends, otherwise available.

X-"Tenderloin," 46th Street-Maurice Evans as a crusading cleric in musical purge of Old New York's sin spots. Party bookings make tickets scarce.

"The Best Man," Morosco-Melvyn Douglas, Lee Tracy and Frank Lovejoy satirize the national political scene. Scarce.

X-"The 49th Cousin," Ambassador-Menasha Skulnik as a father frantic (with comic overtones) over the affairs of three daughters. Available.

X-"The Hostage," Cort (moves to Barrymore Nov. 14)-Brendan Behan's gleeful spree of comment, loosely pegged to events in a Dublin hovel. Available.

"The Miracle Worker," Playhouse-Anne Bancroft and Patty Duke in memorable dramatization of Helen Keller's childhood. Scarce.

"The Music Man," Broadway-Bert Parks capers as the Pied Piper of 1910 Iowa village life. Available.

"The Sound of Music," Lunt-Fontanne-Mary Martin carols the story of a famous singing family; the final opus of Richard Rodgers and the late Oscar Hammerstein II. Order in advance.

"The Tenth Man," Booth-Hebrew legend and Freudian psychology collide in poetic drama by Paddy Chayefsky. The non-starred cast is splendid. Weekends heavy, early week tickets available.

X-"The Wall," Billy Rose-Based on John Hersey's novel of the destruction of Warsaw's wartime ghetto. George Scott heads cast. Available.

"Toys in the Attic," Hudson-Jason Robards Jr., Irene Worth and Maureen Stapleton in Lillian Hellman's latest family of distraught Southerners. Weekends scarce.

STEP IN THE RIVER

Southern Political Empire Is Described

A STEP IN THE RIVER By Francis Irby Gwaltney (Random House, $3.95).

Despite a few little off-color phrases in this book, it is one just about everyone interested in politics should read. Although it is fiction, the lesson in it is all too true.

When Preacher Clutts, a self-styled evangelist thoroughly versed in the art of wooing bucolic voters, declined his annual bribe and decided to run for governor of a Southern state, he set into action a wild, brutal, and corrupt political campaign.

Against his will, Calvin Hall, the narrator of this story, became involved in the political fray. He had never had much interest in politics, even though one of his cousins was political boss of the state and another was Clutts' opponent.

Calvin was pressed into service to fly his cousins and their aide around on a frenzied tour of the rural districts, a tour that, in the end, was conducted like a tawdry carnival. As he watched the tumbling clowns, listened to the meaningless promises and vile accusations, he recorded with increasing awareness and disillusionment the greed, the lust, and the total dishonesty of the campaigners. Then, armed with the love of a woman reporter who was opposed to his cousin's political methods, Calvin came to the conclusion that an evil world does not necessarily collapse of its own corruption. He was not able to act on this knowledge, however, until after he had witnessed a shocking scene of depravity.

This novel is no ordinary dissection of contemporary Southern manners and morals. It is a forceful, highly explosive, and timely exploration of the precarious foundations of a family political empire and of how one young man lost his innocence but gained his maturity.

A Civil War Treasury Of Tales, Legends

A Civil War Treasury Of Tales, Legends, and Folklore by B. A. Botkin (Random House, Inc., $7.95).

For those who like to read about the Civil War, this is a must book. More than almost any other American war, the Civil War was a storyteller's war. It is also our national epic, The American Iliad.

This book contains a rich sampling of Civil War storytelling of all types — personal, narrative, anecdotes, hero tales, legends, historical traditions, yarns, tall tales, jests, strange tales, fables.

Culled from a wide variety of contemporary sources — letters, diaries, newspapers, periodicals, pamphlets and from the great body of Civil War reminiscences and regimental histories, over 330 stories have been arranged both chronologically and by subject to form a story history of the war.

The whole constitutes a collective saga of the human side of the Civil War, its typical experiences.

Another Civil War Work Good

Why The North Won The Civil War, published by the Louisiana State University Press ($2.95).

An excellent book, both for background material and enjoyable reading.

The book is put together by five of the country's leading Civil War scholars and it offers new and unique insights into this perennially fascinating question of Why the North Won the War.

Several reasons are listed. One points to the staggering economic superiority of the North. Another was the fact that the civilian resources of the South were impotent when pitted against those of the North under the conditions of war. Surprisingly, a third reason listed was the fact that the Confederacy was too democratic to win a war.

Verdi Opera Is Current Sensation

NEW YORK (UPI)—It's hardly believable that music capable of animating an American emotion of 1960 could have been composed in Italy 120 years ago, but how else can you account for Verdi's opera "Nabucco" being a current success on the boards of the Metropolitan Opera?

As operatic art it isn't much. No one has ever seriously suggested otherwise, not even at the time of its first performances in Italy in 1841. Verdi was young then and few if any could see he was a giant among geniuses who was going to spreadeagle Italian opera with many masterpieces.

It was only his third opera. He was handicapped emotionally as well as technically. His wife and two small children had all died within months of one another. "Nabucco" has rated so poorly among his total operas that only this season did it get its first performance at the Met although the Met has always been a house wholeheartedly devoted to Verdi.

"Nabucco" was a success in Italy in 1841 and for many years after that not because it was great opera but because it was a great affirmation of freedom and the sanctity of the free individual.

RUNNING THE SCALES

With JOHN CALE

With the "Seven Year Itch" closing a successful eight-day run at Selman Field Playhouse last week, the Monroe Little Theatre will relinquish the live stage to a mass effort by a group equally stage struck.

The Junior Charity League held a pow-wow Tuesday to send up the first smoke signal for the 1960 "Follies." The last of these streamlined home talent variety shows was held in the spring of 1957 and was dubbed "Holidaze." It was just that for the cast, director and audience.

PROJECT

Funds from ticket sales of the last effort went to the purchase of a permanent fence for the Bendel Memorial Little League Stadium in Forsythe Park, a station wagon, tables and wheelchairs for the Cerebral Palsy Center, a movie projector for the Y.M.C.A. and vertical blinds for the Carolyn Rose Strauss Rehabilitation Center. Money from this year's effort is directed toward purchase of special equipment for a school for hard of hearing children planned for the Monroe area.

Not only does the "Follies" workout provide funds for the organization's well - administered projects, but serves as a recreational outlet for a group of women who work from 80 to 100 hours annually for community services.

Highlights of the 1957 show included a group of "lost" Indians who got off their beaten track, then made tracks clear off the reservation. The result was a true example of ultra-modern dance with no beat, no two Indians dancing alike and finally, no Indians. Following the exit—or countdown—the audience called for more. But since the act had not been rehearsed as presented, there was no way to perform an encore.

There was also a large group "Mardi Gras" scene including the entire 115-member cast which was as colorful and lively as anything on the professional stage. So it's "Follies" time again; keep an ear to the ground for latest developments.

WEEK'S EVENTS

The Crossett, Ark., Community Concerts Series opens this week with a program by Richard Leibert, organist and chief of music at the Radio City Music Hall. The concert is set for Tuesday evening in the Crossett Municipal Auditorium.

The Mantovani orchestra is on the bill Friday for a concert at Neville Auditorium. The 45-piece orchestra with a specially tailored string section features popular and light classical selections. The concert, set for 8:15 p.m., is the second offering on the Northeast Concert Series. According to Dr. Harry Lemert, series manager, a limited number of memberships is still open and may be obtained through the office of the Fine Arts Division at Northeast.

Over 50 Die In Costa Rica Flash Floods

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Fresh floods in the northern province of Guanacaste have forced the evacuation of more than 1,000 persons, authorities reported Saturday.

The floods, resulting from eight days of heavy rains, have claimed the lives of more than 50 persons in different parts of the nation. Many cities and towns have been isolated by washouts of major roads, including the inter-American highway.

Neighboring Nicaragua also has been hard hit. It has been declared a disaster zone by the Red Cross as a result of floods that caused 50 deaths.

U.S. embassy sources said Panama-based planes will be sent to Nicaragua with aid for flood victims. Help also is expected from international organizations.

Garcia Popular Name

MANILA (AP) — Garcia is a popular name in Philippine politics. Avelino P. Garcia, a political unknown, has filed as candidate for the 1961 presidential elections. President Carlos P. Garcia has not yet filed but is expected to. There were four Garcias in the 1957 campaign but the election commission rejected three on grounds they were merely trying to prejudice Carlos Garcia's candidacy.

POLITICAL GARDEN

Professional Politician Is Working Grass Roots

Editor's Note—In the north half of the 6th Assembly District on Manhattan's crowded East Side the Republican party counts on one man to produce majorities for GOP candidates in one tiny cell of the national body politic. He's a district leader, and across the country his number is legion. Here's a close-up of the man and his job.

By PAUL BUIAR

NEW YORK (AP) — Politics sprout from the grass roots. And Vincent F. Albano Jr. is a man who keeps them watered.

He is a professional politician, one of many thousands who labor in the political garden day in, day out, year in, year out.

His job: to win elections.

Vincent Albano is a Republican, but that's not important here. What is important is that he is a typical professional politician. His kind makes the wheels turn in both political parties.

To know him, to see how he runs his district, is to understand the basic fuel that makes a political bandwagon move.

"I'm a mitt-flopper from way back," Albano says.

"We have at least 10 big street rallies in my district during a campaign. But it's the sidewalk campaigning, walking down the street with the candidates, shaking hands ("mitt slopping" on Albano's East Side) and saying hello—that's the heart of it."

Albano is one of 31 Republican leaders on the island of Manhattan. In each party, there are dozens more in the rest of New York City, hundreds in New York State, thousands of others across the country. Whether the stage is big city sidewalk or country courthouse square, the role is the same.

Albano's domain is the north half of the 6th Assembly District, home of 80,000 persons. His job is to see they vote for his candidates.

"You're only as strong in politics as you are in your home district," he says.

"A district leader in New York a part-time employment manager, part-time personnel expert, part-time diplomat and salesman for the party, and a full-time roving lay psychiatrist — without pay," he says.

"Dorothy Dix I'm not, but still I'm called in as a marriage and family counselor. I listen and do what I can to help."

He's been best man at weddings and godfather at christenings so many times he's lost count.

"But we have calendars, and they all hear from me on the appropriate day," he added.

"This is a nice district but kids and sometimes they can get into trouble," Albano said. "Where do the parents go? I do what I can. We sponsor a baseball team. And we've got $1,600 scholarships for exceptionally talented but underprivileged kids."

There are little favors like passes to ball games, the track or fights, or honorary memberships in patrolmens' organizations. That's for the constituents.

"Wherever I go, I pay," says Albano.

Then there's the hard sell. During a campaign there are 150,000 doorbells that have to be rung, 15,000 phone calls to be made, 125,000 separate mailings.

On election day Albano's organization provides babysitters. If the weather is bad, there are 25 cars ready to take voters to the polls.

If the groundwork has been sound, if the voters remember, Albano wins. But wins what?

Patronage, for one, sometimes totaling up to $1 million a year. The figure sounds high for a Republican district in Democratic New York City, but remember the New York State Legislature is Republican, and all professionals are practical.

There are about 25 "good" jobs paying up to $10,000 annually on which Albano, a lion among GOP district leaders, has some say.

Fifty "so-so" jobs pay less, and there are a variety of part-time or "one-shot" jobs that may add up to about $450,000. Not all are public payroll. Often a businessman will call Albano when he needs workers simply because he knows Albano has people available for work.

Then there's the satisfaction of winning—and the power that goes with it. That's the attraction for the hundreds of volunteers without whom Albano, a volunteer himself, would be helpless.

"It probably sounds corny, but politics is something you have to have in your blood," says Albano, who presides daily at the East Side Republican Club. "And you haven't got it in your blood unless you love people. I was 26 before the full meaning of this was driven home to me. And corny as it sounds, the teacher was my mother.

"She came into my club for the first time. She looked at all the people waiting to see me and said: 'You should be flattered. All these people, asking for advice, for help. But remember, son, what ever they do or say, they're here because they need help. Put yourself in their shoes and try to help.'

"I guide myself by this. It's a terrific thrill to see a guy come in with his chin scraping the floor and his backside showing through the seat of his pants and then to have him leave with a smile, a coat and pants that match, and maybe a chance to earn a living. Call it flattery if you like, but what ever you call it, it's a great satisfaction."

Corn or not, Albano was born with politics in his blood. His father was a steel worker and a Democratic district captain.

"My father would come home late from the club. He would waken my mother and tell her what had happened. I was fascinated and decided at a time when kids my age were deciding to be baseball players that politics was for me."

As Albano grew up he became the "gopher" of the Democratic club. "I had to go for coffee, go for sandwiches, go for messages."

Albano was regarded as a comer by the time he reached his 20s. But he broke with the regular party organization when he was passed over at the last minute for a job he'd been promised. He ultimately wound up in the Republican camp.

To see how he could do, the GOP brass assigned him to help in a district outside his home grounds in a special congressional election in 1949. The Democrat was Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., regarded as unbeatable.

"We were clobbered," says Albano. But Roosevelt took Albano's area by only a 2-1 majority. "Everywhere else he swept everything in sight."

As a dubious reward, the GOP county committee later that year elected Albano leader of his present district, an area that had voted about 6-1 Democratic as far back as any one could remember.

Luckily, big, new apartment developments were bringing a new group of middle-class residents, but the Sixth is still a jumble of racial and political groups.

"Talk about New York City being a melting pot. We've got the pot, the grease and the fire."

But Albano also had another ingredient: patience.

William S. Shea was Albano's first candidate, running for a city judgeship. In that 1949 campaign, Shea became the first local Republican ever elected in the district, squeezing in by 75 votes out of 41,000 cast. But more significantly, in a congressional primary Albano turned out more than 1,000 votes for his party in five election precincts without a single Democratic ballot being cast.

"The night this happened," says Albano, "the precinct captains tore the shirt off my back. And I loved it. We were 5-year-old on a summer picnic. It was a ball."

Albano started out as a 150-a-month bank page boy, won a civil service exam for a job in the City Housing Authority as accountant, and ultimately became a $9,000-a-year employe in the state tax appraiser's office before resigning last year to form his own public relations corporation. He is also vice president of a bank.

He and his wife have six children but—unpardonable for a politician—he can only remember the birthday of one of the youngsters. His eldest child, Carole, was born St. Valentine's Day.

192,290 Make Use Of State Streams, Lakes

WASHINGTON (Special) —Louisiana's streams and lakes attracted 192,290 anglers during fiscal 1959, the Fish and Wildlife Service announced yesterday.

Sales of fishing permits in the state amounted to $259,106.

Nationally, during fiscal 1959, fishermen in all 50 states spent $50,374,832 for fishing licenses. tags, permits and stamps required by state fish and game departments to legally fish for sport or recreation. This was a hike of almost $5 million over the $45,410,462 spent by sport fishermen for similar permits during 1958.

A total of 19,914,021 fishermen throughout the country purchased one or more types of fishing permits during 1959 — a decline of 1.3 per cent from the number of anglers reported for the states during 1958.

Court Action In Farmerville Case Is Asked

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP)—The federal government has asked the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals to overrule U.S. District Judge Ben C. Dawkins in quashing an indictment against N. Bryant James of Farmerville.

James, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, was indicted three times by a federal grand jury on charges of embezzling furniture and fixtures from a bank he once headed in Farmerville.

In throwing the case out of court, Judge Dawkins said "the attempted prosecution of this defendant has reached the point where it fairly could be called persecution."

He ordered the indictment quashed on the grounds the government did not present any evidence to the grand jury when it sought the third indictment.

Court officials said it was the first appeal by the government in a criminal case in many years.

Over 50 Die In Costa Rica Flash Floods

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Fresh floods in the northern province of Guanacaste have forced the evacuation of more than 1,000 persons, authorities reported Saturday.

The floods, resulting from eight days of heavy rains, have claimed the lives of more than 50 persons in different parts of the nation. Many cities and towns have been isolated by washouts of major roads, including the inter-American highway.

Neighboring Nicaragua also has been hard hit. It has been declared a disaster zone by the Red Cross as a result of floods that caused 50 deaths.

U.S. embassy sources said Panama-based planes will be sent to Nicaragua with aid for flood victims. Help also is expected from international organizations.

Garcia Popular Name

MANILA (AP) — Garcia is a popular name in Philippine politics. Avelino P. Garcia, a political unknown, has filed as candidate for the 1961 presidential elections. President Carlos P. Garcia has not yet filed but is expected to. There were four Garcias in the 1957 campaign but the election commission rejected three on grounds they were merely trying to prejudice Carlos Garcia's candidacy.

POLITICAL GARDEN

Professional Politician Is Working Grass Roots

Editor's Note—In the north half of the 6th Assembly District on Manhattan's crowded East Side the Republican party counts on one man to produce majorities for GOP candidates in one tiny cell of the national body politic. He's a district leader, and across the country his number is legion. Here's a close-up of the man and his job.

By PAUL BUIAR

NEW YORK (AP) — Politics sprout from the grass roots. And Vincent F. Albano Jr. is a man who keeps them watered.

He is a professional politician, one of many thousands who labor in the political garden day in, day out, year in, year out.

His job: to win elections.

Vincent Albano is a Republican, but that's not important here. What is important is that he is a typical professional politician. His kind makes the wheels turn in both political parties.

To know him, to see how he runs his district, is to understand the basic fuel that makes a political bandwagon move.

"I'm a mitt-flopper from way back," Albano says.

"We have at least 10 big street rallies in my district during a campaign. But it's the sidewalk campaigning, walking down the street with the candidates, shaking hands ("mitt slopping" on Albano's East Side) and saying hello—that's the heart of it."

Albano is one of 31 Republican leaders on the island of Manhattan. In each party, there are dozens more in the rest of New York City, hundreds in New York State, thousands of others across the country. Whether the stage is big city sidewalk or country courthouse square, the role is the same.

Albano's domain is the north half of the 6th Assembly District, home of 80,000 persons. His job is to see they vote for his candidates.

"You're only as strong in politics as you are in your home district," he says.

"A district leader in New York a part-time employment manager, part-time personnel expert, part-time diplomat and salesman for the party, and a full-time roving lay psychiatrist — without pay," he says.

"Dorothy Dix I'm not, but still I'm called in as a marriage and family counselor. I listen and do what I can to help."

He's been best man at weddings and godfather at christenings so many times he's lost count.

"But we have calendars, and they all hear from me on the appropriate day," he added.

"This is a nice district but kids and sometimes they can get into trouble," Albano said. "Where do the parents go? I do what I can. We sponsor a baseball team. And we've got $1,600 scholarships for exceptionally talented but underprivileged kids."

There are little favors like passes to ball games, the track or fights, or honorary memberships in patrolmens' organizations. That's for the constituents.

"Wherever I go, I pay," says Albano.

Then there's the hard sell. During a campaign there are 150,000 doorbells that have to be rung, 15,000 phone calls to be made, 125,000 separate mailings.

On election day Albano's organization provides babysitters. If the weather is bad, there are 25 cars ready to take voters to the polls.

If the groundwork has been sound, if the voters remember, Albano wins. But wins what?

Patronage, for one, sometimes totaling up to $1 million a year. The figure sounds high for a Republican district in Democratic New York City, but remember the New York State Legislature is Republican, and all professionals are practical.

There are about 25 "good" jobs paying up to $10,000 annually on which Albano, a lion among GOP district leaders, has some say.

Fifty "so-so" jobs pay less, and there are a variety of part-time or "one-shot" jobs that may add up to about $450,000. Not all are public payroll. Often a businessman will call Albano when he needs workers simply because he knows Albano has people available for work.

Then there's the satisfaction of winning—and the power that goes with it. That's the attraction for the hundreds of volunteers without whom Albano, a volunteer himself, would be helpless.

"It probably sounds corny, but politics is something you have to have in your blood," says Albano, who presides daily at the East Side Republican Club. "And you haven't got it in your blood unless you love people. I was 26 before the full meaning of this was driven home to me. And corny as it sounds, the teacher was my mother.

"She came into my club for the first time. She looked at all the people waiting to see me and said: 'You should be flattered. All these people, asking for advice, for help. But remember, son, what ever they do or say, they're here because they need help. Put yourself in their shoes and try to help.'

"I guide myself by this. It's a terrific thrill to see a guy come in with his chin scraping the floor and his backside showing through the seat of his pants and then to have him leave with a smile, a coat and pants that match, and maybe a chance to earn a living. Call it flattery if you like, but what ever you call it, it's a great satisfaction."

Corn or not, Albano was born with politics in his blood. His father was a steel worker and a Democratic district captain.

"My father would come home late from the club. He would waken my mother and tell her what had happened. I was fascinated and decided at a time when kids my age were deciding to be baseball players that politics was for me."

As Albano grew up he became the "gopher" of the Democratic club. "I had to go for coffee, go for sandwiches, go for messages."

Albano was regarded as a comer by the time he reached his 20s. But he broke with the regular party organization when he was passed over at the last minute for a job he'd been promised. He ultimately wound up in the Republican camp.

To see how he could do, the GOP brass assigned him to help in a district outside his home grounds in a special congressional election in 1949. The Democrat was Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., regarded as unbeatable.

"We were clobbered," says Albano. But Roosevelt took Albano's area by only a 2-1 majority. "Everywhere else he swept everything in sight."

As a dubious reward, the GOP county committee later that year elected Albano leader of his present district, an area that had voted about 6-1 Democratic as far back as any one could remember.

Luckily, big, new apartment developments were bringing a new group of middle-class residents, but the Sixth is still a jumble of racial and political groups.

"Talk about New York City being a melting pot. We've got the pot, the grease and the fire."

"The night this happened," says Albano, "the precinct captains tore the shirt off my back. And I loved it. We were 5-year-old on a summer picnic. It was a ball."

Albano started out as a 150-a-month bank page boy, won a civil service exam for a job in the City Housing Authority as accountant, and ultimately became a $9,000-a-year employe in the state tax appraiser's office before resigning last year to form his own public relations corporation. He is also vice president of a bank.

Court Action In Farmerville Case Is Asked

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP)—The federal government has asked the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals to overrule U.S. District Judge Ben C. Dawkins in quashing an indictment against N. Bryant James of Farmerville.

James, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, was indicted three times by a federal grand jury on charges of embezzling furniture and fixtures from a bank he once headed in Farmerville.

In throwing the case out of court, Judge Dawkins said "the attempted prosecution of this defendant has reached the point where it fairly could be called persecution."

He ordered the indictment quashed on the grounds the government did not present any evidence to the grand jury when it sought the third indictment.

Court officials said it was the first appeal by the government in a criminal case in many years.

E. N. London, construct brick veneer residence, four rooms and bath, 210 Moore Ave., 900 square feet, $5000.

Tuesday, October 25:

C. A. Calhoun, add porch to frame residence 1101 Ouachita, $400.

Virginia Etier, add bath to frame residence, 1507 Thomas, $200.

R. D. Mitchell, move frame residence from 601 Park Ave. to Bon Aire Drive outside the city limits, 28 feet 10 inches by 52 feet by 14 feet six inches high, $3000.

L. H. Leverette, add carport to brick veneer residence, 1703 Lexington St., $150.

Wednesday, October 26:

Elbert Brown, add two bedrooms and carport to frame residence, 509 Wilson St., 496 square feet, $2200.

R. O. Ware, received three permits to add bath and porch to frame residences at: 1416 DeSiard St., 70 square feet, $150; 1418 DeSiard St., 70 square feet, $150 and 1420 DeSiard St., 50 square feet, $100.

Guy Antley, construct brick veneer residence, five rooms, two baths, 2014 Sherwood, 1220 square feet, $12,800.

Thursday, October 27:

Friday, October 28:

H. M. Carter, add one room, storage, to frame residence, 2700 Renwick St., 48 square feet, $70.

Wildcat Well Is Completed In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—A new wildcat oil well in Pike County has been completed by Barnwell Drilling Co.

The well is the Fernwood No. 1, which has pumped 95 barrels of oil per day from the Tuscaloosa sand at 10,952-72 feet. The well is in section 30, 3 north, 8 east, about three miles east of the McComb oil field.

Humble Oil and Refining Co. is below 15,000 feet in its important Yazoo County wildcat, the Thompson No. 1, sec. 3-9n-1w, about four miles north of Bentonia. The well has logged oil shows of undetermined commercial worth in the Hosston formation at 10,170 feet and also at 10,304 feet. The venture is to go deep enough to test the Smackover lime, with the depth now 500 feet below the original contract depth.

It is reported the Smackover lime has not been encountered.

Also in Yazoo County, Gulf Oil has resumed drilling below 10,618 feet in its wildcat, the West Satartia Unit No. 1, sec. 33-10n-4w, after running electrical log to 10,618 feet. Contract depth was 10,600 feet, with operators deepening to 11,100 feet. It was reported only slight oil shows were logged to the original contract depth.

In the recently discovered Deep Knoxo field of Walthall and Marion counties, Humble is preparing to run production tests at its Fernwood Lumber Co. No. 1, sec. 7-2n-123, on the Walthall County side. The well was drilled to 13,510 feet with production casing set to 12,813 feet to test the commercial value of gas sands logged.

In the new Smithdale field of Amite County, Southwest Gas Producing Co. is preparing to complete its Board of Supervisors No. 1, sec. 16-4n-6e, with operators testing a perforated interval at 11,058-66 feet. Also in the Smithdale field, Sun Oil has location cleared for its A. W. Wilson No. 1, sec. 22-4n-6e, a scheduled 11,200 foot try.

In Amite County two important wildcat ventures are drilling. E. L. Erickson is below 10,850 feet in his test, the Gaughan-O'Connor No. 1, sec. 6-3n-3e. Justice Mears Oil Co. is below 9,500 feet in its Ewell No. 1, sec. 28-1n-3e, with the venture to go to 12,300 feet.

NEW RULES ADOPTED

FPC Shows Speed In Pipeline Case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thanks to speedup rules adopted last spring, the Federal Power Commission is beginning to see over the top of a backlog of natural gas pipeline rate cases that has plagued it since the Phillips decision in 1954.

That was the year the Supreme Court ordered it to regulate the price of gas sold in interstate commerce. The backlog began building then and got so big the commission, with no help from Congress, had to find a way out.

RULES

The rules actually began shaping up 11 months ago with steps to shorten proceedings which had taken years. New type pre-hearing conferences were started. In these some legal obstacles were removed and issues were narrowed so that when hearings finally began such matters no longer bogged progress.

Also, written testimony and exhibits began to be exchanged, and where a party refused to back up the genuineness of a document or to testify factually, he had to pay the cost of producing the required proof.

GORMAN PLAN

Then came the so - called Gorman plan. This was based on the theory that most rate increases are too high anyway and that the excess amounts could be eliminated without going through a long and tedious investigation.

Under this plan the commission breaks a case into parts. In the first phase evidence is resented on issues such as rate of return and legal tax allowances. These do not require much field examination and on that basis the commission decides to issue an order adjusting a company's rates accordingly.

If the five-month rate increase suspension period had expired and the rates had gone into effect, a partial refund could be made at the time. Meantime the FPC staff could make field investigations and, after a hearing, the commission could announce a second order disposing of the remaining issues. The company's rate could then be further adjusted and more refunds ordered if necessary.

The big advantage here for both company and commission is that the procedure some times reduce rates subject to refund before final disposition of all issues. Meanwhile the commission, to discourage applications for excessive rates, raised the interest on refunds 1 per cent—from 6 to 7.

INVESTIGATES

The commission began putting the overall formula to good use last April 1. This month Chairman Jerome K. Kuykendall proudly announced that 19 out of 26 cases taken up since then had been disposed of as of Sept. 30. These were cases which normally each take years to wind up. Also as of Sept. 30, investigations were underway in 29 other cases, with conferences to be held as soon as possible.

The important thing for the procedure-weary gas industry is that even while new cases are being filed, the commission is keeping far enough ahead of its tremendous backlog to make a net gain and insure faster action in the future. This was unheard of in years past.

When the new 87th Congress convenes in January, Kuykendall is ready once again to appeal for action on Gas Act amendments which would knock even bigger holes in the logjam.

Business Briefs

New Safety Station

Monroe recently gained its first official safety inspection station with the licensing of Ryan Chevrolet last week.

This inspection station is one of 3,000 needed throughout the state for the inauguration of the safety inspection program in January.

Appointments Made

Miss Bonnie DeFee and Miss Billie Marie Stell, both graduates of Northeast Louisiana State College and natives of the Twin Cities area, have been appointed to positions of home service representative by Louisiana Power and Light Co. Miss DeFee has been assigned to the Company's Donaldsonville district, and Miss Stell to the Columbia, Olla and Jena areas.

Three other employees at the company's Sterlington Steam electric generating station recently became eligible for company service pins. They are: A. J. Ward, Sr., 35-year pin; Prentiss H. Boyd, technician, 15-year pin; and Harold E. Williams, 15-year pin.

Leave For Honolulu

Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Frantom will depart Tuesday for Honolulu, Hawaii for a 10 day all expense trip. The trip was made possible through the salesmanship of Mr. and Mrs. Frantom.

Oil Reserves Search

DALLAS — The search for new oil reserves in the United States during 1959 involved expenditures exceeding $2.9 billion, attended by the higest cost per exploratory well on record, according to a new study to be published in the November issue of the Petroleum Engineer, by H. J. Struth, Dallas - based Petroleum Consultant.

Will Address Group

A host of prominent leaders in government, industry and education will address sessions of the National Association of Real Estate Boards and its nine affiliated councils and institutes during the 53rd annual convention of Realtors in Dallas, Tex. Nov. 11-17.

Orders Given Regarding State Oil, Gas Fields

BATON ROUGE (UPI) — The Louisiana Conservation Department has amended the docket for a series of hearings here Nov. 9, and announced orders regarding operation of several oil and gas fields.

It said a hearing on a replacement well for a Church Point field unit was added to the Nov. 9 docket.

Field orders announced:

Iota—Six - month extension for hearing on permanent units for the Duson sand.

Montegut—Rules and one unit for the Textularia "W" No. 10 sand.

Rousseu—Revision of units in the UL-8 sand.

Market Termed Technical For Past Session

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market was full of "technicalities" last week.

The experts blamed the week's early decline on "technical" factors, likewise the mid-week upswing and the late downturn. If this isn't enough, they seemed to say, "technically" the market is also expected to go sidewise for a while.

One of the happiest reasons for offering a "technical" excuse for market developments is that it's hard to refute when others are not available. At any rate, the reasoning seemed virtually unanimous among the analysts who moved to explain all the gyrations of a stock market which ended just about where it began.

Session Ends With Slight Upside Edge

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market last week jolted down sharply, recovered vigorously and ended about even with a slight upside edge.

As it skidded early in the week, both The Associated Press overall average and the Dow Jones industrial average broke through the previous 1960 lows reached in September and set new lows for the year.

Political uncertainties combined with a rising debate among economists as to whether the country was in a "recession" and, if so, how long it would last, accompanied the market's gyrations.

Many third quarter earnings were poor, as expected, some were surprisingly good. The well-advertised "profit squeeze" was apparent in the quarterly financial reports. Steel production was scheduled for a sharp cutback.

More bullish was news that the cost-of-living index and manufacturers' new orders had risen in September. However, unemployment in October was estimated as topping the September rate.

EXPANDS

The Federal Reserve System announced plans for expanding the lending power of banks. The British bank rate was cut to 5½ per cent from 6 per cent, a step which would tend to draw some American money invested abroad back to Wall Street and to help firm the condition of the dollar. Meanwhile, the price of gold bullion in the London market continued at such levels that speculation in gold mining issues resumed, though at a much slacker rate than last week.

The Dow Jones industrial average sank to a new 1960 closing low of 566.05 on Tuesday but ended the week at 577.92, making an unimportant net gain of .37.

The AP 60-stock average, also on Tuesday, dropped to a 1960 low of 202.60 and closed the week at 206.00, for a small rise of 0.2.

Volume was 15,862,940 shares compared with 12,932,430 the previous week.

MOST ACTIVE

The most active issue this week on the American Stock Exchange was Webb & Knapp, up ¼ at 1⅞ 123,800 shares.

Apparent uncertainty over the state of the economy and the approaching presidential election was reflected by lower bond prices in October.

The corporate setback amounted to about half of September's which was the worst of the year. September and October was the first time since March and April that corporate bond prices declined two months in a row. Rails were the big loser this month, falling close to a full index point in the AP averages.

With one trading session of the month remaining, most Treasury bonds were a point or so below their Oct. 1 level. The changes ranged from about plus ⅛ to off 1½ with the losses heaviest in the long end. Last month governments picked up fractions of a point.

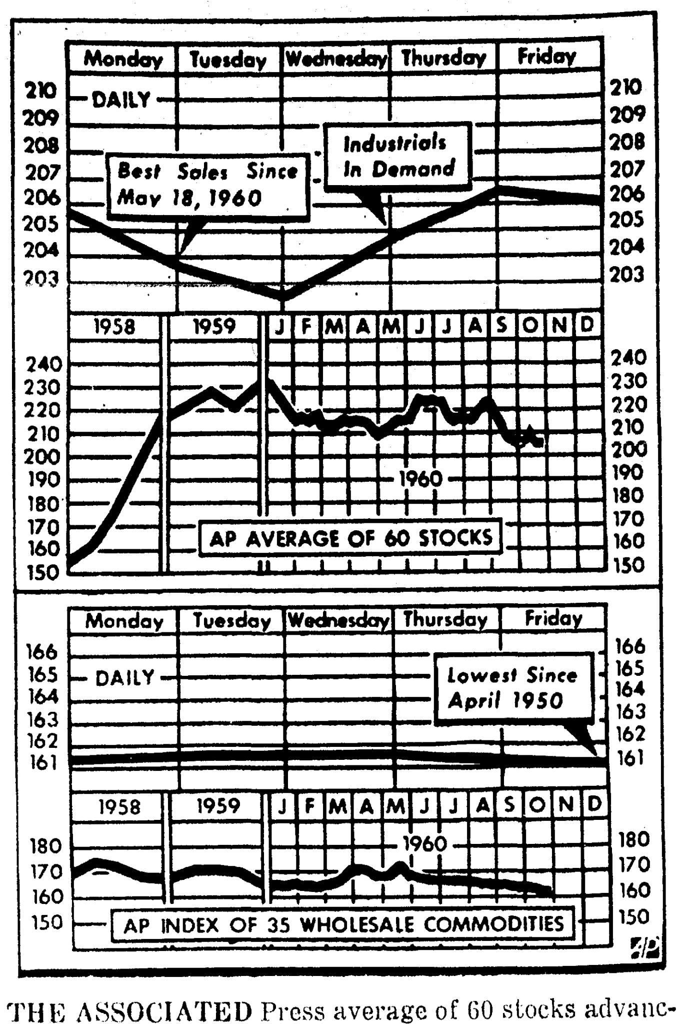
Volume for the week jumped to the third highest of the year at $29,931,000 par value on the New York Stock Exchange compared with $21,604,000 the previous week.

Wheat Futures Advance Sharply

CHICAGO (UPI) — Wheat futures advanced sharply on tight supplies and export buying this week on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Soybeans were little changed, but other grains finished far below the week-ago level.

FINANCIAL $ OIL-GAS NEWS



THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks advanced slightly last week to close at 206.0 from 205.8 a week ago. The commodity index continued its downward trend for the fourth straight week, closing at 161.0 from 161.2 in the preceding period. This is the lowest point since April 28, 1950. GOOD, BAD OR SO-SO?

Big Question Hits Politics, Business

NEW YORK (AP)—Are economic conditions good, bad or just so-so? That question boiled through business and politics last week with widespread disagreement.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon's contention that the economy is strong was disputed by Sen. John F. Kennedy with the statement that it is slipping into a recession.

The chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, Raymond J. Saulnier, said the economy "is in a good position to make another advance and I don't think we are going to wait too long."

Dr. John Lintner, Harvard professor of business administration, asserted that "a recession of substantial proportions is in the making."

Officers of the American Retail Federation, representing 800,000 retailers, predicted this will be the biggest sales year in history and expressed the opinion that the economy is robust and merely going through a little pause.

"I don't think there is any reason to be too pessimistic about business," commented Roger Blough, chairman of U. S. Steel Corp.

DISCOURAGED

The stock market, discouraged by the business outlook, hit a two-year low last Tuesday and then staged a snappy rally.

While the recovery was due partly to technical factors, a spate of better business developments improved sentiment.

These included Federal Reserve Board action to expand the lending power of banks; a cut in the British bank rate, which it was hoped would help keep American investment funds at home; increasing automobile sales, and a good rate of freight carloadings.

Blough said he looked forward to some improvement in the demand for steel in the next few months, but production this week wasn't encouraging. Output was estimated at 53.2 per cent of capacity, down from 55.4 last week.

The drop came ta a time when production normally rises, making it plain that users still haven't reached the bottom of the inventory barrel.

AUTOS

Auto production kept humming with an estimated output of 148,856 passenger cars, up 1.6 per cent from the 146,571 the previous week and 101,786 a year ago.

Sales for the first two-thirds of October totaled 352,000 cars, compared with 338,000 in the like period of October 1959, when a record of 527,000 was set for the entire month.

The Commerce Department reported that new orders received by manufacturers in Sptember rose for the second straight month to a seasonally adjusted $30.4 billion from $30 billion in August.

Business suffered another blow from Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime in Cuba when 167 American-owned companies were nationalized. The firms were valued at nearly $250 million. They included properties of Sears, Roebuck & Co., F. W. Woolworth Co., Reynolds International Aluminum, General Electric and Westinghouse.

Retail trade increased appreciably over the previous week and moderately over a year ago, helped by cold weather in many areas and extensive sales promotions. Shoppers' interest centered on apparel, furniture, food products and new passenger cars.

The cost of living rose to an all-time high, advancing two-tenths of 1 per cent in September. This put the Department of Labor's living cost index at 126.8 per cent of the 1947-49 base period. Costs of practically everything except new and used cars went up. The department said another rise can be expected this month.

BERN Switzerland (AP) — The government will buy either Swedish or French jet fighters to modernize the Swiss air force. It says U.S. types are too expensive.

GREAT STRIDES MADE IN DEVELOPMENT

Bicycles Move Up With Auto Industry

By BEN PHLEGAR

DETROIT (AP) — Masters of ceremonies at banquets feel compelled to tell a funny story or two to warm up the audience for the after dinner speaking.

Chrysler President L. L. Colbert was no exception at the recent auto industry formal dinner at the National Automobile Show.

Colbert said he thought the time was ripe to disclose one of the industry's best kept secrets—the real reason for introduction of compact cars.

"In 1900 when the first of these dinners and shows was held," Colbert related, "there were 10 million bicycles in this country and only 8,000 cars. Now there are some 23 million bicycles. That's why we brought out our smaller cars. After 60 years we're still trying to get people off those bicycles."

The story drew the desired laugh from the auto industry executives.

DEBT

Now along comes the Bicycle Institute of America, which represents eight major American manufacturers of bicycles, with the claim that the modern automobile owes a lot to the bicycles.

In the high flown words of the bicycle people "the most sumptuous vehicles on the road continue to utilize mechanical contrivances originally conceived and manufactured for use on two-wheelers."

Some bicycle developments which were absorbed into the automobile, as compiled by the institute, include:

Pneumatic tires, developed by John B. Dunlop in 1888 when he wrapped the wheel of his son's bibycle in a piece of hosing to provide an easier ride. The cotton cord tire followed in 1892.

Wire wheels, such as those used on the first automobiles. Later they were replaced by wooden spoke wheels and solid discs but the wire wheel has returned to some auto use as a fancy trim item.

BEARINGS

Ball and roller bearings. The institute says use of these by the bike manufacturers helped hasten the developed of hardened steel, so vital to auto building.

The differential axle, invented by James Starkey in 1878 for use on tricycles.

Knee action, which cushions the ride for motorists, was invented in the 1870s to help cyclists over the rough roads of those days. Free wheeling made its appearance on two-wheelers in 1870.

Differential steering was introduced by Sterling Elliott, a bicycle manufacturer, in 1887. He worked out the angles at which wheels must turn in relation to each other to avoid skidding, a basic principle used in auto steering.

TRAINING

The bicycle institute points out most of the pioneers of the auto industry received their early mechanical training in bike shops and it cites, among others, Henry Ford, the Apperson brothers, George N. Pierce, Alexander Winton and Charles E. Duryea.

The Henry Ford Museum and adjacent Greenfield Village in Dearborn have many of the bikes built by these men along with those of the Wright brothers who moved from bicycles to flying machines.

Despite Colbert's joke, bicycle manufacturers claim their products are more popular today than ever. They calculate 27 million bikes are in use in the United States—four million more than Colbert's figures—with more than 55 million riders.

And they estimate 4.5 million students depend on bikes for all or part of their transportation to and from classes through college.

There are about 59 million passenger cars in use in this country and 81.5 million drivers.

The bike business stacks up respectably with the auto business in total volume. A good sales year for autos is one in which six million or more new cars are sold. The bike manufacturers estimate their annual volume at about 3.5 million including imports—a word mighty familiar to the auto people.

Imports are even more of a factor in bicycles than in cars. In 1959, for the first time, imported cars accounted for more than 10 per cent of all auto sales in this country. Imports accounted for 28 per cent of all bike sales.

Even the top exporting countries sound familiar. In cars the leaders are West Germany and England. In bicycles they are England and West Germany.

13 New Wells Are Finaled In Local Oil, Gas District

By RICHARD GREENE
Oil Editor

Oil and gas activities in the 14-parish Monroe district of the State Department of Conservation, apparently unhampered by political affairs that have much of the nation's economy in a dither, produced their biggest month this year with the completion of 13 new wells during the past week.

The total of new oil and gas wells finaled in the district came to 37 for the month of October, and that is well over any previous month's final tally.

There were also 18 new locations staked last week, which brings the total for the month to 77 in the district.

The report, which is compiled by Duncan S. Cook, district manager, also told of 30 wells that are active and six that were declared dry and abandoned.

These are the new completions:

CONCORDIA

Omega Field — John Franks et al's Middleton-Watson no. 1 in sec. 18-7-7E, completed to flow 59 barrels through a 6-64 in. choke from perforations at 4899-4903 ft., tubing pressure 385 lbs., casing pressure 200 lbs., gas oil ratio 375:1, gravity 43.9.

LaSALLE

Summerville Field — Bodcaw Co.'s Bodcaw Fee no. 10-LLS in sec. 22-9-2E, completed to flow 24 barrels through a 18-64 in. choke from perforations at 2505-09 ft.

Tullos Urania Field — Ark Fuel Oil Corp.'s Urania Lbr. Co. "N" no. 22 in sec. 35-10-1E, completed to pump 22 barrels from old hole at 1553-61 ft., gravity 21.1.

LINCOLN

MOREHOUSE

Monroe Field — Columbian C. C.'s Ten Delta B-27 in sec. 3-22-4E, completed to flow 428 MCF, rock pressure 711 lbs.

OUACHITA

Calhoun Field — Ark La Gas Co.'s F. E. Hammonds no. 1-T in sec. 33-18-1E, a triple completion, to flow 3500 MCF through a 16-64 in. choke, tubing pressure 2600 lbs., in Hosston "A" sand at perforations 7196-7215 ft.

TENSAS

Buckhorn Field — Humble Oil and Refining Co.'s V. A. Anderson no. 1 in sec. 26-12-11E, completed to flow 202 barrels through a 11-64 in. choke from perforations at 8710-17 ft., tubing pressure 725 lbs., gas oil ratio 866:1, gravity 40.3.

UNION

Monroe Field — Columbian C. C.'s Interstate no. 3 in sec. 33-22-3E, completed to flow 525 MCF, rock pressure 808 lbs.

La Gas Prod Co.'s Olin Gas Trans Co. no. 19-A in sec. 1-20-2E, completed to flow 1050 MCF, rock pressure 980 lbs.

Following are the new locations:

CATAHOULA

Long Branch Field — B. J. Baird's Olin Ten Delta B-1, located 330 ft. south of the north line and 330 ft. east of the west line of the SE¼-NE¼ of sec. 11-5-5E.

Wallace Lake Field — McGoldrick, Watson and R. H. Alagood's W. E. Cloessner no. 1, located 330 ft. from the south line and 330 ft. from the east line of the SE SW¼ of sec. 11-8-6E.

CONCORDIA

Lower Sunk Lake Field — Hunter Jones' Learned et al A-1, located as follows in sec. 42-2-8E: from the corner come to secs. 41 and 42 and 64, go southeasterly along the sec. line between 42 and 64 for 424 ft. thence at a right angle in a SE direction for 330 ft.

GRANT

Wildcat Field — Justiss Mears Oil Co.'s Olla State Bank et al no. 1, located 760 ft. south and 660 ft. east of the NW corner of sec. 30-9-1E.

Wildcat Well Is Completed In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—A new wildcat oil well in Pike County has been completed by Barnwell Drilling Co.

The well is the Fernwood No. 1, which has pumped 95 barrels of oil per day from the Tuscaloosa sand at 10,952-72 feet. The well is in section 30, 3 north, 8 east, about three miles east of the McComb oil field.

Humble Oil and Refining Co. is below 15,000 feet in its important Yazoo County wildcat, the Thompson No. 1, sec. 3-9n-1w, about four miles north of Bentonia. The well has logged oil shows of undetermined commercial worth in the Hosston formation at 10,170 feet and also at 10,304 feet. The venture is to go deep enough to test the Smackover lime, with the depth now 500 feet below the original contract depth.

It is reported the Smackover lime has not been encountered.

Also in Yazoo County, Gulf Oil has resumed drilling below 10,618 feet in its wildcat, the West Satartia Unit No. 1, sec. 33-10n-4w, after running electrical log to 10,618 feet. Contract depth was 10,600 feet, with operators deepening to 11,100 feet. It was reported only slight oil shows were logged to the original contract depth.

In the recently discovered Deep Knoxo field of Walthall and Marion counties, Humble is preparing to run production tests at its Fernwood Lumber Co. No. 1, sec. 7-2n-123, on the Walthall County side. The well was drilled to 13,510 feet with production casing set to 12,813 feet to test the commercial value of gas sands logged.

In the new Smithdale field of Amite County, Southwest Gas Producing Co. is preparing to complete its Board of Supervisors No. 1, sec. 16-4n-6e, with operators testing a perforated interval at 11,058-66 feet. Also in the Smithdale field, Sun Oil has location cleared for its A. W. Wilson No. 1, sec. 22-4n-6e, a scheduled 11,200 foot try.

In Amite County two important wildcat ventures are drilling. E. L. Erickson is below 10,850 feet in his test, the Gaughan-O'Connor No. 1, sec. 6-3n-3e. Justice Mears Oil Co. is below 9,500 feet in its Ewell No. 1, sec. 28-1n-3e, with the venture to go to 12,300 feet.

NEW RULES ADOPTED

FPC Shows Speed In Pipeline Case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thanks to speedup rules adopted last spring, the Federal Power Commission is beginning to see over the top of a backlog of natural gas pipeline rate cases that has plagued it since the Phillips decision in 1954.

That was the year the Supreme Court ordered it to regulate the price of gas sold in interstate commerce. The backlog began building then and got so big the commission, with no help from Congress, had to find a way out.

RULES

The rules actually began shaping up 11 months ago with steps to shorten proceedings which had taken years. New type pre-hearing conferences were started. In these some legal obstacles were removed and issues were narrowed so that when hearings finally began such matters no longer bogged progress.

Also, written testimony and exhibits began to be exchanged, and where a party refused to back up the genuineness of a document or to testify factually, he had to pay the cost of producing the required proof.

GORMAN PLAN

Then came the so - called Gorman plan. This was based on the theory that most rate increases are too high anyway and that the excess amounts could be eliminated without going through a long and tedious investigation.

Under this plan the commission breaks a case into parts. In the first phase evidence is resented on issues such as rate of return and legal tax allowances. These do not require much field examination and on that basis the commission decides to issue an order adjusting a company's rates accordingly.

If the five-month rate increase suspension period had expired and the rates had gone into effect, a partial refund could be made at the time. Meantime the FPC staff could make field investigations and, after a hearing, the commission could announce a second order disposing of the remaining issues. The company's rate could then be further adjusted and more refunds ordered if necessary.

The big advantage here for both company and commission is that the procedure some times reduce rates subject to refund before final disposition of all issues. Meanwhile the commission, to discourage applications for excessive rates, raised the interest on refunds 1 per cent—from 6 to 7.

INVESTIGATES

The commission began putting the overall formula to good use last April 1. This month Chairman Jerome K. Kuykendall proudly announced that 19 out of 26 cases taken up since then had been disposed of as of Sept. 30. These were cases which normally each take years to wind up. Also as of Sept. 30, investigations were underway in 29 other cases, with conferences to be held as soon as possible.

The important thing for the procedure-weary gas industry is that even while new cases are being filed, the commission is keeping far enough ahead of its tremendous backlog to make a net gain and insure faster action in the future. This was unheard of in years past.

When the new 87th Congress convenes in January, Kuykendall is ready once again to appeal for action on Gas Act amendments which would knock even bigger holes in the logjam.

Business Briefs

New Safety Station

Monroe recently gained its first official safety inspection station with the licensing of Ryan Chevrolet last week.

This inspection station is one of 3,000 needed throughout the state for the inauguration of the safety inspection program in January.

Appointments Made

Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Frantom will depart Tuesday for Honolulu, Hawaii for a 10 day all expense trip. The trip was made possible through the salesmanship of Mr. and Mrs. Frantom.

Oil Reserves Search

DALLAS — The search for new oil reserves in the United States during 1959 involved expenditures exceeding $2.9 billion, attended by the higest cost per exploratory well on record, according to a new study to be published in the November issue of the Petroleum Engineer, by H. J. Struth, Dallas - based Petroleum Consultant.

Will Address Group

A host of prominent leaders in government, industry and education will address sessions of the National Association of Real Estate Boards and its nine affiliated councils and institutes during the 53rd annual convention of Realtors in Dallas, Tex. Nov. 11-17.

Market Termed Technical For Past Session

The experts blamed the week's early decline on "technical" factors, likewise the mid-week upswing and the late downturn. If this isn't enough, they seemed to say, "technically" the market is also expected to go sidewise for a while.

One of the happiest reasons for offering a "technical" excuse for market developments is that it's hard to refute when others are not available. At any rate, the reasoning seemed virtually unanimous among the analysts who moved to explain all the gyrations of a stock market which ended just about where it began.

Orders Given Regarding State Oil, Gas Fields

BATON ROUGE (UPI) — The Louisiana Conservation Department has amended the docket for a series of hearings here Nov. 9, and announced orders regarding operation of several oil and gas fields.

It said a hearing on a replacement well for a Church Point field unit was added to the Nov. 9 docket.

Field orders announced:

Iota—Six - month extension for hearing on permanent units for the Duson sand.

Montegut—Rules and one unit for the Textularia "W" No. 10 sand.

Rousseu—Revision of units in the UL-8 sand.

Session Ends With Slight Upside Edge

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market last week jolted down sharply, recovered vigorously and ended about even with a slight upside edge.

As it skidded early in the week, both The Associated Press overall average and the Dow Jones industrial average broke through the previous 1960 lows reached in September and set new lows for the year.

Political uncertainties combined with a rising debate among economists as to whether the country was in a "recession" and, if so, how long it would last, accompanied the market's gyrations.

Many third quarter earnings were poor, as expected, some were surprisingly good. The well-advertised "profit squeeze" was apparent in the quarterly financial reports. Steel production was scheduled for a sharp cutback.

More bullish was news that the cost-of-living index and manufacturers' new orders had risen in September. However, unemployment in October was estimated as topping the September rate.

EXPANDS

The Federal Reserve System announced plans for expanding the lending power of banks. The British bank rate was cut to 5½ per cent from 6 per cent, a step which would tend to draw some American money invested abroad back to Wall Street and to help firm the condition of the dollar. Meanwhile, the price of gold bullion in the London market continued at such levels that speculation in gold mining issues resumed, though at a much slacker rate than last week.

The Dow Jones industrial average sank to a new 1960 closing low of 566.05 on Tuesday but ended the week at 577.92, making an unimportant net gain of .37.

The AP 60-stock average, also on Tuesday, dropped to a 1960 low of 202.60 and closed the week at 206.00, for a small rise of 0.2.

Volume was 15,862,940 shares compared with 12,932,430 the previous week.

MOST ACTIVE

The most active issue this week on the American Stock Exchange was Webb & Knapp, up ¼ at 1⅜ 123,800 shares.

Apparent uncertainty over the state of the economy and the approaching presidential election was reflected by lower bond prices in October.

The corporate setback amounted to about half of September's which was the worst of the year. September and October was the first time since March and April that corporate bond prices declined two months in a row. Rails were the big loser this month, falling close to a full index point in the AP averages.

With one trading session of the month remaining, most Treasury bonds were a point or so below their Oct. 1 level. The changes ranged from about plus ⅛ to off 1½ with the losses heaviest in the long end. Last month governments picked up fractions of a point.

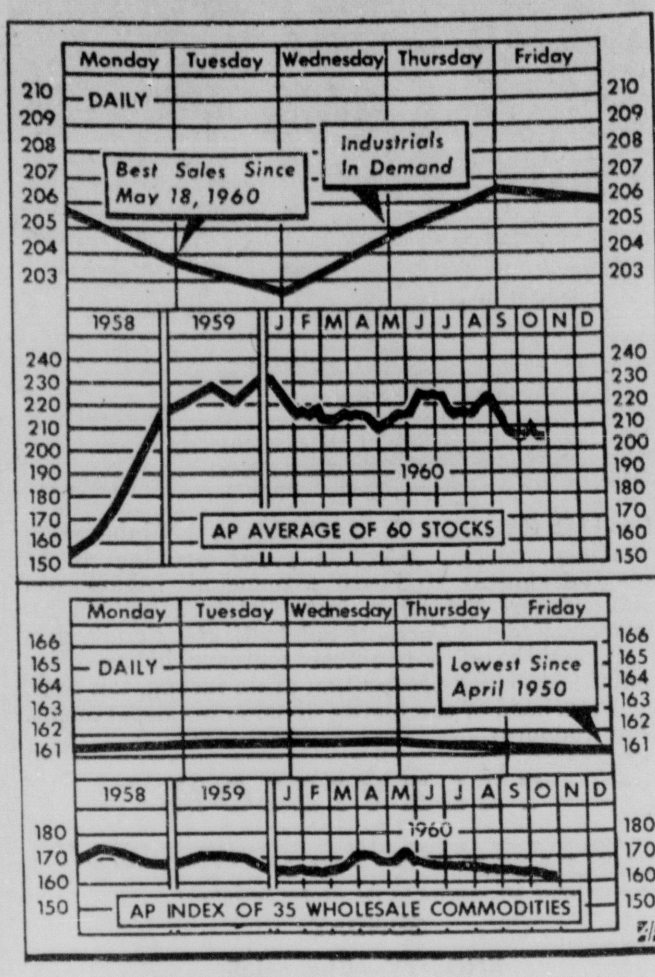
Volume for the week jumped to the third highest of the year at $29,981,000 par value on the New York Stock Exchange compared with $21,604,000 the previous week.

Wheat Futures Advance Sharply

CHICAGO (UPI) — Wheat futures advanced sharply on tight supplies and export buying this week on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Soybeans were little changed, but other grains finished far below the week-ago level.

FINANCIAL $ OIL-GAS NEWS



THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks advanced slightly last week to close at 206.0 from 205.8 a week ago. The commodity index continued its downward trend for the fourth straight week, closing at 161.0 from 161.2 in the preceding period. This is the lowest point since April 28, 1950. GOOD, BAD OR SO-SO?

Big Question Hits Politics, Business

NEW YORK (AP)—Are economic conditions good, bad or just so-so? That question boiled through business and politics last week with widespread disagreement.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon's contention that the economy is strong was disputed by Sen. John F. Kennedy with the statement that it is slipping into a recession.

The chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, Raymond J. Saulnier, said the economy "is in a good position to make another advance and I don't think we are going to wait too long."

Dr. John Lintner, Harvard professor of business administration, asserted that "a recession of substantial proportions is in the making."

Officers of the American Retail Federation, representing 800,000 retailers, predicted this will be the biggest sales year in history and expressed the opinion that the economy is robust and merely going through a little pause.

"I don't think there is any reason to be too pessimistic about business," commented Roger Blough, chairman of U. S. Steel Corp.

DISCOURAGED

The stock market, discouraged by the business outlook, hit a two-year low last Tuesday and then staged a snappy rally.

While the recovery was due partly to technical factors, a spate of better business developments improved sentiment.

These included Federal Reserve Board action to expand the lending power of banks; a cut in the British bank rate, which it was hoped would help keep American investment funds at home; increasing automobile sales, and a good rate of freight carloadings.

Blough said he looked forward to some improvement in the demand for steel in the next few months, but production this week wasn't encouraging. Output was estimated at 53.2 per cent of capacity, down from 55.4 last week.

The drop came ta a time when production normally rises, making it plain that users still haven't reached the bottom of the inventory barrel.

AUTOS

Auto production kept humming with an estimated output of 148,856 passenger cars, up 1.6 per cent from the 146,571 the previous week and 101,786 a year ago.

Sales for the first two-thirds of October totaled 352,000 cars, compared with 338,000 in the like period of October 1959, when a record of 527,000 was set for the entire month.

The Commerce Department reported that new orders received by manufacturers in Sptember rose for the second straight month to a seasonally adjusted $30.4 billion from $30 billion in August.

Business suffered another blow from Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime in Cuba when 167 American-owned companies were nationalized. The firms were valued at nearly $250 million. They included properties of Sears, Roebuck & Co., F. W. Woolworth Co., Reynolds International Aluminum, General Electric and Westinghouse.

Retail trade increased appreciably over the previous week and moderately over a year ago, helped by cold weather in many areas and extensive sales promotions. Shoppers' interest centered on apparel, furniture, food products and new passenger cars.

The cost of living rose to an all-time high, advancing two-tenths of 1 per cent in September. This put the Department of Labor's living cost index at 126.8 per cent of the 1947-49 base period. Costs of practically everything except new and used cars went up. The department said another rise can be expected this month.

Swiss To Buy Planes

BERN Switzerland (AP) — The government will buy either Swedish or French jet fighters to modernize the Swiss air force. It says U.S. types are too expensive.

13 New Wells Are Finaled In Local Oil, Gas District

By RICHARD GREENE
Oil Editor

Oil and gas activities in the 14-parish Monroe district of the State Department of Conservation, apparently unhampered by political affairs that have much of the nation's economy in a dither, produced their biggest month this year with the completion of 13 new wells during the past week.

The total of new oil and gas wells finaled in the district came to 37 for the month of October, and that is well over any previous month's final tally.

There were also 13 new locations staked last week, which brings the total for the month to 77 in the district.

The report, which is compiled by Duncan S. Cook, district manager, also told of 30 wells that are active and six that were declared dry and abandoned.

These are the new completions:

CONCORDIA

Omega Field — John Franks et al's Middleton-Watson no. 1 in sec. 18-7-7E, completed to flow 59 barrels through a 6-64 in. choke from perforations at 4899-4903 ft., tubing pressure 385 lbs., casing pressure 200 lbs., gas oil ratio 375:1, gravity 43.9.

LaSALLE

Summerville Field — Bodcaw Co.'s Bodcaw Fee no. 10-LLS in sec. 22-9-2E, completed to flow 24 barrels through a 18-64 in. choke from perforations at 2505-09 ft.

GREAT STRIDES MADE IN DEVELOPMENT

Bicycles Move Up With Auto Industry

By BEN PHLEGAR

DETROIT (AP) — Masters of ceremonies at banquets feel compelled to tell a funny story or two to warm up the audience for the after dinner speaking.

Chrysler President L. L. Colbert was no exception at the recent auto industry formal dinner at the National Automobile Show.

Colbert said he thought the time was ripe to disclose one of the industry's best kept secrets—the real reason for introduction of compact cars.

"In 1900 when the first of these dinners and shows was held," Colbert related, "there were 10 million bicycles in this country and only 8,000 cars. Now there are some 23 million bicycles. That's why we brought out our smaller cars. After 60 years we're still trying to get people off those bicycles."

The story drew the desired laugh from the auto industry executives.

DEBT

Now along comes the Bicycle Institute of America, which represents eight major American manufacturers of bicycles, with the claim that the modern automobile owes a lot to the bicycles.

In the high flown words of the bicycle people "the most sumptuous vehicles on the road continue to utilize mechanical contrivances originally conceived and manufactured for use on two-wheelers."

Some bicycle developments which were absorbed into the automobile, as compiled by the institute, include:

Pneumatic tires, developed by John B. Dunlop in 1838 when he wrapped the wheel of his son's bibycle in a piece of hosing to provide an easier ride. The cotton cord tire followed in 1892.

Wire wheels, such as those used on the first automobiles. Later they were replaced by wooden spoke wheels and solid discs but the wire wheel has returned to some auto use as a fancy trim item.

BEARINGS

Ball and roller bearings. The institute says use of these by the bike manufacturers helped hasten the developed of hardened steel, so vital to auto building.

The differential axle, invented by James Starkey in 1878 for use on tricycles.

Knee action, which cushions the ride for motorists, was invented in the 1870s to help cyclists over the rough roads of those days. Free wheeling made its appearance on two-wheelers in 1870.

Differential steering was introduced by Sterling Elliott, a bicycle manufacturer, in 1887. He worked out the angles at which wheels must turn in relation to each other to avoid skidding, a basic principle used in auto steering.

TRAINING

The bicycle institute points out most of the pioneers of the auto industry received their early mechanical training in bike shops and it cites, among others, Henry Ford, the Apperson brothers, George N. Pierce, Alexander Winton and Charles E. Duryea.

The Henry Ford Museum and adjacent Greenfield Village in Dearborn have many of the bikes built by these men along with those of the Wright brothers who moved from bicycles to flying machines.

Despite Colbert's joke, bicycle manufacturers claim their products are more popular today than ever. They calculate 27 million bikes are in use in the United States—four million more than Colbert's figures—with more than 55 million riders.

And they estimate 4.5 million students depend on bikes for all or part of their transportation to and from classes through college.

There are about 59 million passenger cars in use in this country and 81.5 million drivers.

The bike business stacks up respectably with the auto business in total volume. A good sales year for autos is one in which six million or more new cars are sold. The bike manufacturers estimate their annual volume at about 3.5 million including imports—a word mighty familiar to the auto people.

Imports are even more of a factor in bicycles than in cars. In 1959, for the first time, imported cars accounted for more than 10 per cent of all auto sales in this country. Imports accounted for 28 per cent of all bike sales.

Even the top exporting countries sound familiar. In cars the leaders are West Germany and England. In bicycles they are England and West Germany.

Redskins Beaten Last 10 Seconds

By BOB HENDERSON

LAFAYETTE, La. (Special) — Inspired by some 6,000 homecoming fans chanting "Allens Bulldogs," the Southwestern Bulldogs wrote a story book finish here tonight and defeated Northeast Louisiana State, 8-7, in the final ten seconds.

A mere ten markes was all that had to be clocked on the scoreboard when right half Vernon Lott crashed over tackle from one yard out, then the wildly cheering throng sat in popeyed amazement as USL elected to gamble for all or nothing.

Quarterback Danny Bridges lofted a soft pass to towering terminal Bob Verlander and the big sophomore from New Orleans snagged the oval, igniting mad hysteria amongst the confines of the McNaspy arena.

STATISTICS

	Northeast	Southwestern
First Downs	14	4
Yards Rushing	158	70
Passes	18-8	13-2
Yards Passing	83	23
PIB	0	2
Fumbles Lost	0	2
Punting	5-39.2	9-40.4
Penalties	5-54	1-15

The disheartened Tribe had held a seven - point advantage since midway of the first quarter, uncorking a 58 - yard drive capped with fullback Willie Ragan's one yard plunge. Halfback Ferdy Cruce toed the extra, and it appeared this would be enough to hold up for the rest of the night.

Southwestern's last-ditch comeback came to life with about four minutes to go, and the "Allons Bulldogs" yells quickly began to increas. After a NLS field goal atempts from the Canine 30 missed its target, USL gained possession on its own 20-yard line.

Bridges was thrown for a loss of 10, but left half Carlton Falgout broke loose on the game's biggest single effort — a crooked, winding dash that finally ended 60 yards up field on the Tribe 30.

On fourth down and still 10 to go, the Bridges - to - Verlander combination clicked for 10 paces and new life was had at the 20. This same duo hooked up for another 13, carrying to seven as the seconds were ticking away.

Lott cracked the stubborn Indian line for two, and then NLS was charged with pass interference, awarding the Red and White a first down on the one. Signal - caller J. Y. Jula was stopped for no gain before Lott's touchdown smash caused frantic bedlam to break loose.

Jack Rowan's visiting eleven had control of the situation for almost 59 minutes and 50 seconds, and never let the Doggies reach midfield until Falgout's long spirit changed the complexion in those waning moments.

The final statistics were very similar to the outcome of the World Series. While New York smashed record after record, Pittsburgh came through in the clutch and now the Pirates are counting those extra green chips.

Such a case was true for last night's Gulf States Conference meeting. The Injuns outrushed, outpassed, and out everything else in all figures except the most important one on the list — total points.

The scoreboard at halftime lighted up a 7-0 lead for the visiting Maroon and Gold unit, but this reading didn't indicate just how much NLS had dominated the two opening quarters.

Northeast State's gritty line never allowed the USL attack to advance as far as midfield, and Bulldog backs could gain only 21 net yards — all on the ground as both pass attempts fell incomplete.

While the tough State defenders contained their foe, the Indians' model-T machine was clicking on all cylinders. Rowan's swift outfit moved through USL for 107 yards rushing, and over the air route for 76 more, or a total of 183 by halftime.

It was midway of the first quarter when Wattigny returned a Canine punt 11 yards to his own 42. From here the Tribe went goalward-bound, using 12 plays on a 58-yard drive which ended on Ragan's one yard plunge.

Ragan was the big gun along the way, picking up 30 yards to contribute over half of the entire distance. His 22-yard sprint to Southwestern's 36 on the initial play ignited the payoff march.

In that scoreless second quarter, NLS was stopped twice near the Bulldog goal. After a drive to the 19 ran out of steam, Cruce's 26-yard field goal sailed wide to the right and USL took charge.

Several minutes later the war-painted Injuns had a first down on Southwestern's 12. Defensive quarterback Dave Adkins saved his USL mates by intercepting a Jack Webb pass in the end zone and the locals regained possession at the 20. Two plays later fans started pounding on the concession stand for hot dogs and soda pop, then returned to their seats for the presentation of USL homecoming queen Grace Siracuse, a senior from Morgan City.

Queen Grace's first maid was Betty Robinson of New Iberia. Other court members were Joy Browning, Lafayette; Anne Lafleur, Opelousas; and Rita Jo Broussard, Lafayette.

The midway show also honored Lt. Gov. C. C. (Taddy) Aycock. A native of nearby Franklin, Louisiana's "second - team quarterback" under Gov. Jimmie Davis was the special guest at the annual attraction for USL grads and former students. Aycock was instrumental in raising Southwestern to university status last July.

Once the third stanza started, a series of punt exchanges filled the next 15 minutes of action. Northeast had a golden opportunity to widen the gap at one occasion by recovering a Doggie fumble deep in the enemy's territory.

In trying to catch Kelly's boot, Canine safetyman Wayne Reine lost control of the pigskin and end Charles Barnes recovered for NLS at the 23. The Tribe advanced to the 11 before Wattigny's serial was pilfered by Vernon Lott and once again a threat bogged down under Southwestern's defensive pressure.

About the middle part of quarter No. 4, another USL safetyman fumbled a punt from Kelly and Indian tackle Delmas Thorne recovered on the Doggie six-yard stripe. However, a 15-yard penalty was costly to NLS, and Cruce's second field goal try this time from the 30 — was again wide on the right side.

Att his point came the winding 60-yard dash by Falgout and a story-book finish that sent alumni into a state of wild madness and rejoicing.

The ensuing kickoff by tackle L. J. Poimboeuf skyrocketed into orbit and beyond the far end zone. Northeast had only five seconds and a long pass fell to the turf harmless.

Illini Score 14-12 Victory Over Purdue

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—Massive Illinois shook loose halfback Marshall Starks for two touchdowns, sent in specialist Jerry Wood for two conversions and took Purdue out of the Big Ten football race 14-12 Saturday.

Purdue got off to a 6-0 lead in the first quarter on a one-yard keeper by quarterback Bernie Allen. Brown blocked Allen's attempted conversion kick.

The Illini, looking like the team that was supposed to win the Big Ten title, marched 70 yards with the second half kickoff, with Easterbrook completing passes to O'Bradovich for 12 yards and to Joe Krakowski for 10 and 8. Starks zipped the last 11.

Illinois held for downs on its 3-yard mark in the third quarter, then scored in the fourth on Starks' 11-yard run, set up by Easterbrook passes to O'Bradovich and Starks.

Allen got Purdue started to its final touchdown with a 25-yard keeper play, hit Jim Tiller with passes to 10 and 28 yards, then carried the last yard himself. Purdue had to go for a two-point conversion and Tiller was stopped short by Illinois' center Darrell Dedecker and guard Joe Wendryhoski.

Virginia Tech Slaps Spiders

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Virginia Tech held off Richmond with two stunning last half defensive stands Saturday and then exploded for two touchdowns in the last three minutes that flattened the fired-up Spiders 20-0 in a Southern Conference football game.

The victory, Tech's fourth in succession, elevated the Techmen into a tie with arch-rival VMI for the conference lead.

TCU Upsets Baylor, 14-6, As Sonny Gibbs Leads Way

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Towering sophomore Guy (Sonny) Gibbs crumbled undefeated, untied Baylor's hopes by running and passing Texas Christian to a 14-6 upset Saturday in a Southwest Conference football game.

Gibbs, who operates better in the daytime since he can't see without contact lenses, passed to Buddy Iles for seven yards and one touchdown. Then he ran for 21 yards and passed for 12 in sending the Horned Frogs to their second touchdown following a costly Baylor fumble. He scored himself with a two-point blast.

Baylor, the nation's No. 7 team and unbeaten through five games, was outplayed by a Texas Christian team that reached its height of the season. It knocked Baylor out of a tie for the Southwest Conference lead and kept itself in the running for the title.

A crowd of 35,000 thrilled at one of the finest offensive games of the campaign. It saw Baylor take a 6-0 lead in the first period when Ronnie Stanley passed 15 yards to Robbie Goowdin. But Larry Corley missed the try for extra point, his first after nine straight.

Texas Christian took the lead in the second period when Gibbs excorted the Frogs to a touchdown. He had 18 yards in passing, six in running, and pitched out to Larry Terrell for eight. R. E. Dodson kicked his ninth straight point after touchdown to put the Christians ahead to stay.

As Baylor lost, Rice took over the Southwest Conference lead by beating Texas Tech 30-6.

Huskies Nip Oregon, 7-6 On Big PAT

SEATTLE (AP)—Don McKeta hauled in a Bob Hivner pass for a 47-yard touchdown play that gave the Washington Huskies a last-gasp 7-6 football victory over Oregon Saturday before a sellout crowd of 55,700.

When halfback George Fleming booted the perfect placement with just 2:24 minutes left on the clock, it was the third successive week in which his toe brought victory to the Huskies.

A week ago Washington outlasted Oregon State 30-29 and they beat UCLA a week earlir 10-8 on a Fleming field goal.

It also was the sixth successive Washington victory over the Webfoots. The visitors looked very much as if they would pull off an upset oer the favored Huskies in the third period.

The first half had gone scoreless, with Oregon never getting beyond its own 38-yard line and Washington penetrating only to the Oregon 25.

But quarterback Dave Grosz, with end Len Burnett as his principal target, passed the team to a touchdown with five minutes left in the third period. The Webfeets went 65 yards in 10 plays and Bruce Snyder slanted the last five yards to tally.

Tiny Cleveland Jones, 5-foot-3½ halfback, got two chances at the conversion points when Washington was offside. One kick was wide and the other was blocked by Ray Mansfield.

Thompson Gets Mitt Win Over Gasper Ortega

NEW YORK (AP)—Argentina's Federico Thompson rallied Saturday night to gain a unanimous decision over Mexico's Gaspar Ortega in a bristling televised 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden.

Harvard Bags Penn

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Harvard scored on a 25-yard pass, Ted Halaby to Bob Boyda, in the second period Saturday and made it stand up for an 8-0 Ivy League football victory over Penn.

Green's 2 Boots Ruin Tiger Upset

By BOB ANDERSON
Morning World Sports Editor

UNIVERSITY, Miss. — Allen Green kicked a 41-yard field goal with 13 seconds left in the game to snatch victory from determined LSU and salvage a 6-6 tie for Mississippi's last-second sensations here Saturday.

Green's kick was 10 seconds earlier, two yards longer and not as decisive as the one he kicked against Arkansas last week for a 10-7 Ole Miss victory but it was enough to ruin another brilliant effort by Louisiana State's snake-bit Tigers.

Until Green's boot, LSU had turned back the clock almost a year to last fall's 7-3 victory over Ole Miss at Baton Rouge. The hero was not the departed Billy Cannon but names like Stovall, Booth, Wilkins, Cranford, and Amedee, men of lesser stature perhaps but for 59 magnificent minutes on this chill, overcast Saturday afternoon. you couldn's tell the difference.

LSU, wrecked by field goals for the third straight game, dominated play in the Rebel's homecoming contest until the fading moments when All - American candidate Jake Gibbs ended a frustrating afternoon by moving Ole Miss from its 21 to the Bengal 25.

Gibbs, held to only three completions in 12 throws until the climax drive, hit on four straight pitches to move the defending Sugar Bowl champions to the 25.

With 13 seconds showing on the scoreboard and first and 10 at the 5, Green came in. The ball was placed down on the 31, slightly on the right of the goal posts. Green booted it true and six seconds showed on the scoreboard when the ball settled between the side bars to keep the Rebels' unbeaten string going at 11 games and leave LSU, one of the country's top defensive teams with a 1-4-1 record.

LSU thoroughly dominated the first quarter of the game, played before 34,000 in the stands and millions on regional TV.

The Tigers drove to the Ole Miss four in the first period, thanks to a brilliant 42-yard run by West Monroe's Jerry Stovall, and drove to the Rebel 24 later in the stanza. Both times LSU's placement expert, Wendell Harris, tried field goals and missed. Trying from the 11 with the line of scrimmage at the four, his first kick was off to the right.

LSU had a slight edge in statistics, gaining 216 yards rushing and five passing for a 216 total, eight yards more than Ole Miss could muster. The Rebels gained 107 yards on the ground and 101 through the air. LSU stuck to the ground throughout most of the game. The Bengals did not pass until the third period was almost over.

Ole Miss penetrated LSU territory only twice during the first half. The Rebels ground to the six late in the second quarter and Green tried a field goal from the 12 but it was off to the right with 2:07 left. They had reached the Tiger 46 in the first.

A fumble by Donnie Daye on the first scrimmage play of the second half set up the first Ole Miss field goal, this one also kicked by Green. Daye dropped the ball on the Tiger 24 and Rebel guard Bookie Bolin pounced on it.

George Blair lost a yard on the first Ole Miss play and Crespino picked up three. Gibbs missed on a pass, and with fourth and eight, Green trotted in to kick a 38-yard field goal and Ole Miss led, 3-0, with only 2:03 gone in the third period.

Midway of the third, Mississippi ground from its 41 to the LSU 29. A 12 - yard run by Art Doty and an 11 - yard trip by Louis Guy were the big plays. After Guy's 11 - yard advance, Jim Anderson bulled for three yards and end Gene Sykes intercepted a Gibbs' aerial to end the threat.

Late in the third, LSU began its touchdown drive with the Go Team backfield of Lynn Amedee, Ray Wilkins, Bo Campbell and Charlie Cranford in. After Gibbs had kicked to the Tiger 30 and Tommy Neck returned it to the Ole Miss 47 on a fine run, Amedee missed on a pass and Wilkins went for no gain.

But Amedee went back to pass and couldn't find a receiver. He ran instead and picked up 15 yards for a first won at the 32. Cranford smashed for 10 and then for five.

On one of the fine plays of the game, Amedee went back to pass and was rushed hard by Anderson. The former Istrouma star shook off Anderson's charge and hit Wilkins with a five - yard toss for a first down at the 12. Cranford ran for five on the last play of the period.

Wilkins started off the fourth by crashing for six and a first at the one. Cranford was held to two feet on first down but Wilkins vaulted over a pile of red Jerseys and into the end zone on second down and LSU had a 6-3 lead with 13:51 left.

Harris missed what could have been the game-winning kick. He seemed to top the ball and it skidded low.

Ole Miss had almost 14 minutes to get back in the game but LSU's pressuring defense made them take practically every second of it.

The Rebels got nine yards by Doty after the kickoff but lost nine on a Gibbs-to-Doty handoff fumble and punted.

LSU roared back with Stovall coming up with the big play again. Taking over on their 24, the Tigers sent Daye for four yards and Cranford for nine. Harris gained two then Stovall went wide right for 44 yards to the Ole Miss 27.

Harris picked up two, then one. and Stovall picked up five. But on fourth down, George Blair tackled Jerry on the line of scrimmage and Ole Miss took over.

Ole Miss, with Doug Elmore at quarterback, could gain only five yards in four downs and Green punted to the Tiger 36.

Cranford went for no gain and Amedee for four before a delay penalty pushed the Bengals back to the 35. Stovall punted on fourth down 48 yards, Elmore returning to the Reb 31.

Jake ran for three on the first play, then hit tall Bobby Crespino, his favorite target, for 12 yards and a first. The quarterback tried to pass again but ran for three instead. He then fired three straight passes, leading Doty a little too much on a lone one, sending the next right through Crespino's hands and saw Stovall beak up the last to Ralpy Smith.

Two minutes, thirty - five seconds remained when LSU took over on their 37. Darryl Jenkins lost four yards but gained nine. Then he lost again, three yards this time, and Stovall lofted another one of his long punts, this one for 49 yards to set Ole Miss' climax push in motion.'

Gibbs returned the punt to the Reb 21. Then hit Crespino with a 26 - yard pass and a first at the OM 47. One minute, 20 seconds remained. Billy Booth, one of LSU's top linemen all afternoon, bulled through the spill Jake for a minus nine yards on the next play when the quarterback tried to pass.

But Gibbs hit Crespino again on the next play, for 11 yards to the Ole Miss 49. The Grenada, Miss., pitcher toss to Smith for 16 yards and a first. Crespino was the target again on the next play, this toss going for 10 yards and putting the ball on the 25.

In came Green and there went the ball game for LSU.

ANOTHER MOODY

Arkansas Wins 7-3 Over Aggies

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) —Defensive specialist Billy Joe Moody took over the fullback's role on offense and sparked Arkansas past fighting but futile Texas A&M 7-3 Saturday night in a Southwest Conference football game.

The Razorbacks, fighting to stay in the running for a second straight share of the Southwest Conference title, canceled a three-point first period A&M lead when Moody went over from the 8 on the third play of the second period.

A&M's point came on a 23-yard field goal by Daryl Keeling, kicked from the side of the field on a fourth down and four play.

Moody handled most of the fullback chores after Arkansas first-stringer Curtis Cox limped from the field after the first series of downs.

The sophomore paced the Razorbacks on the ground with 50 yards and contributed one of the key defensive plays of the game when he nailed Keeling for a five-yard loss as the Aggie quarterback tried to pass on a third and five play early in the fourth quarter.

Arkansas's victory kept the Razorbacks in contention for a Cotton Bowl berth—Arkansas stands 3-1 in conference play—but the Fayetteville crew had another bowl eyeing them.

Scouts from the Bluebonnet Bowl of Houston watched the bitterly-fought battle from the press box. The Houston classic will be played Dec. 17.

For A&M, it was another chapter in a season-long saga of coming close but not close enough. In four conference games, the Aggies have tied twice and lost two by margins of two touchdowns and a field goal.

Slaughter Passes Tech Past Texas Team, 23-7

RUSTON, La. (Special) — Mickey Slaughter threw three touchdown passes here last night to pace the Louisiana Tech Bulldogs to a 23-7 victory over McMurry, Texas.

A field goal by Bud Alexander in the final seconds of the first half gave Tech a 9-7 lead at halftime but the Bulldogs grabbed two quick touchdowns after the intermission and reserves played the rest of the game.

Slaughter, who hit on ten of 18 passes, tossed two TD strikes to end Tom Causey and one to end Jerry Hudson in an aerial show that saw both teams throw a total of 48 passes.

Sophomore Slaughter pitched ten yards to Causey for the first score in the initial period only to have Indian halfback Richard Compton grab the following kickoff and race 90 yards for a touchdown. Doug James extra point gave the Texans the lead, 7-6.

Slaughter really went to work just before the half, starting at the Tech 18 with less than three minutes to go. He connected on six passes that carried to the McMurry 12 and Alexander booted a field goal from the 17 as time ran out.

The victory was Tech's fifth against two losses and set the stage for the important GSC clash with Southesatern here next Saturday afternoon.

Jack Howard and Andy Farless paced the Tecn running attack, Howard getting 40 yards in three carries, Farless 28 in five trips. Causey, who caught four passes for 49 yards, upped his season total to 30 catches.

McMurry completed only five of 20 passes while Tech hit 12 of 28 for 148 yards. The Canines got 183 yards on the ground for 166 for McMurry.

There was plenty of excitement for the fans in the first half, with the teams swapping touchdowns in the first quarter, Tech got a break when tackle Andy Malone recovered a fumble by Indian fullback Britt Austin at the McMurry 14. After two running plays Slaughter hit Causey in the end zone for the touchdown. Alexander's kick was wide.

McMurry struck back on the kickoff when Compton took the ball at his ten, broke through a swarm of players at the 35 and legged the remaining distance along the sidelines. James' kick was good.

Neither team was able to do much in the second period until McMurry got a drive going from the Tech 47. Compton, George Bridges, Austin and Joe Baxter alternated in carrying to the Tech 18 before Don Tippett recovered a fumble at that point for Tech.

With less than three minutes left Slaughter filled the air with sideline passes to get within field goal range for Alexander. Slaughter passed 15 yards to Jerry Hudson, 14 and 7 yards to Hynes, 13 to Howard and 2 13-yard pitches to Causey.

The Bulldogs put the game on ice shortly after the half and Tech coaches turned the game over to the Bullpups who played the remainder of the time.

Tech struck pay dirt 17 seconds after the half started after Max Rudd returned the kickoff from his own 26 to the McMurry 45. A 15-yard penalty against the Texans moved the ball to the thirty and Slaughter hit Hudson with a scoring pass from that point. Alexander's extra point gave Tech a 16-7 lead. Tech shortly thereafter got another drive going from the Indian 43. Howard got ten yards, Rudd 8, a penalty moved it to the 16 and Paul Hynes got six yards to the ten where Slaughter again hit Causey in the end zone for the score. Alexander's kick again was good.

McMurry got a drive going against Tech's reserves that carried to the three at the start of the fourth period before Tech's defense held. Tech got another chance late in the period when Paul LaBenne intercepted a pass at his own 15 and returned it 50 yards to the Indian 35. On a fourth down play Johnny Hudson hit end Jerry Griffin in the end zone but a penalty nullified the play and halted the drive. Later the Tech youngsters got inside the 20 but couldn't punch it over.

USL Nips Tribe, 8-6; LSU, Ole Miss In Tie

Redskins Beaten Last 10 Seconds

By BOB HENDERSON

LAFAYETTE, La. (Special) — Inspired by some 6,000 homecoming fans chanting "Allens Bulldogs," the Southwestern Bulldogs wrote a story book finish here tonight and defeated Northeast Louisiana State, 8-7, in the final ten seconds.

A mere ten markes was all that had to be clocked on the scoreboard when right half Vernon Lott crashed over tackle from one yard out, then the wildly cheering throng sat in popeyed amazement as USL elected to gamble for all or nothing.

Quarterback Danny Bridges lofted a soft pass to towering terminal Bob Verlander and the big sophomore from New Orleans snagged the oval, igniting mad hysteria amongst the confines of the McNaspy arena.

STATISTICS

	Northeast	Southwestern
First Downs	14	4
Yards Rushing	158	70
Passes	18-8	13-2
Yards Passing	83	23
PIB	0	2
Fumbles Lost	0	2

The disheartened Tribe had held a seven - point advantage since midway of the first quarter, uncorking a 58 - yard drive capped with fullback Willie Ragan's one yard plunge. Halfback Ferdy Cruce toed the extra, and it appeared this would be enough to hold up for the rest of the night.

Southwestern's last-ditch comeback came to life with about four minutes to go, and the "Allons Bulldogs" yells quickly began to increas. After a NLS field goal atempts from the Canine 30 missed its target, USL gained possession on its own 20-yard line.

Bridges was thrown for a loss of 10, but left half Carlton Falgout broke loose on the game's biggest single effort — a crooked, winding dash that finally ended 60 yards up field on the Tribe 30.

On fourth down and still 10 to go, the Bridges - to - Verlander combination clicked for 10 paces and new life was had at the 20. This same duo hooked up for another 13, carrying to seven as the seconds were ticking away.

Lott cracked the stubborn Indian line for two, and then NLS was charged with pass interference, awarding the Red and White a first down on the one. Signal - caller J. Y. Jula was stopped for no gain before Lott's touchdown smash caused frantic bedlam to break loose.

Jack Rowan's visiting eleven had control of the situation for almost 59 minutes and 50 seconds, and never let the Doggies reach midfield until Falgout's long spirit changed the complexion in those waning moments.

The final statistics were very similar to the outcome of the World Series. While New York smashed record after record, Pittsburgh came through in the clutch and now the Pirates are counting those extra green chips.

Such a case was true for last night's Gulf States Conference meeting. The Injuns outrushed, outpassed, and out everything else in all figures except the most important one on the list — total points.

The scoreboard at halftime lighted up a 7-0 lead for the visiting Maroon and Gold unit, but this reading didn't indicate just how much NLS had dominated the two opening quarters.

Northeast State's gritty line never allowed the USL attack to advance as far as midfield, and Bulldog backs could gain only 21 net yards — all on the ground as both pass attempts fell incomplete.

While the tough State defenders contained their foe, the Indians' model-T machine was clicking on all cylinders. Rowan's swift outfit moved through USL for 107 yards rushing, and over the air route for 76 more, or a total of 183 by halftime.

It was midway of the first quarter when Wattigny returned a Canine punt 11 yards to his own 42. From here the Tribe went goalward-bound, using 12 plays on a 58-yard drive which ended on Ragan's one yard plunge.

Ragan was the big gun along the way, picking up 30 yards to contribute over half of the entire distance. His 22-yard sprint to Southwestern's 36 on the initial play ignited the payoff march.

In that scoreless second quarter, NLS was stopped twice near the Bulldog goal. After a drive to the 19 ran out of steam, Cruce's 26-yard field goal sailed wide to the right and USL took charge.

Several minutes later the war-painted Injuns had a first down on Southwestern's 12. Defensive quarterback Dave Adkins saved his USL mates by intercepting a Jack Webb pass in the end zone and the locals regained possession at the 20. Two plays later fans started pounding on the concession stand for hot dogs and soda pop, then returned to their seats for the presentation of USL homecoming queen Grace Siracuse, a senior from Morgan City.

Queen Grace's first maid was Betty Robinson of New Iberia. Other court members were Joy Browning, Lafayette; Anne Lafleur, Opelousas; and Rita Jo Broussard, Lafayette.

The midway show also honored Lt. Gov. C. C. (Taddy) Aycock. A native of nearby Franklin, Louisiana's "second - team quarterback" under Gov. Jimmie Davis was the special guest at the annual attraction for USL grads and former students. Aycock was instrumental in raising Southwestern to university status last July.

Once the third stanza started, a series of punt exchanges filled the next 15 minutes of action. Northeast had a golden opportunity to widen the gap at one occasion by recovering a Doggie fumble deep in the enemy's territory.

In trying to catch Kelly's boot, Canine safetyman Wayne Reine lost control of the pigskin and end Charles Barnes recovered for NLS at the 23. The Tribe advanced to the 11 before Wattigny's serial was pilfered by Vernon Lott and once again a threat bogged down under Southwestern's defensive pressure.

About the middle part of quarter No. 4, another USL safetyman fumbled a punt from Kelly and Indian tackle Delmas Thorne recovered on the Doggie six-yard stripe. However, a 15-yard penalty was costly to NLS, and Cruce's second field goal try this time from the 30 — was again wide on the right side.

Att his point came the winding 60-yard dash by Falgout and a story-book finish that sent alumni into a state of wild madness and rejoicing.

The ensuing kickoff by tackle L. J. Poimboeuf skyrocketed into orbit and beyond the far end zone. Northeast had only five seconds and a long pass fell to the turf harmless.

Illini Score 14-12 Victory Over Purdue

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—Massive Illinois shook loose halfback Marshall Starks for two touchdowns, sent in specialist Jerry Wood for two conversions and took Purdue out of the Big Ten football race 14-12 Saturday.

Purdue got off to a 6-0 lead in the first quarter on a one-yard keeper by quarterback Bernie Allen. Brown blocked Allen's attempted conversion kick.

The Illini, looking like the team that was supposed to win the Big Ten title, marched 70 yards with the second half kickoff, with Easterbrook completing passes to O'Bradovich for 12 yards and to Joe Krakowski for 10 and 8. Starks zipped the last 11.

Illinois held for downs on its 3-yard mark in the third quarter, then scored in the fourth on Starks' 11-yard run, set up by Easterbrook passes to O'Bradovich and Starks.

Allen got Purdue started to its final touchdown with a 25-yard keeper play, hit Jim Tiller with passes to 10 and 28 yards, then carried the last yard himself. Purdue had to go for a two-point conversion and Tiller was stopped short by Illinois' center Darrell Dedecker and guard Joe Wendryhoski.

Virginia Tech Slaps Spiders

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Virginia Tech held off Richmond with two stunning last half defensive stands Saturday and then exploded for two touchdowns in the last three minutes that flattened the fired-up Spiders 20-0 in a Southern Conference football game.

The victory, Tech's fourth in succession, elevated the Techmen into a tie with arch-rival VMI for the conference lead.

TCU Upsets Baylor, 14-6, As Sonny Gibbs Leads Way

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Towering sophomore Guy (Sonny) Gibbs crumbled undefeated, untied Baylor's hopes by running and passing Texas Christian to a 14-6 upset Saturday in a Southwest Conference football game.

Gibbs, who operates better in the daytime since he can't see without contact lenses, passed to Buddy Iles for seven yards and one touchdown. Then he ran for 21 yards and passed for 12 in sending the Horned Frogs to their second touchdown following a costly Baylor fumble. He scored himself with a two-point blast.

Baylor, the nation's No. 7 team and unbeaten through five games, was outplayed by a Texas Christian team that reached its height of the season. It knocked Baylor out of a tie for the Southwest Conference lead and kept itself in the running for the title.

A crowd of 35,000 thrilled at one of the finest offensive games of the campaign. It saw Baylor take a 6-0 lead in the first period when Ronnie Stanley passed 15 yards to Robbie Goowdin. But Larry Corley missed the try for extra point, his first after nine straight.

Texas Christian took the lead in the second period when Gibbs escorted the Frogs to a touchdown. He had 18 yards in passing, six in running, and pitched out to Larry Terrell for eight. R. E. Dodson kicked his ninth straight point after touchdown to put the Christians ahead to stay.

As Baylor lost, Rice took over the Southwest Conference lead by beating Texas Tech 30-6.

Harvard Bags Penn

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Harvard scored on a 25-yard pass, Ted Halaby to Bob Boyda, in the second period Saturday and made it stand up for an 8-0 Ivy League football victory over Penn.

Huskies Nip Oregon, 7-6 On Big PAT

SEATTLE (AP)—Don McKeta hauled in a Bob Hivner pass for a 47-yard touchdown play that gave the Washington Huskies a last-gasp 7-6 football victory over Oregon Saturday before a sellout crowd of 55,700.

When halfback George Fleming booted the perfect placement with just 2:24 minutes left on the clock, it was the third successive week in which his toe brought victory to the Huskies.

A week ago Washington outlasted Oregon State 30-29 and they beat UCLA a week earlir 10-8 on a Fleming field goal.

It also was the sixth successive Washington victory over the Webfoots. The visitors looked very much as if they would pull off an upset oer the favored Huskies in the third period.

The first half had gone scoreless, with Oregon never getting beyond its own 38-yard line and Washington penetrating only to the Oregon 25.

But quarterback Dave Grosz, with end Len Burnett as his principal target, passed the team to a touchdown with five minutes left in the third period. The Webfeets went 65 yards in 10 plays and Bruce Snyder slanted the last five yards to tally.

Tiny Cleveland Jones, 5-foot-3½ halfback, got two chances at the conversion points when Washington was offside. One kick was wide and the other was blocked by Ray Mansfield.

Thompson Gets Mitt Win Over Gasper Ortega

NEW YORK (AP)—Argentina's Federico Thompson rallied Saturday night to gain a unanimous decision over Mexico's Gaspar Ortega in a bristling televised 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden.

Green's 2 Boots Ruin Tiger Upset

By BOB ANDERSON
Morning World Sports Editor

Green's kick was 10 seconds earlier, two yards longer and not as decisive as the one he kicked against Arkansas last week for a 10-7 Ole Miss victory but it was enough to ruin another brilliant effort by Louisiana State's snake-bit Tigers.

Until Green's boot, LSU had turned back the clock almost a year to last fall's 7-3 victory over Ole Miss at Baton Rouge. The hero was not the departed Billy Cannon but names like Stovall, Booth, Wilkins, Cranford, and Amedee, men of lesser stature perhaps but for 59 magnificent minutes on this chill, overcast Saturday afternoon. you couldn's tell the difference.

STATISTICS

	LSU	Miss.
First downs	9	14
Rushing yardage	216	107
Passing yardage	5	101
Passes	1-2	8-19
Passes intercepted by	2	0
Punts	10-44.3	9-48.1
Fumbles lost	1	2
Yards penalized	16	55

LSU, wrecked by field goals for the third straight game, dominated play in the Rebel's homecoming contest until the fading moments when All - American candidate Jake Gibbs ended a frustrating afternoon by moving Ole Miss from its 21 to the Bengal 25.

Gibbs, held to only three completions in 12 throws until the climax drive, hit on four straight pitches to move the defending Sugar Bowl champions to the 25.

With 13 seconds showing on the scoreboard and first and 10 at the 5, Green came in. The ball was placed down on the 31, slightly on the right of the goal posts. Green booted it true and six seconds showed on the scoreboard when the ball settled between the side bars to keep the Rebels' unbeaten string going at 11 games and leave LSU, one of the country's top defensive teams with a 1-4-1 record.

LSU thoroughly dominated the first quarter of the game, played before 34,000 in the stands and millions on regional TV.

The Tigers drove to the Ole Miss four in the first period, thanks to a brilliant 42-yard run by West Monroe's Jerry Stovall, and drove to the Rebel 24 later in the stanza. Both times LSU's placement expert, Wendell Harris, tried field goals and missed. Trying from the 11 with the line of scrimmage at the four, his first kick was off to the right.

LSU had a slight edge in statistics, gaining 216 yards rushing and five passing for a 216 total, eight yards more than Ole Miss could muster. The Rebels gained 107 yards on the ground and 101 through the air. LSU stuck to the ground throughout most of the game. The Bengals did not pass until the third period was almost over.

Ole Miss penetrated LSU territory only twice during the first half. The Rebels ground to the six late in the second quarter and Green tried a field goal from the 12 but it was off to the right with 2:07 left. They had reached the Tiger 46 in the first.

A fumble by Donnie Daye on the first scrimmage play of the second half set up the first Ole Miss field goal, this one also kicked by Green. Daye dropped the ball on the Tiger 24 and Rebel guard Bookie Bolin pounced on it.

George Blair lost a yard on the first Ole Miss play and Crespino picked up three. Gibbs missed on a pass, and with fourth and eight, Green trotted in to kick a 38-yard field goal and Ole Miss led, 3-0, with only 2:03 gone in the third period.

Midway of the third, Mississippi ground from its 41 to the LSU 29. A 12 - yard run by Art Doty and an 11 - yard trip by Louis Guy were the big plays. After Guy's 11 - yard advance, Jim Anderson bulled for three yards and end Gene Sykes intercepted a Gibbs' aerial to end the threat.

Late in the third, LSU began its touchdown drive with the Go Team backfield of Lynn Amedee, Ray Wilkins, Bo Campbell and Charlie Cranford in. After Gibbs had kicked to the Tiger 30 and Tommy Neck returned it to the Ole Miss 47 on a fine run, Amedee missed on a pass and Wilkins went for no gain.

But Amedee went back to pass and couldn't find a receiver. He ran instead and picked up 15 yards for a first won at the 32. Cranford smashed for 10 and then for five.

On one of the fine plays of the game, Amedee went back to pass and was rushed hard by Anderson. The former Istrouma star shook off Anderson's charge and hit Wilkins with a five - yard toss for a first down at the 12. Cranford ran for five on the last play of the period.

Wilkins started off the fourth by crashing for six and a first at the one. Cranford was held to two feet on first down but Wilkins vaulted over a pile of red Jerseys and into the end zone on second down and LSU had a 6-3 lead with 13:51 left.

Harris missed what could have been the game-winning kick. He seemed to top the ball and it skidded low.

Ole Miss had almost 14 minutes to get back in the game but LSU's pressuring defense made them take practically every second of it.

The Rebels got nine yards by Doty after the kickoff but lost nine on a Gibbs-to-Doty handoff fumble and punted.

LSU roared back with Stovall coming up with the big play again. Taking over on their 24, the Tigers sent Daye for four yards and Cranford for nine. Harris gained two then Stovall went wide right for 44 yards to the Ole Miss 27.

Harris picked up two, then one. and Stovall picked up five. But on fourth down, George Blair tackled Jerry on the line of scrimmage and Ole Miss took over.

Ole Miss, with Doug Elmore at quarterback, could gain only five yards in four downs and Green punted to the Tiger 36.

Cranford went for no gain and Amedee for four before a delay penalty pushed the Bengals back to the 35. Stovall punted on fourth down 48 yards, Elmore returning to the Reb 31.

Jake ran for three on the first play, then hit tall Bobby Crespino, his favorite target, for 12 yards and a first. The quarterback tried to pass again but ran for three instead. He then fired three straight passes, leading Doty a little too much on a lone one, sending the next right through Crespino's hands and saw Stovall beak up the last to Ralpy Smith.

Two minutes, thirty - five seconds remained when LSU took over on their 37. Darryl Jenkins lost four yards but gained nine. Then he lost again, three yards this time, and Stovall lofted another one of his long punts, this one for 49 yards to set Ole Miss' climax push in motion.'

Gibbs returned the punt to the Reb 21. Then hit Crespino with a 26 - yard pass and a first at the OM 47. One minute, 20 seconds remained. Billy Booth, one of LSU's top linemen all afternoon, bulled through the spill Jake for a minus nine yards on the next play when the quarterback tried to pass.

But Gibbs hit Crespino again on the next play, for 11 yards to the Ole Miss 49. The Grenada, Miss., pitcher toss to Smith for 16 yards and a first. Crespino was the target again on the next play, this toss going for 10 yards and putting the ball on the 25.

In came Green and there went the ball game for LSU.

ANOTHER MOODY

Arkansas Wins 7-3 Over Aggies

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) —Defensive specialist Billy Joe Moody took over the fullback's role on offense and sparked Arkansas past fighting but futile Texas A&M 7-3 Saturday night in a Southwest Conference football game.

The Razorbacks, fighting to stay in the running for a second straight share of the Southwest Conference title, canceled a three-point first period A&M lead when Moody went over from the 8 on the third play of the second period.

A&M's point came on a 23-yard field goal by Daryl Keeling, kicked from the side of the field on a fourth down and four play.

Moody handled most of the fullback chores after Arkansas first-stringer Curtis Cox limped from the field after the first series of downs.

The sophomore paced the Razorbacks on the ground with 50 yards and contributed one of the key defensive plays of the game when he nailed Keeling for a five-yard loss as the Aggie quarterback tried to pass on a third and five play early in the fourth quarter.

Arkansas's victory kept the Razorbacks in contention for a Cotton Bowl berth—Arkansas stands 3-1 in conference play—but the Fayetteville crew had another bowl eyeing them.

Scouts from the Bluebonnet Bowl of Houston watched the bitterly-fought battle from the press box. The Houston classic will be played Dec. 17.

For A&M, it was another chapter in a season-long saga of coming close but not close enough. In four conference games, the Aggies have tied twice and lost two by margins of two touchdowns and a field goal.

PAUL MARTIN LOOKS 'EM OVER

The Recreation Issue

As elections go, there's no hotter potato than the decision voters will soon be making on their choice of a man to run this country of ours.

Strictly for Monroe and West Monroe it's going to be just as important in a few days to reach a decision on an appeal for youth to help them strengthen their future of becoming the kind of men and women into whose hands the safekeeping of this country can some day be trusted.

Bond elections to insure recreational expansion and stronger Twin Cities programs for youth, with additional attention for aged and family group recreation, are to be decided in the next few days.

Monroe voters next Saturday will decide whether or not their children are worth a $1,675,000 bond issue for expansion of the Monroe Recreation Department. Ward Five, including all of West Monroe, calls for a similar election November 22 for a proposed $625,000, plus a ten-year one-mill property tax for maintenance and operating costs.

The Monroe election has been called by popular demand. When a recreation expansion program was rejected by voters about two years ago, there was some feeling that several other issues at the same time, also defeated, had a negative effect. Many persons expressed their favor for recreation but were opposed to package proposals as a whole.

By Public Demand

City officials, after declining to call a single election solely on the recreation issue, have scheduled next Saturday's balloting for property owners by public request. A few months ago many residents wrote cards and letters to city officials asking them to call the election.

If the public feeling remains as it was a few months ago, the proposal should be well supported.

"We take a backseat to any city in the state for our present program," Director Jack Hesketh has declared, "But with more facilities we could be far ahead of most cities. We are at the bottom of the list when it comes to having facilities."

Too long have we depended on a recreation leader like "Captain" Hesketh to struggle "beyond the call of duty" to keep our recreation program thriving, to meet the needs of an ever - growing city with pre - war equipment.

Existing physical facilities no longer can meet the demand. Monroe's recreation progress is no longer bulging . . . it has split the seams.

The bond issue, if passed, would mean 1.75 mills for capital improvements such as buildings and land, all physical assets, and one mill for operation and maintenance. Both are necessary.

Cigarettes Or Kids

The total cost to a home owner would amount to $2.75 per year on $1,000 assessment — about the cost of a carton of cigarettes. Certainly, the youth, whether yours or the neighbors, are worth this consideration.

Lafayette last year passed a 1,800,000 bond issue, plus a three - mill maintenance tax for expanding its recreation needs, and Tupelo, Miss., recently approved $248,000 for two swimming pools, wading pools, and bath houses only. Of course, these are nothing to Monroe or West Monroe youth, but it points up what others are doing for their youth.

"We could increase our program by 500 per cent and offer separate programs for girls (not conducted at present) and a program for aged people," Hesketh advises. "A program for the old people is sorely needed for many are lonely, have no place to go, and get little attention. We can give them this attention if our needs are fulfilled."

The Monroe proposal calls for four units.

1. Main recreation center at corner of Parkview and Oakland drive in Parkview subdivision.
2. Recreation center for North-College area on Westminster, block south of Loop road and four blocks off Sterlington road.
3. Main colored center on Renwick street, directly across from Carroll High.
4. A smaller colored center in Bryant's addition on Burg Jones lane, just north of Bernstein Park.

All recreation centers will have gymnasiums, locker rooms, game and club rooms, arts and craft rooms, offices, and outside facilities including tennis courts, ball fields, playground areas, adequate parking. The gyms will be so constructed that they may be used as small auditoriums, and swimming pools will be included at the main centers for white and colored.

The cost breakdown has been estimated as follows:

Southside, $493,650; North-College, $197,790; Renwick street, $322,900; Burg Jones, 197,790; and totaling $1,212,130. Purchase of land is fixed at $237,000; equipment at $75,000, and engineers, attorneys, architect, bonds, and election costs at $150,870.

Duck hunters, who will be getting their first full day at their favorite game Saturday, are being urged to keep the recreation issue in mind. Polls will open at 6 a.m. and close at 8 p.m. Most hunters will be able to vote by getting in before the closing time.

Ward Five Meets

Included in the Monroe plans will be picnic areas and barbecue pits at the southside and north-college areas, a Little League stadium and Dixie League field in the college area, and a Dixie League field and solfball field in the southside area.

Meanwhile, the Ward Five Recreation Commission has called a meeting for Tuesday night to invite advice and assistance in promotion of the Ward Five program. The meeting will be held at 7 o'clock in the court room of the West Monroe city hall.

West Monroe proposes a project on Seventh street that includes recreation center, swimming pool, tennis courts, and other facilities on 20-acre tract and costing $470,000; improvements at Southside Playground, $10,000; a colored recreation center with swimming pool, $80,000; and cash appropriation for purchase of future sites located in population centers outside the present city limits of West Monroe, $20,000; and the legal fees, architects and other expenses estimated at $45,000.

Grambling Takes 32-12 Grid Victory

GRAMBLING, La. (Special) — Demonstrating speed, power and versatility, Grambling College perpetrated another of its shocking uprisings here Saturday afternoon with a stunning, 32-12, massacre of Jackson State.

Saturday's victory was the second of the week for the Tigers and they served emphatic notice that they will tolerate no poaching on their north Louisiana football preserve.

Robbie's raiders tallied twice in the opening stanza and broke the contest aide open in the final two quarters.

They roared on touchdown drives of 83, 65, 29, 32 and 55 yards. Doting alumni left the stadium convinced that the team merits consideration for higher national rating in weekly small-college polls.

Fullback Preston Powell exploded on a 65-yard touchdown run for Grambling, and Jerry Robinson followed with TD trips of 38, three, and six yards. Olympian Stone Johnson went for the other Tiger TD on a quarterback sneak. Charles Baker and Chice Jordan scored Jackson TDs from the three.

Breaux Sparks McNeese Past Wildcats, 20-7

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Quarterback Don Breaux scored one and passed for another touchdown Saturday night to lead McNeese to a 20-7 victory over Louisiana College.

Breaux capped a drive that covered 62 yards in 12 plays when he ran over from the seven in the first period.

Breaux tossed four yards to end Johnny Speed in the fourth quarter for the last McNeese score. It capped a 64 yard drive in seven plays, sparked by a 39 yard run by Ted Brevelle.

Halfback Charlie Stevenson scored the other McNeese touchdown in the second quarter on a two-yard run. Stevenson ran the two-point conversion.

Halfback Bob Corley ran nine yards in the first period for the Louisiana College touchdown. It climaxed a 74-yard drive in 11 plays. Corley kicked the point.

It was McNeese's fourth straight victory. Both teams now have 4-2 marks.

FINALS TODAY

Haas, Cupit Share Lead In Twin City Open Golf Meet

Jackie Cupit held on to a share of the Twin City Open Golf lead at Highland Park Country Club yesterday, shooting a 69 for a two-day total of 134, but Freddie Haas jumped into a first place tie by downing Cupit by one stroke in yesterday's play. Haas, New Orleans, had trailed Cupit by one stroke after the opening round, with Jackie's brother Buster shooting 68 yesterday to move into a challenging position with 135.

John Langford, Enid Oklahoma golfer, was top man in yesterday's action with a 66 total over 18 holes and jumped from a tie for seventh place into the third spot with Sonny Methvin, Little Rock, Arkansas amateur moving into fourth with a 138 two-day total.

Monte Bradley, last year's Twin City Open runnerup, found himself slightly off the pace but managed to equal his first day score of 72 for a 140 total, one stroke behind four players, Vernon Thwaites, Covington, Va., Miller Barber, ElDorado, Ark., Leonard Warren, Bastrop, and Eddie Morrins, Long Island, N.Y.

Sonny Methvin, LSU golfer, again led the amateur field shooting 68 yesterday for a 138 total to pull six strokes ahead of Baton Rouge's ace Burt Burdick. Burdick shot 71 yesterday and climbed into second place among the amateurs as first round runnerup Clyde Nash fell down on a 75 for a 146 total.

Wisconsin Ends Michigan's Hex

By DAVE O'HARA

MADISON, Wis., (AP) — Gimpy-legged Jim Bakken came off the bench with 1:58 remaining and booted a 19-yard field goal, boosting Wisconsin to a 16-13 victory over Michigan Saturday in a Big Ten football thriller before a seat-squiring crowd of 57,629.

Bakken's perfect placement on the 14th play of a drive started on the Wisconsin 6 capped a comeback which enabled the Badgers to snap a Michigan hex on the Camp Randall Stadium turf. The Wolverines had won 8 and tied 1 in 9 previous appearances on Wisconsin's home ground.

The game ended in uproarious fashion as Michigan took the kickoff after the field goal and marched to the Wisconsin 10. Quarterback Dave Glinka then was tossed for a 10-yard loss to the 20, and the Wolverines lined up quickly for a field goal try.

The attempt from the 27 by John Halstead was blocked by Don Vander Velden, but that didn't complete matters. The alert Glinka pounced on the loose ball and fired a pass to Bob Johnson, who was run out of bounds on the 6 as the final gun sounded.

Wisconsin, squaring its conference record at 2-2, went 69 yards in six plays with the opening kickoff for a 6-0 lead. Sophomore quarterback sensation Ron Miller climaxed the advance with a one-yard sneak.

Michigan tied the count before the first period ended by recovering a fumble on the Wisconsin eight and then sending Dave Raimey into the end zone on a fourth-and-one situation.

Raimey scored on a 12-yard burst in the second quarter after a pass interception had given Michigan the ball on the Wisconsin 30. A pair of runs by Bennie McRae and one by Ken Tureaud set up Raimey.

Wisconsin began an 81-yard touchdown march late in the third period with third string quarterback John Fabry finally going over from the one at 2:37 of the final quarter.

Warriors Top Boston Celtics By 28 Points

BOSTON (AP) — The Philadelphia Warriors administered a 131-103 beating to Boston Saturday night and took a one-game lead in the Eastern Division of the National Basketball Association.

The Warriors featured the twin scoring threat of Wilt Chamberlain and Paul Arizin and were sparked by rookie Al Attles.

Attles, a 6-foot-2 product of North Carolina A&T, scored 18 points and provided the Warriors with backcourt speed that out ran Boston's defending world champions.

The Warriors took an 11-8 lead minutes deep in the game and they never were headed. Boston closed to within one point, 27-26, at the end of the first quarter, but that was as close as they ever got.

Philadelphia took a 61-46 halftime lead and put the game out of reach with a surge in the third quarter. Leading 80-67, Philadelphia scored 14 straight points and that was the ball game.

Tulane Green Wave Rolls Over W&M Indians, 40-8

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Halfback Tommy Mason, hampered by a dislocated elbow, fractured William and Mary's defenses for three touchdowns Saturday night as Tulane swept past the Indians 40-8.

Mason, top ground-gainer in the Southeastern Conference, cracked across for two touchdowns on short plunges and added the third on a brilliant 48-yard sideline dash.

Mason rolled up 114 yards in unofficial statistics and brought his season output to 413 yards in 68 trips.

William and Mary, losing its fifth game in seven outings, was no match for Tulane, but managed to score in the final minute.

At ricky pass play, started by Bob Stoy's heave to Roger Hale who lateralled to Buck Gale accounted for the 33-yard touchdown.

Early in the third quarter, Maso brought the homecoming crowd of 25,000 to its feet with his 48-yard touchdown gallop.

LSU DESERVED WIN

Field Goal Dirty Talk To Bengals

By BOB ANDERSON
Morning World Sports Editor

UNIVERSITY, Miss — They should never have widened those goal posts.

Field goal is a dirty word if you are a follower of the grid fortunes of LSU's football team. The Bengals have lost three games because of three-pointers—6-2 to Georgia Tech, 3-0 to Kentucky and 13-10 to Florida—but the most galling boots of all were the two Allen Green kicked here yesterday to give the nation's No. 2 team, Ole Miss, a 6-6 tie.

Green kicked one from 38 yards away early in the third period yesterday and another with 13 seconds left on the clock from 41 yards out.

LSU deserved to win the game. The Tigers got only nine first downs to Mississippi's 14 but their ground game was infinitely superior, gaining 211 yards overland to only 107 for Ole Miss.

The Tigers, suprisingly enough, passed only twice, hitting on one foot five yards. Ole Miss' defensive weakness was supposed to have been against passes.

LSU handled Jake Gibbs —until the last - minute Rebel push — as he hasn't been handled this year. The Great - America candidate was held to only three pass completions until he hit on four straight to spark the march in the fading moments. He ended up with seven completions in 18 throws for 89 yards. On the ground, Gibbs gained 10 yards — and lost 23.

Billy Booth, Micky Mangham, and Donnie Daye were the defensive stars for LSU, three of many.

Jerry Stovall played his greatest game. He ran seven times for 6 yards, an average of almost 14 yards per carry. The leading punter in the Southeastern Conference, Stovall punted 10 times for a 44.3 average.

Allen Green and Gibbs bettered Stovall in the punting department, however, kicking nine times for a 48.1 average.

Ole Miss followers have been claiming "We're No. 1." Maybe they were last year — and there is good reason to believe they were — but they're not this season. Maybe not even No. 2.

The Rebels seemed to have left the tackles out of the lineup for a time in the first quarter. LSU's line opened gaping holes over those positions and generally man handled the Ole Miss line throughout.

Even in last year's glorious 7-3 victory over Ole Miss, the Bengals did not dominate play as they did Saturday. And as you know by now, the Tigers aren't as good as they were in the glory years of 1958 and 1959.

Gibbs is a great quarterback, as he proved when it counted most in the fading moments. But he doesn't have the help in the backfield he had last year when Charley Flowers bloomed.

Art Doty was the top Rebel gainer yesterday with 46 yards in 12 trips while fellow second - stringer Louis Guy got 36 yards in eight carries.

But no other Rebel gained over 16 yards — Flowers' replacement, Jim Anderson, getting that much in seven runs, and George Blair, considered the best Rebel runner by some, was thrown for a one-yard loss on his only rushing attempt.

Stovall's rushing total was far ahead of the other Tigers. Chuck Cranford picked up 30 yards in six trips and Donnie Daye got 24 yards in seven tries and Wendell Harris 22 in nine.

LSU coach Paul Dietzel wasn't too happy about the outcome of the game, as could be expected.

"Our kids deserved to win that one — it's been like that all year," he said. "I thought we played Ole Miss off their feet. We've got a great bunch and I'm really proud to coach them."

Mississippi's Johnny Vaught said, "I was glad to get out of it with a tie."

He can say that again.

The Recreation Issue

As elections go, there's no hotter potato than the decision voters will soon be making on their choice of a man to run this country of ours.

Strictly for Monroe and West Monroe it's going to be just as important in a few days to reach a decision on an appeal for youth to help them strengthen their future of becoming the kind of men and women into whose hands the safekeeping of this country can some day be trusted.

Bond elections to insure recreational expansion and stronger Twin Cities programs for youth, with additional attention for aged and family group recreation, are to be decided in the next few days.

Monroe voters next Saturday will decide whether or not their children are worth a $1,675,000 bond issue for expansion of the Monroe Recreation Department. Ward Five, including all of West Monroe, calls for a similar election November 22 for a proposed $625,000, plus a ten-year one-mill property tax for maintenance and operating costs.

The Monroe election has been called by popular demand. When a recreation expansion program was rejected by voters about two years ago, there was some feeling that several other issues at the same time, also defeated, had a negative effect. Many persons expressed their favor for recreation but were opposed to package proposals as a whole.

By Public Demand

City officials, after declining to call a single election solely on the recreation issue, have scheduled next Saturday's balloting for property owners by public request. A few months ago many residents wrote cards and letters to city officials asking them to call the election.

If the public feeling remains as it was a few months ago, the proposal should be well supported.

"We take a backseat to any city in the state for our present program," Director Jack Hesketh has declared, "But with more facilities we could be far ahead of most cities. We are at the bottom of the list when it comes to having facilities."

Too long have we depended on a recreation leader like "Captain" Hesketh to struggle "beyond the call of duty" to keep our recreation program thriving, to meet the needs of an ever - growing city with pre - war equipment.

Existing physical facilities no longer can meet the demand. Monroe's recreation progress is no longer bulging . . . it has split the seams.

The bond issue, if passed, would mean 1.75 mills for capital improvements such as buildings and land, all physical assets, and one mill for operation and maintenance. Both are necessary.

Cigarettes Or Kids

The total cost to a home owner would amount to $2.75 per year on $1,000 assessment — about the cost of a carton of cigarettes. Certainly, the youth, whether yours or the neighbors, are worth this consideration.

Lafayette last year passed a 1,800,000 bond issue, plus a three - mill maintenance tax for expanding its recreation needs, and Tupelo, Miss., recently approved $248,000 for two swimming pools, wading pools, and bath houses only. Of course, these are nothing to Monroe or West Monroe youth, but it points up what others are doing for their youth.

"We could increase our program by 500 per cent and offer separate programs for girls (not conducted at present) and a program for aged people," Hesketh advises. "A program for the old people is sorely needed for many are lonely, have no place to go, and get little attention. We can give them this attention if our needs are fulfilled."

The Monroe proposal calls for four units.

1. Main recreation center at corner of Parkview and Oakland drive in Parkview subdivision.

2. Recreation center for North-College area on Westminster, block south of Loop road and four blocks off Sterlington road.

3. Main colored center on Renwick street, directly across from Carroll High.

4. A smaller colored center in Bryant's addition on Burg Jones lane, just north of Bernstein Park.

All recreation centers will have gymnasiums, locker rooms, game and club rooms, arts and craft rooms, offices, and outside facilities including tennis courts, ball fields, playground areas, adequate parking. The gyms will be so constructed that they may be used as small auditoriums, and swimming pools will be included at the main centers for white and colored.

The cost breakdown has been estimated as follows:

Southside, $493,650; North-College, $197,790; Renwick street, $322,900; Burg Jones, 197,790; and totaling $1,212,130. Purchase of land is fixed at $237,000; equipment at $75,000, and engineers, attorneys, architect, bonds, and election costs at $150,870.

Duck hunters, who will be getting their first full day at their favorite game Saturday, are being urged to keep the recreation issue in mind. Polls will open at 6 a.m. and close at 3 p.m. Most hunters will be able to vote by getting in before the closing time.

Ward Five Meets

Included in the Monroe plans will be picnic areas and barbecue pits at the southside and north-college areas, a Little League stadium and Dixie League field in the college area, and a Dixie League field and solfball field in the southside area.

Meanwhile, the Ward Five Recreation Commission has called a meeting for Tuesday night to invite advice and assistance in promotion of the Ward Five program. The meeting will be held at 7 o'clock in the court room of the West Monroe city hall.

West Monroe proposes a project on Seventh street that includes recreation center, swimming pool, tennis courts, and other facilities on 20-acre tract and costing $470,000; improvements at Southside Playground, $10,000; a colored recreation center with swimming pool, $80,000; and cash appropriation for purchase of future sites located in population centers outside the present city limits of West Monroe, $20,000; and the legal fees, architects and other expenses estimated at $45,000.

Grambling Takes 32-12 Grid Victory

GRAMBLING, La. (Special) — Demonstrating speed, power and versatility, Grambling College perpetrated another of its shocking uprisings here Saturday afternoon with a stunning, 32-12, massacre of Jackson State.

Saturday's victory was the second of the week for the Tigers and they served emphatic notice that they will tolerate no poaching on their north Louisiana football preserve.

Robbie's raiders tallied twice in the opening stanza and broke the contest aide open in the final two quarters.

They roared on touchdown drives of 83, 65, 29, 32 and 55 yards. Doting alumni left the stadium convinced that the team merits consideration for higher national rating in weekly small-college polls.

Fullback Preston Powell exploded on a 65-yard touchdown run for Grambling, and Jerry Robinson followed with TD trips of 38, three, and six yards. Olympian Stone Johnson went for the other Tiger TD on a quarterback sneak. Charles Baker and Chice Jordan scored Jackson TDs from the three.

Breaux Sparks McNeese Past Wildcats, 20-7

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Quarterback Don Breaux scored one and passed for another touchdown Saturday night to lead McNeese to a 20-7 victory over Louisiana College.

Breaux capped a drive that covered 62 yards in 12 plays when he ran over from the seven in the first period.

Breaux tossed four yards to end Johnny Speed in the fourth quarter for the last McNeese score. It capped a 64 yard drive in seven plays, sparked by a 39 yard run by Ted Brevelle.

Halfback Charlie Stevenson scored the other McNeese touchdown in the second quarter on a two-yard run. Stevenson ran the two-point conversion.

Halfback Bob Corley ran nine yards in the first period for the Louisiana College touchdown. It climaxed a 74-yard drive in 11 plays. Corley kicked the point.

It was McNeese's fourth straight victory. Both teams now have 4-2 marks.

Haas, Cupit Share Lead In Twin City Open Golf Meet

Jackie Cupit held on to a share of the Twin City Open Golf lead at Highland Park Country Club yesterday, shooting a 69 for a two-day total of 134, but Freddie Haas jumped into a first place tie by downing Cupit by one stroke in yesterday's play. Haas, New Orleans, had trailed Cupit by one stroke after the opening round, with Jackie's brother Buster shooting 68 yesterday to move into a challenging position with 135.

John Langford, Enid Oklahoma golfer, was top man in yesterday's action with a 66 total over 18 holes and jumped from a tie for seventh place into the third spot with Sonny Methvin, Little Rock, Arkansas amateur moving into fourth with a 138 two-day total.

Monte Bradley, last year's Twin City Open runnerup, found himself slightly off the pace but managed to equal his first day score of 72 for a 140 total, one stroke behind four players, Vernon Thwaites, Covington, Va., Miller Barber, ElDorado, Ark., Leonard Warren, Bastrop, and Eddie Morrins, Long Island, N.Y.

Sonny Methvin, LSU golfer, again led the amateur field shooting 68 yesterday for a 138 total to pull six strokes ahead of Baton Rouge's ace Burt Burdick. Burdick shot 71 yesterday and climbed into second place among the amateurs as first round runnerup Clyde Nash fell down on a 75 for a 146 total.

Sophomore Leads Vandy's Triumph

NASHVILLE, TENN., (UPI) — Sophomore Hank Lesesne, a do-it-yourself quarterback, led a seemingly beaten Vanderbilt team in a stirring comeback and a 22-20 win over Clemson Saturday.

Lesesne, who came off the bench to get Vanderbilt's offense moving, passed for two touchdowns. His passing led to another touchdown, his punting set up a safety, and he deflected a Clemson pass in the closing minutes as the Tigers sought to come from behind.

The last time these two teams met, Clemson eked out a win in the closing seven seconds of the game. Saturday, with less than 30 seconds left, Clemson was knocking on the Vanderbilt goal line on the strength of the passing of quarterback Lowndes Singler. But this time the last ditch try failed.

Clemson's burly Tigers scored the first two times they got their hands on the ball. They spotted an apparent weakness in the Vanderbilt pass defense and Shingler completed vital passes in the first two scoring drives. Fullback Ron Scrudato got the first Clemson touchdown on a one-yard run, and Shingler passed to end Sam Anderson for a 10-yard score.

Before the first period ended, Vanderbilt appeared soundly beaten. Then Lesesne came off the bench, began gambling with his passes, and put life into the Commodore attack.

A Lesesne punt that set Clemson back on its own two-yard line led to a safety which gave Vanderbilt new life.

Then Lesesne started the Commodores down the field, completing four out of five passes in a 4-yard drive. He passed to halfback Terrell Dye for 15 yards and a touchdown.

Early in the third period Vanderbilt moved to the Clemson 22 but lost the ball, and then Clemson moved quickly to another score without using a single pass. Scrudato got this touchdown on a two-yard run.

Then Lesesne, who was second string quarterback when the game started but may be first string from here on out, took over. From their own 12, the Commodores moved straight down the field for another score, with fullback Jim Johnson going over from two yards out.

After the kickoff Vanderbilt held and took over on their own 21. Lesesne completed seven consecutive passes and had runs of 18 and 19 yards in the drive. He passed two yards to halfback Thom Garden for the final Vanderbilt score.

Buckeyes Jolt Spartans For 21-10 Victory

By DAVE DILES
Associated Press Sports Writer

EAST LANSING, Mich (AP)—Ohio State's eighth-ranked Buckeyes jolted Michigan State with a secret weapon — halfback Bob Klein who had carried the ball only 10 times all season — and battered the Spartans 21-10 Saturday in a bruising Big Ten football game that nearly exploded into a slugging match.

Klein, a 24-year-old sophomore, popped open a scoreless duel with a 46-touchdown dash early in the second period. The title-hungry Buckeyes, charged up by the breakdown in the Michigan State defense, blocked a punt eight plays later and gobbled up a second touchdown.

The relentless Buckeyes added a third quarter touchdown on a 25-yard pass from quarterback Tom Matte to end Bob Middleton and ruined the day for the 76,520 homecoming fans who set a Spartan Stadium attendance record. The game also was witnessed by a regional television audience.

Officials stepped off half a dozen major penalties as the two clubs were rocking and socking from start to finish. Each team drew an early penalty for slugging. Both were penalized for roughing the kicker and for piling on.

Michigan State, the nation's 10th ranked team, fumbled away two scoring chances—at Ohio's 14 in the first quarter and at the Buckeye 8-yard line late in the third period—and missed another score when end Lonnie Sanders dropped a pass in the end zone.

Villanova Ruins Rutgers' Record

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) winless Villanova smothered all hopes of Rutgers' first undefeated season in 92 years and edged the Knights Saturday 14-12, in a big upset.

The heavily favored Scarlet had chalked up five straight wins. Villanova had dropped six in a row.

Unbeaten Vols Give Heels First Bite, But Win, 27-14

By Leon Daniel

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Unbeaten Tennessee rallied from a first-period scare Saturday and uncorked a powerful single-wing attack powered by substitute backs to defeat North Carolina 27 to 14.

Tennessee's touchdowns came on a 43 - year after a pass interception, a sweeping 23-yard end run and a 12-yard wingback reverse. one of the more spectacular plays in the single-wing offense.

Some 27,060 fans watched tailback Glenn Glass, wingback Charles Wyrick and tailback George Canale, all substitutes, lead the Vols to their fifth victory of the season. The Vol record is marred only by a scoreless tie with Mississippi State.

The scrappy Tar Heels struck quickly, turning a Tennessee miscue into the first touchdown of the game.

Tennessee fullback Bunny Orr fumbled on the Vols' first play from scrimmage. Tar Heel tackle John Stunda pounced on the ball at the mid-field stripe.

Quarterback Ray Farris ripped off 22 yards on the next play to spark the drive that ended with fullback Bob Elliott plowing two yards for the score.

Elliott also kicked the extra point to give North Carolina a 7-0 lead with seven minutes remaining in the first period.

But the Vols roared back, scoring four touchdowns before North Carolina scored its final touchdown with 25 seconds remaining in the game.

The Vols scored again several minutes later on a drive that covered 48 yards. Wingback Wyrick carried the ball 12 yards around the right side for the score.

Canale caught a punt return in the final period and raced 85 yards to rack up the final TD for the vols.

Farris scored the final Tar Heel touchdown after a drive of 60 yards. He plunged over from the one.

Letner kicked two extra points for Tennessee and Gary Cannon kicked the other. Elliott kicked both extra points for the Tar Heels.

The defeat gave North Carolina a record of five losses and one victory in 1960.

Navy Slips Past Notre Dame, 14-7

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Second string quarterback Harry Dietz sparked a fourth quarter touchdown march capped by Joe Bellino's second score of the day that gave unbeaten Navy a 14-7 victory over a surprisingly tough, underdog Notre Dame Saturday.

A fumble led to Notre Dame's only touchdown, in the second period, scored from 12 yards out early in the first period, capped an 81-yard drive in which he ground out 74 yards.

The senior halfback from Winchester, Mass., teamed with Dietz and fullback Joe Matalavage midway in the fourth quarter a 64 yard touchdown drive following a pass interception. It made fourth-ranked Navy's record spotless at 7-0 and handed Notre Dame its fifth straight loss.

Except for the early first quarter doings and the final Navy drive, Notre Dame, a two-touchdown underdog, dominated the play in Philadelphia stadium. It threatened a minute before the game ended by marching to Navy's 4-yard line where the Middies held.

Late in the third period Notre Dame twice moved deep into Navy territory but failed on field goal attempts of 16 and 31 yards by fullback Joe Perkowski. Halfbacks Angelo Dabiero and George Sefcik sparked Notre Dame's running attack.

Notre Dame's only score came when Bellino, apparently on a bad handoff from quarterback Hal Spooner, fumbled on his own 19-yard line and fullback Mike Lind recovered for the Irish.

Four plays later, with the ball still on the 19, end Jim Sherlock made a spectacular catch of quarterback George Haffner's pass just in bounds on the 3-yard line, outhustling two defenders.

On the next play Dabiero circled left end for the touchdown. Perkowski added the extra point. Greg Mather added both conversions for Navy.

Colorado Nips Sooners, Aims For Bowl Date

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—Colorado's hard - knocking linemen wrenched 7-0 victory from Oklahoma Saturday and ended 10 years of frustration against the perennial Big Eight Conference football champions.

The fourth victory without a loss in league play shoved Colorado into front line contention for the Orange Bowl. The defeat was the second Big Eight loss for Oklahoma in eight seasons under Coach Bud Wilkinson.

Quarterback Gale Weidner connected on two key passes to end Jerry Hillebrand during a 61-yard touchdown march by Colorado in the second quarter.

Weidner, passing on fourth down with four to go, hit Hillebrand with a seven-yard pass on Oklahoma's 19 to keep the drive rolling. After moving to Oklahoma's 9, Colorado was penalized back to the 14 where Weidner hit Hillebrand with 12-yard pass. Fullback Chuck Weiss carried it over three plays later.

Jaguars Topple Texas Foe, 27-6

TYLER, Tex. (Special) — For three-quarters, a Texas College homecoming throng enjoyed illusions of a Steer upset win over Southern University. But 21 fourth quarter points gave the Jaguars a 27-6 win.

The Jaguars, currently 5-0 in the SWAC and leading the eight-team league, will move into Nashville, Tenn. next Saturday for an important intersectional clash with the Tenn. A&I Tigers.

Gophers Slap 48-7 Beating On K-State

MINNEAPOLIS Minn (UPI)—Muscular Minnesotta used brute force and an assortment of ground gaining talent to maul helpless Kansas State, 48-7, Saturday and extend the fourth-ranked Gophers unbeaten streak to six games, longest since the era of the Golden Golphers in 1940-41.

The easy victory set the stage for next week's clash between Minnesota and first-ranked Iowa, the Big Ten's only other unbeaten football team.

Minnesota's goliath-sized line hammered the tiny Wildcats into submission in the first quarter, and the outcome never was in doubt after quarterback Joe Salem scored Minnesota's first touchdown with an 11-yard jaunt mid-way in the opening period.

The Wildcats ruined the Gophers' bid for a fourth shutout of the season with 90 seconds to play when quarterback John Solmos hit Willis Crenshaw on a 40-yard pass play.

Trojans Beat Tribe, Share Big 5 Lead

STANFORD, Calif. (AP)—Southern California's Trojans struck for two quick touchdowns and whipped a band of determined Stanford Indians 21-6 Saturday to go into a tie with Washington for the Big Five Conference lead.

A homecoming crowd of 29,000 was stunned on the fourth play as a pass from Stanford's Dick Norman bounced off intended receiver Mac Wylie into the arms of USC's Jerry Trynham, who ran 35 yards for the opening touchdown.

The next time they got the ball, the Trojans smashed 65 yards on 13 running plays for their second touchdown. Fullback Hal Tobin scored from the 2. Don Zachik made it 14-0 with his second conversion.

That proved enough for the Trojans' second conference victory without defeat and third straight triumph after losing their first three games.

The Trojans added a third touchdown in the final minutes as Ben Wilson plunged over from the 3, capping a 50-yard march. Zachik again converted.

Colgate's Rally Catches Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Colgate's football team struck for three touchdowns in the second half to stage a 28-20 come-from-behind victory over Buffalo Saturday.

CRIMSONS, 7-0

Early 'Bama TD Downs Maroons

By LEWIS LORD

STARKVILLE, Miss. (UPI) — Alabama scored the second time it got the ball, then put its vaunted defense to work to blank Mississippi State, 7-0, Saturday.

Mississippi State, trying before 25,000 homecoming fans to produce its first Southeastern Conference victory in 16 games, played Bear Bryant's Crimson Tide on fairly even terms after Alabama fullback Mike Fracchia cracked over for a touchdown in the first period.

Alabama's line, 15 pounds a man lighter than State's forward wall, gave up plenty of yardage in the middle of the field. But when the Maroons moved into scoring position the Tide rose to the occasion.

Alabama drove 80 yards in 13 plays for its touchdown. An 18-yard run by quarterback Pat Trammell and a 20-yard sprint by Fracchia were the big plays. A personal foul penalty against State also helped the Tide cause, putting the ball on the Maroon 11.

Reserve quarterback Bobby Skelton passed nine yards to Butch Wilson on the two and Fracchia crashed over right tackle from a yard out a couple of plays later for the score. Tommy Brooker converted.

Mississippi State's most serious threat came in the second period when an exchange of punts put the Maroons on the Tide' 31. Several short runs by quarterback Billy Hill and fullback Wackie Weaver gave the Maroons a first down on the Alabama eight. The Tide defense then tightened and State could get no further than the three in four plays.

State staged an even stronger drive in the fourth period. Moving swiftly on Weaver's slashing fullback runs, Mississippi State went 70 yards to the Tide 12. Then, on fourth down and two, the Alabama line stopped Weaver inches short of a first down.

Alabama appeared ready to break the game wide open in the second quarter when it drove from its own 21 to the State 2, where it gained a first down. There State's strong line showed its stuff, stopping Trammell cold twice before a 15-yard penalty pushed the Tide back to its 16.

The victory was Alabama's fourth of the season and third against an SEC foe. The Tide lost to Tennessee and tied Tulane. The decision was Mississippi State's third loss against two wins and a tie.

Rice Plasters Texas Tech For Southwest Lead

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Jerry Candler, an 188 - pound sophomore, scored two touchdowns Saturday as Rice's ball - controlling Owls took over the Southwest Conference lead by trouncing Texas Tech's Red Raiders 30-6.

Rice, the conference leader in total offense, exploded for 16 points in the second period and added second half touchdowns on a 41-yard punt return by Butch Blume and a 20-yard scamper by Candler after a screen pass from Randall Kerbow.

The Rice defense meanwhile held Tech without a first down until 10 minutes into the third period. The Raiders did not get a sustained drive under way until the final quarter when the passes of Johnny Lovelace sparked a 71 - yard drive. Lovelace carried over from the 1 after throwing four passes that totaled 63 yards.

Rice's second period explosion saw Max Webb climax a 65 - yard drive by carrying over from the 1 and Candler score from the 3 after the Owls had recovered a fumble on the Tech 25. In between the two touchdowns Webb kicked a 33 - yard field goal after a Rice threat sputtered at the Tech 16.

Fumbles Help Yale

NEW HAVEN (AP)—Yale capitalized on fumbles to beat Dartmouth 29-0 in an Ivy League football game Saturday and remained undefeated and untied after six games. Quarterback Tom Singleton threw two touchdown passes, Bill Leckonby another and Bob Blanchard bulled over from the 3 for the other score.

Colorado Nips Sooners, Aims For Bowl Date

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—Colorado's hard - knocking linemen wrenched 7-0 victory from Oklahoma Saturday and ended 10 years of frustration against the perennial Big Eight Conference football champions.

The fourth victory without a loss in league play shoved Colorado into front line contention for the Orange Bowl. The defeat was the second Big Eight loss for Oklahoma in eight seasons under Coach Bud Wilkinson.

Quarterback Gale Weidner connected on two key passes to end Jerry Hillebrand during a 61-yard touchdown march by Colorado in the second quarter.

Weidner, passing on fourth down with four to go, hit Hillebrand with a seven-yard pass on Oklahoma's 19 to keep the drive rolling. After moving to Oklahoma's 9, Colorado was penalized back to the 14 where Weidner hit Hillebrand with 12-yard pass. Fullback Chuck Weiss carried it over three plays later.

Jaguars Topple Texas Foe, 27-6

TYLER, Tex. (Special) — For three-quarters, a Texas College homecoming throng enjoyed illusions of a Steer upset win over Southern University. But 21 fourth quarter points gave the Jaguars a 27-6 win.

The Jaguars, currently 5-0 in the SWAC and leading the eight-team league, will move into Nashville, Tenn. next Saturday for an important intersectional clash with the Tenn. A&I Tigers.

Gophers Slap 48-7 Beating On K-State

MINNEAPOLIS Minn (UPI)—Muscular Minnesotta used brute force and an assortment of ground gaining talent to maul helpless Kansas State, 48-7, Saturday and extend the fourth-ranked Gophers unbeaten streak to six games, longest since the era of the Golden Golphers in 1940-41.

The easy victory set the stage for next week's clash between Minnesota and first-ranked Iowa, the Big Ten's only other unbeaten football team.

Minnesota's goliath-sized line hammered the tiny Wildcats into submission in the first quarter, and the outcome never was in doubt after quarterback Joe Salem scored Minnesota's first touchdown with an 11-yard jaunt mid-way in the opening period.

The Wildcats ruined the Gophers' bid for a fourth shutout of the season with 90 seconds to play when quarterback John Solmos hit Willis Crenshaw on a 40-yard pass play.

Trojans Beat Tribe, Share Big 5 Lead

STANFORD, Calif. (AP)—Southern California's Trojans struck for two quick touchdowns and whipped a band of determined Stanford Indians 21-6 Saturday to go into a tie with Washington for the Big Five Conference lead.

A homecoming crowd of 29,000 was stunned on the fourth play as a pass from Stanford's Dick Norman bounced off intended receiver Mac Wylie into the arms of USC's Jerry Trynham, who ran 35 yards for the opening touchdown.

The next time they got the ball, the Trojans smashed 65 yards on 13 running plays for their second touchdown. Fullback Hal Tobin scored from the 2. Don Zachik made it 14-0 with his second conversion.

That proved enough for the Trojans' second conference victory without defeat and third straight triumph after losing their first three games.

The Trojans added a third touchdown in the final minutes as Ben Wilson plunged over from the 3, capping a 50-yard march. Zachik again converted.

Colgate's Rally Catches Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Colgate's football team struck for three touchdowns in the second half to stage a 28-20 come-from-behind victory over Buffalo Saturday.

CRIMSONS, 7-0

Early 'Bama TD Downs Maroons

By LEWIS LORD

STARKVILLE, Miss. (UPI) — Alabama scored the second time it got the ball, then put its vaunted defense to work to blank Mississippi State, 7-0, Saturday.

Mississippi State, trying before 25,000 homecoming fans to produce its first Southeastern Conference victory in 16 games, played Bear Bryant's Crimson Tide on fairly even terms after Alabama fullback Mike Fracchia cracked over for a touchdown in the first period.

Alabama's line, 15 pounds a man lighter than State's forward wall, gave up plenty of yardage in the middle of the field. But when the Maroons moved into scoring position the Tide rose to the occasion.

Alabama drove 80 yards in 13 plays for its touchdown. An 18-yard run by quarterback Pat Trammell and a 20-yard sprint by Fracchia were the big plays. A personal foul penalty against State also helped the Tide cause, putting the ball on the Maroon 11.

Reserve quarterback Bobby Skelton passed nine yards to Butch Wilson on the two and Fracchia crashed over right tackle from a yard out a couple of plays later for the score. Tommy Brooker converted.

Mississippi State's most serious threat came in the second period when an exchange of punts put the Maroons on the Tide' 31. Several short runs by quarterback Billy Hill and fullback Wackie Weaver gave the Maroons a first down on the Alabama eight. The Tide defense then tightened and State could get no further than the three in four plays.

State staged an even stronger drive in the fourth period. Moving swiftly on Weaver's slashing fullback runs, Mississippi State went 70 yards to the Tide 12. Then, on fourth down and two, the Alabama line stopped Weaver inches short of a first down.

Alabama appeared ready to break the game wide open in the second quarter when it drove from its own 21 to the State 2, where it gained a first down. There State's strong line showed its stuff, stopping Trammell cold twice before a 15-yard penalty pushed the Tide back to its 16.

The victory was Alabama's fourth of the season and third against an SEC foe. The Tide lost to Tennessee and tied Tulane. The decision was Mississippi State's third loss against two wins and a tie.

Rice Plasters Texas Tech For Southwest Lead

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) -- Jerry Candler, an 188 - pound sophomore, scored two touchdowns Saturday as Rice's ball - controlling Owls took over the Southwest Conference lead by trouncing Texas Tech's Red Raiders 30-6.

Rice, the conference leader in total offense, exploded for 16 points in the second period and added second half touchdowns on a 41-yard punt return by Butch Blume and a 20-yard scamper by Candler after a screen pass from Randall Kerbow.

The Rice defense meanwhile held Tech without a first down until 10 minutes into the third period. The Raiders did not get a sustained drive under way until the final quarter when the passes of Johnny Lovelace sparked a 71 - yard drive. Lovelace carried over from the 1 after throwing four passes that totaled 63 yards.

Rice's second period explosion saw Max Webb climax a 65 - yard drive by carrying over from the 1 and Candler score from the 3 after the Owls had recovered a fumble on the Tech 25. In between the two touchdowns Webb kicked a 33 - yard field goal after a Rice threat sputtered at the Tech 16.

Fumbles Help Yale

NEW HAVEN (AP)—Yale capitalized on fumbles to beat Dartmouth 29-0 in an Ivy League football game Saturday and remained undefeated and untied after six games. Quarterback Tom Singleton threw two touchdown passes, Bill Leckonby another and Bob Blanchard bulled over from the 3 for the other score.

Iowa Remains Undefeated With Victory Over Kansas

IOWA CITY Iowa (UPI) — Iowa, its eyes and heart on next week's game against Minnesota, used its methodical ground game Saturday to down a dispirited Kansas squad, 21-7, before a crowd of 47,000.

The unbeaten, top-ranked Hawkeyes used nothing but power running as they scored in each of the first three periods to extend their win streak to six. The stage was set for a battle of undefeated Big Ten teams at Minneapolis next Saturday.

Kansas, its attack crippled through the injury-loss of halfback Bert Coan, threatened twice but a slip and a fumble prevented the Jayhawks from scoring until the closing moments of the contest.

The Big Eight Jayhawkers, who saw any hope for a possible bowl trip smashed earlier this week by an NCAA rebuke, were completely outclassed by the Big Ten leaders, led by quarterback Wilburn Hollis, who scored twice.

John Hadl, shifted from quarterback to halfback because of Coan's injury, smashed into the end zone from eight yards out with less than two minutes remaining to avoid a whitewash.

Although Iowa scored twice in the first half, it hardly looked like the nation's no. 1 team, as receivers dropped passes and the line looked lack-luster.

Hollis, credited with no completions in four pass attempts because receivers dropped perfectly pin-pointed aerials, called on his own running power and that of halfbacks Larry Ferguson and Jerry Mauren to preserve the win streak.

Hollis scored first in the opening quarter on a 36-yard end run, and added his second touchdown in the third quarter with a 1-yard bullrush into paydirt.

Between those two tallies, Ferguson dashed over center for 3 yards and a touchdown after Hadl failed to get off a punt from his own 4-yard line.

Hadl apparently was unable to find the handle on the pass from center and stood helplessly with the ball as a host of Iowa linemen poured over him.

Hollis, the Big Ten scoring leader, wound up the game as leading rusher with 87 yards in 17 tries. Ferguson and Mauren added 49 and 62 yards respectively.

The defeat put Kansas' season record at 4-2-1 and the Jayhawkers have the "distinction" of being the only team which has suffered its losses to a top-ranked squad. The other loss was to Syracuse, which was no. 1 in the nation at that time.

Kentucky Halts Seminoles, 23-0

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — End Tom Hutchinson caught one touchdown pass and later scored on a pass interception to lead the Kentucky Wildcats to a 23-0 win over the underdog Florida State Seminoles Saturday.

A record 19,200 homecoming crowd watched the Wildcats push Florida State back 76 yards in the first period, and finally score when halfback Calvin Bird scampered around right end from three yards with two minutes left.

Kentucky scored again after eight minutes in the second period. Five plays after a short punt by FSU halfback Bud Whitehead rolled dead on the Seminole 30, quarterback Jerry Eisaman passed to Hutchinson in the deep left corner for the score.

With 14 minutes left in the fourth period, the Wildcats powered the down to the FSU 22 on a series of running and pass plays, including a 28-yard throw from Eisaman to Hutchinson, and Mayfield kicked a 32-yard field goal.

With only minutes left in the game, Hutchinson intercepted a pass from FSU quarterback Ed Trancygire on the Seminole 10 and ran it over for the final score. The pass attempt for the extra point was no good.

The Seminoles were in Wildcat territory only once during the first half. Their deepest penetration came when center Jack Hardy recovered a fumble by Eisaman on the Kentucky 34.

The second half saw Kentucky with control of the ball for most of the time. The Kentucky offense ripped holes in the Florida State forward wall that Eisaman, Bird, halfback Gary Steward and fullback Gary Cochran hit through with regularity.

Brown Beats Cisco, Looks For New Foes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lightweight champion Joe Brown—who was laughing in Cisco Andrade's face when he wasn't swinging at it Friday night—says he'd like to defend his title at least once more this year.

The 34-year-old Brown, who now has made nine successful defenses for a lightweight record, says his most likely opponents are Len Matthews of Philadelphia and Eddie Perkins of Chicago.

Brown scored a lopsided if not devastating decision over Anrrade, drawing frequent boos from a crowd of 8,500 that was mostly for the Los Angeles boy.

Andrade, 30, who had predicted he would knock out the champ, complained: "Brown didn't want to fight. I was surprised. This is the first time he's ever run.

"But I couldn't catch him," Cisco added, "and it was my fault."

Brown, never in trouble, said he was resting, not running.

"I'm an old man," he said. "That's why I was trying to rest in the middle rounds. I wasn't playing around."

Asked if he'd give Andrade another shot, Brown said: "Sure... but the money's got to be right. I sort of like Cisco again, but I don't like him that much to give him another chance without any money."

Brown's guarantee Friday night was $40,000. Andrade's share was about $9,500.

Brown weighed 134½, Andrade 133½.

DYAS TIES RECORD

Plainsmen's Field Goal Ace Gives Florida Sad Day, 10-7

By ANDREW REESE JR.

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Auburn's big Ed Dyas kicked a twisting 31-yard field goal too beat Florida 10-7 Saturday, the third time this season he has booted a game-winning field goal.

It was Dyas' seventh field goal of the season and tied him with Tommy Wells of Georgia Tech and Paige Cothren of Mississippi for a national record. The 205-pound fullback has kicked at least one three-pointer in each of Auburn's six 1960 games.

The surprising Florida Gators absorbed their second defeat of the season before a near capacity crowd of 40,000.

Dyas' long, curving kick went through the uprights in the third period, with the score tied 7-7. Earlier this season his kicks beat Kentucky and Georgia Tech.

Coach Ray Graves' Gators suffered their first conference loss, and dropped from a tie with mighty Mississippi for the Southeastern Conference lead.

Auburn, backing up its fifth straight after losing the opener to Tennessee, needed to win to stay in contention in the SEC race.

Quarterback Bobby Hunt, last year's sophomore sensation, ran for 18 yards and then hit end Don Downs with a pass good for 31 yards to set up Auburn's lone touchdown in the opening period. Halfback Bobby Lauder galloped eight yards for the score, and Dyas kicked the point.

Flrida got its offense rolling shortly before intermission. Taking the ball on their 20, the Gators moved deep into Auburn territory, aided by two penalties.

A clipping penalty against Florida pushed the ball back to the Auburn 43, but quarterback Larry Libertore, the 138-pound sophomore flash from Miami, ripped off a six-yard run and connected to senior end Pat Patchen for 19 yards. Moments later, second team fullback Don Loodman bulled his way up the middle to the two-yard line, and halfback Bob Hoover danced over on the next play.

Specialist Bill Cash's kick was good, tying the score and setting the scene for Dyas' field goal in the third period.

The senior fullback kicked from the 21 to climax an Auburn drive form it 48.

Florida fought back in the final period, marching from its own 44 to the Tiger 11, but Auburn center Jim Price stole one of Libertore's passes to end the threat.

LOT OF QUACKERY

Ducks Should Have Say About Calling

By DAVID ZINMAN

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — A former international duck calling champion today renewed a year-old challenge to let ducks decide who can quack most like a duck—Arkansas or Louisiana hunters.

"Arkansas style is strictly a contest call," Raleigh Newman, 30, a Lake Charles professional guide and hunter, said. "They're judge calls, not duck calls."

Newman challenged Leavell Smith Jr., 30, of Stuttgart, Ark., to send a team to meet Louisiana callers in a quackoff at mallard-heavy Lake Misere here Nov. 16-17. Smith is chairman of the world duck calling contest held annually at Stuttgart.

The dates are two days after the first duck season ends here. So there wouldn't be any shooting to distract the birds, Newman said.

"We'll put one Louisiana hunter and one Arkansas hunter in each blind along with an impartial observer," Newman said.

"The Arkansas man can hail the first flight. If he dosen't decoy the ducks, the Louisiana man will call.

"Over two days, that ought to settle the question once and for all," he said.

The offbeat feud has simmered for a year, drawing the interest of hunting circles throughout the country.

What started feathers flying was Newman's announcement he wasn't competing at the 1959 Stuttgart calling contest because he was fed up with contest judges. Newman charged they were favoring an "artificial" Arkansas-style call that definitely was not for the birds.

Arkansas contest officials claimed Newman didn't know what he was quacking about. He was just afraid to compete, they said.

Bristling tirades flew across the neighboring states. A Louisiana state senator and an Arkansas mayor were briefly mixed up in the fuss.

But Newman stuck to his guns. He said ducks average 7-8 notes a call, and the Arkansas boys run their call 25-30 notes.

Newman said Louisiana style—a cannon-like blast of 7-8 notes, each trailing off with a faint squeal—was the authentic call.

"Arkansas style—a long series of soft yelps (gee, gee, gee, gee) like someone singing a musical scale—might catch attention over a microphone at a contest," Newman said, "but it wouldn't fool any ducks."

Newman and Smith set a date for a hunting ground showdown last December. But it never came off.

"The Arkansas boys hemmed and hawed last year, and the contest wasn't held," Newman said.

Smith said Newman asked for a postponement because a levee broke at the site Newman picked. When plans were ready again, the ducks were gone for the season.

Kelso Gives Record Run In Gold Cup

NEW YORK (AP) — Kelso, with Eddie Arcaro looking back in the home stretch for competition that never developed, galloped to an American record Saturday as he won the tough 2-mile Jockey Club Gold Cup at Aqueduct by 3½ lengths.

Don Poggio was second, 10 lengths ahead of Bald Eagle. It was another 15 lengths back to the fourth horse, Dotted Swiss.

The brilliant exhibition, sixth stakes triumph in a row and the eighth victory in nine starts this year for Kelso, probably insured him enough votes for 1960 Horse of the Year honors.

Arcaro registered his ninth Gold Cup victory as the 3-year-old son of Your Host-Maid of Flight by Count Fleet, soundly tourneed seven rivals. Nickel Boy was a late scratch.

The time was 3:19 2-5 on a track made sloppy by heavy overnight and morning rains. But that didn't bother Kelso. The old Aqueduct track mark of 3:22 1-5 was set last Oct. 31 when Sword Dancer, Arcaro up, clinched the horse of the year title by whipping Round Table in the Gold Cup. The American mark of 3:20 2-5 was set by Nashua, when he won his second consecutive Gold Cup—Arcaro up both times—in 1956 at Belmont.

Kelso, owned by the Bohemia Stable of Mrs. Richard C. duPont, was the heavy favorite of the crowd of 36,146 and paid $3.60, $2.80 and $2.20. Don Poggio, an Argentine horse, owned by Gustav Ring, paid $4.20 and $2.60. Bald Eagle, one of the top contenders for the year's championship honors, paid $2.40.

Giants Lose To Japan Stars In Baseball Tour

TOKYO (AP) — The San Francisco baseball Giants lost the third game of the six so far played on their goodwill tour of Japan Saturday and the 10-7 defeat set the fans to buzzing.

How is this possible, a Japanese fan asked a Japanese baseball official?

DEVILS, 6-0

Jacket Defenses Cracked By Duke

DURHAM N.C. (UPI)—Georgia Tech's goal-line luck ran out in the fourth period Saturday and Duke hammered across a straight power-drive touchdown to beat the Yellow Jackets 6-0 before 40,000 fans.

Before halfback Dean Wright rammed across the only score, the colorful rivals locked up in a scoreless struggle for position and the breaks.

Tech twice recovered Duke fumbles on the Tech two and halted another threat with a pass interception on the one in the Duke-dominated second half.

But then the Blue Devils resorted to old-fashioned T-formation power plays to go 44 yards for the winning touchdown. Not a single pass was thrown in the drive, although Duke completed 10 of 10 in the first half and 12 of 12 before Tech's Billy Williamson intercepted a long aerial on his one in the third period.

A determined Duke defense which had its share of the breaks too, kept Tech out of effective range, either for a touchdown or a field goal attempt.

A fumble stopped Tech on the Duke's 20 in the first period, and Duke held on downs at its 30 after a fumble on the opening kickoff was picked up by an alert Jacket, Walter Howard.

Then, keeping control through passing by Don Altman and Walt Rappold, the bowl-hopeful Blue Devils moved into field goal position twice in the first half. Placement specialist Bill Reynolds tried them both, but one from 40 yards out was short, and one from 39 yards was wide.

In the third period, Duke had marched from its 27 with the kickoff until Williamson's interception on the one. Tech kicked out, but when Duke drove back and Rappold passed to Wright on the two, Wright fumbled and Ben Smith recovered for Tech.

Halfback Mark Leggett had fumbled and Bobby Caldwell recovered for Tech on the two late in the second period.

Duke rolled up 19 first downs to seven for Tech, rushed for 164 yards to 74 for Tech and completed an amazing 15 of 16 passes for 143 yards through the air.

It was Duke's fifth victory in six games. The Blue Devils had lost only to Michigan of the Big Ten. The loss was the third for Georgia Tech, which has won four. It was also Tech's largest margin of defeat for the year. Their other losses were by one and two points respectively.

With only minutes left in the game, Hutchinson intercepted a pass from FSU quarterback Ed Trancygire on the Seminole 10 and ran it over for the final score. The pass attempt for the extra point was no good.

The Seminoles were in Wildcat territory only once during the first half. Their deepest penetration came when center Jack Hardy recovered a fumble by Eisaman on the Kentucky 34.

The second half saw Kentucky with control of the ball for most of the time. The Kentucky offense ripped holes in the Florida State forward wall that Eisaman, Bird, halfback Gary Steward and fullback Gary Cochran hit through with regularity.

Wyoming Finds Utes Easy Prey

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — The Wyoming Cowboys ran with ease through the Utah Redskins 17-7 Saturday for an important Skyline Conference football victory.

The defeat was Utah's first in league play this season and the 12th consecutive conference victory for Wyoming.

Brown Beats Cisco, Looks For New Foes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lightweight champion Joe Brown—who was laughing in Cisco Andrade's face when he wasn't swinging at it Friday night—says he'd like to defend his title at least once more this year.

The 34-year-old Brown, who now has made nine successful defenses for a lightweight record, says his most likely opponents are Len Matthews of Philadelphia and Eddie Perkins of Chicago.

Brown scored a lopsided if not devastating decision over Anrrade, drawing frequent boos from a crowd of 8,500 that was mostly for the Los Angeles boy.

Andrade, 30, who had predicted he would knock out the champ, complained: "Brown didn't want to fight. I was surprised. This is the first time he's ever run.

"But I couldn't catch him," Cisco added, "and it was my fault."

Brown, never in trouble, said he was resting, not running.

"I'm an old man," he said. "That's why I was trying to rest in the middle rounds. I wasn't playing around."

Asked if he'd give Andrade another shot, Brown said: "Sure... but the money's got to be right. I sort of like Cisco again, but I don't like him that much to give him another chance without any money."

Brown's guarantee Friday night was $40,000. Andrade's share was about $9,500.

Brown weighed 134½, Andrade 133½.

BU Eagles Beat Massachusetts

BOSTON (AP)—Boston University's Terriers, battered by Syracuse and Penn State, had enough left Saturday to beat Massachusetts 20-7.

Senior halfback Dick Desmarais of Sanford, Maine, gained 146 yards rushing on 30 carries.

DYAS TIES RECORD

Plainsmen's Field Goal Ace Gives Florida Sad Day, 10-7

By ANDREW REESE JR.

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Auburn's big Ed Dyas kicked a twisting 31-yard field goal too beat Florida 10-7 Saturday, the third time this season he has booted a game-winning field goal.

It was Dyas' seventh field goal of the season and tied him with Tommy Wells of Georgia Tech and Paige Cothren of Mississippi for a national record. The 205-pound fullback has kicked at least one three-pointer in each of Auburn's six 1960 games.

The surprising Florida Gators absorbed their second defeat of the season before a near capacity crowd of 40,000.

Dyas' long, curving kick went through the uprights in the third period, with the score tied 7-7. Earlier this season his kicks beat Kentucky and Georgia Tech.

Coach Ray Graves' Gators suffered their first conference loss, and dropped from a tie with mighty Mississippi for the Southeastern Conference lead.

Auburn, backing up its fifth straight after losing the opener to Tennessee, needed to win to stay in contention in the SEC race.

Quarterback Bobby Hunt, last year's sophomore sensation, ran for 18 yards and then hit end Don Downs with a pass good for 31 yards to set up Auburn's lone touchdown in the opening period. Halfback Bobby Lauder galloped eight yards for the score, and Dyas kicked the point.

Flrida got its offense rolling shortly before intermission. Taking the ball on their 20, the Gators moved deep into Auburn territory, aided by two penalties.

A clipping penalty against Florida pushed the ball back to the Auburn 43, but quarterback Larry Libertore, the 138-pound sophomore flash from Miami, ripped off a six-yard run and connected to senior end Pat Patchen for 19 yards. Moments later, second team fullback Don Loodman bulled his way up the middle to the two-yard line, and halfback Bob Hoover danced over on the next play.

Specialist Bill Cash's kick was good, tying the score and setting the scene for Dyas' field goal in the third period.

The senior fullback kicked from the 21 to climax an Auburn drive form it 48.

Florida fought back in the final period, marching from its own 44 to the Tiger 11, but Auburn center Jim Price stole one of Libertore's passes to end the threat.

LOT OF QUACKERY

Ducks Should Have Say About Calling

By DAVID ZINMAN

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — A former international duck calling champion today renewed a year-old challenge to let ducks decide who can quack most like a duck—Arkansas or Louisiana hunters.

"Arkansas style is strictly a contest call," Raleigh Newman, 30, a Lake Charles professional guide and hunter, said. "They're judge calls, not duck calls."

Newman challenged Leavell Smith Jr., 30, of Stuttgart, Ark., to send a team to meet Louisiana callers in a quackoff at mallard-heavy Lake Misere here Nov. 16-17. Smith is chairman of the world duck calling contest held annually at Stuttgart.

The dates are two days after the first duck season ends here. So there wouldn't be any shooting to distract the birds, Newman said.

"We'll put one Louisiana hunter and one Arkansas hunter in each blind along with an impartial observer," Newman said.

"The Arkansas man can hail the first flight. If he dosen't decoy the ducks, the Louisiana man will call.

"Over two days, that ought to settle the question once and for all," he said.

The offbeat feud has simmered for a year, drawing the interest of hunting circles throughout the country.

What started feathers flying was Newman's announcement he wasn't competing at the 1959 Stuttgart calling contest because he was fed up with contest judges. Newman charged they were favoring an "artificial" Arkansas-style call that definitely was not for the birds.

Arkansas contest officials claimed Newman didn't know what he was quacking about. He was just afraid to compete, they said.

Bristling tirades flew across the neighboring states. A Louisiana state senator and an Arkansas mayor were briefly mixed up in the fuss.

But Newman stuck to his guns. He said ducks average 7-8 notes a call, and the Arkansas boys run their call 25-30 notes.

Newman said Louisiana style—a cannon-like blast of 7-8 notes, each trailing off with a faint squeal—was the authentic call.

"Arkansas style—a long series of soft yelps (gee, gee, gee, gee) like someone singing a musical scale—might catch attention over a microphone at a contest," Newman said, "but it wouldn't fool any ducks."

Newman and Smith set a date for a hunting ground showdown last December. But it never came off.

"The Arkansas boys hemmed and hawed last year, and the contest wasn't held," Newman said.

Smith said Newman asked for a postponement because a levee broke at the site Newman picked. When plans were ready again, the ducks were gone for the season.

Kelso Gives Record Run In Gold Cup

NEW YORK (AP) — Kelso, with Eddie Arcaro looking back in the home stretch for competition that never developed, galloped to an American record Saturday as he won the tough 2-mile Jockey Club Gold Cup at Aqueduct by 3½ lengths.

Don Poggio was second, 10 lengths ahead of Bald Eagle. It was another 15 lengths back to the fourth horse, Dotted Swiss.

The brilliant exhibition, sixth stakes triumph in a row and the eighth victory in nine starts this year for Kelso, probably insured him enough votes for 1960 Horse of the Year honors.

Arcaro registered his ninth Gold Cup victory as the 3-year-old son of Your Host-Maid of Flight by Count Fleet, soundly tourneed seven rivals. Nickel Boy was a late scratch.

The time was 3:19 2-5 on a track made sloppy by heavy overnight and morning rains. But that didn't bother Kelso. The old Aqueduct track mark of 3:22 1-5 was set last Oct. 31 when Sword Dancer, Arcaro up, clinched the horse of the year title by whipping Round Table in the Gold Cup. The American mark of 3:20 2-5 was set by Nashua, when he won his second consecutive Gold Cup—Arcaro up both times—in 1956 at Belmont.

Kelso, owned by the Bohemia Stable of Mrs. Richard C. duPont, was the heavy favorite of the crowd of 36,146 and paid $3.60, $2.80 and $2.20. Don Poggio, an Argentine horse, owned by Gustav Ring, paid $4.20 and $2.60. Bald Eagle, one of the top contenders for the year's championship honors, paid $2.40.

Giants Lose To Japan Stars In Baseball Tour

TOKYO (AP) — The San Francisco baseball Giants lost the third game of the six so far played on their goodwill tour of Japan Saturday and the 10-7 defeat set the fans to buzzing.

How is this possible, a Japanese fan asked a Japanese baseball official?

DEVILS, 6-0

Jacket Defenses Cracked By Duke

DURHAM N.C. (UPI)—Georgia Tech's goal-line luck ran out in the fourth period Saturday and Duke hammered across a straight power-drive touchdown to beat the Yellow Jackets 6-0 before 40,000 fans.

Before halfback Dean Wright rammed across the only score, the colorful rivals locked up in a scoreless struggle for position and the breaks.

Tecn twice recovered Duke fumbles on the Tech two and halted another threat with a pass interception on the one in the Duke-dominated second half.

But then the Blue Devils resorted to old-fashioned T-formation power plays to go 44 yards for the winning touchdown. Not a single pass was thrown in the drive, although Duke completed 10 of 10 in the first half and 12 of 12 before Tech's Billy Williamson intercepted a long aerial on his one in the third period.

A determined Duke defense which had its share of the breaks too, kept Tech out of effective range, either for a touchdown or a field goal attempt.

A fumble stopped Tech on the Duke's 20 in the first period, and Duke held on downs at its 30 after a fumble on the opening kickoff was picked up by an alert Jacket, Walter Howard.

Then, keeping control through passing by Don Altman and Walt Rappold, the bowl-hopeful Blue Devils moved into field goal position twice in the first half. Placement specialist Bill Reynolds tried them both, but one from 40 yards out was short, and one from 39 yards was wide.

In the third period, Duke had marched from its 27 with the kickoff until Williamson's interception on the one. Tech kicked out, but when Duke drove back and Rappold passed to Wright on the two, Wright fumbled and Ben Smith recovered for Tech.

Halfback Mark Leggett had fumbled and Bobby Caldwell recovered for Tech on the two late in the second period.

Duke rolled up 19 first downs to seven for Tech, rushed for 164 yards to 74 for Tech and completed an amazing 15 of 16 passes for 143 yards through the air.

It was Duke's fifth victory in six games. The Blue Devils had lost only to Michigan of the Big Ten. The loss was the third for Georgia Tech, which has won four. It was also Tech's largest margin of defeat for the year. Their other losses were by one and two points respectively.

Citadel Marches By Presbyterian

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Halfback Earley Eastburn raced 82 yards for a touchdown, second longest run from scrimmage in The Citadel's football history Saturday to light the fuse in a 27-0 blasting of Presbyterian.

The Citadel brought its record for the season to 5-1-1 with a convincing performance that netted 397 yards against 77 for Presbyterian.

PITT BACK Bob Clemens (32) is off and running for a good gain through Syracuse line in second quarter of game yesterday at Syracuse, N.Y. An unidentified Orange player is hot on his heels with two other Syracuse players, Richard Feidler (63) and Dave Meggysey (57) also in hot pursuit. Pitt won, 10-0, breaking Syracuse's 16-game winning streak. (AP Wirephoto)

WIN STREAK CUT

Panthers Blank Syracuse, 10-0

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Pittsburgh shattered Syracuse's 16-game winning streak, whipping the No. 3 team of the nation 10-0 Saturday on a 14-yard touchdown by Jim Traficant and a 38-yard field goal by Fred Cox.

Pitt, a 10-point underdog which had won 2, lost 2 and tied 2 in six previous starts, grounded Syracuse's air game with three alert interceptions and recovered three of the Orange's fumbles before 41,872 fans, a record at Archbold Stadium.

It was the first game Syracuse, the No. 1 team of the nation last year, had lost since it bowed to the Oklahoma Sooners in the Orange Bowl after the 1958 season.

The last game it dropped in regular season play was to Holy Cross in the second game of the 1958 campaign. It had won 23 of 24 since.

Pitt dominated play in this rugged game, played in 60-degree temperature and bright sunshine. Twice the winners gave up the ball on downs, deep in Syracuse territory in the fourth period, passing up a field goal try to go for a TD with a pass.

As the game ended, Pitt was straining and clawing on the Syracuse 13, still putting on the pressure.

Traficant, a sophomore quarterback from Youngstown, Ohio, faked a handoff to fullback Jim Cunningham and ran 14 yards for the Pitt touchdown early in the first period. Pitt had grabbed the ball when center Andy Kuzneski intercepted a pass by Dave Sarette on the Syracuse 15.

The field goal by Cox came at 2:33 of the third period after he had recovered Ernie Davis' fumble on the Syracuse 25. Cox did a tremendous job all day with his punts, one 54-yard quick kick, his kickoffs into the end zone, his field goal and his conversion after the touchdown.

Pitt did its share of fumbling too, losing a potential touchdown after a 92-yard march in the second period. On a third and 2 situation, Traficant's handoff to Cox was fumbled into the end zone. Syracuse saved itself from an enemy TD when Dick Easterly fell on the ball.

The mighty Syracuse team that had rolled up to five straight this year in defense of its title never made a serious threat. In fact, Syracuse was held to a total of 138 yards, 100 rushing and only 38 passing. Mike Ditka, and Ron Delfine, a pair of fine ends, simply chased the Syracuse quarterbacks out of the ball park. Time after time, Ditka broke through to mow down the passer before he could get it away. Sarette, hurried in the opening minutes, threw the ball right into the hands of Kuzneski. He completed only three of 277 and had two intercepted.

The fierce Pitt line held Davis to a net of 37 yards while it let the C-men, Cox, Bob Clemens and Cunningham roll for a total of 120 yards.

Syracuse never seemed to recover from that first period TD and the shock of first losing the ball on a fumble and then giving it up on an interception.

Traficant was shaken up in the second period when his left arm appeared to have been injured but he came back in the ball game on the 92-yard drive that failed. His handoff to Cox missed fire and the ball bounced crazily into the end zone.

Terps Manage 15-0 Win For Third Straight

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Hard - hitting Maryland jarred South Carolina into seven fumbles and recovered four of them Saturday in a 15-0 victory that was the third straight for the late developing Terrapins.

Quarterback Dale Betty's passing, good for 13 completions on 18 throws, moved Maryland to its pair of touchdowns in the first and third quarters.

South Carolina, taking its fourth setback in five games, was frustrated throughout by inability to hold on to the football.

Twice in the first half, its backs fumbled inside the 10 and Maryland recovered. South Carolina couldn't hold the ball past midfield in the second half against the fired up Maryland defense.

Betty mixed a Collins concoction to move Maryland to its first touchdown. Fullback Red Collins started the 48-yard scoring drive with a 19-yard run, end Gary Collins took a Betty pass for the same distance and the fullback drove the last three years over the goal.

In the third period, the senior quarterback lofted a 28-yard scoring pass to end Hank Poniatowski.

The victory put Maryland on the credit side for the season with a

NATIONAL FOOTBALL LEAGUE

Giants Favored On Basis Of 'Year Of Bye' Figures

By JIM KENSIL

In the National Football League, where every team has a Chinaman's chance, the 1960 season may go down as "The Year of the Bye."

The New York Giants, only undefeated team in either conference, have the calendar going for them this week and are favored to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals by 10 points at New York.

And the Cardinals (2-3) can easily be forgiven if the Giants (3-0-1) beat them a lot worse. The Eastern Conference leaders already hold a 35-14 victory over the Cards, scored on the second Sunday of the season in St. Louis.

That was the same day the Washington Redskins drew a bye, then came back a week later to whip the Dallas Cowboys 26-14 on a day the Cleveland Browns had off. The Cowboys then met the rested Browns and were crushed 48-7. Green Bay didn't play that day, but resumed action last week with a 41-14 rout of San Francisco.

So that's been the pattern in this stop-gap year of the NFL's 13-team, 13-week schedule, a transitory period before the teams return to weekly play next year when Minneapolis-St. Paul becomes the 14th team. In the strength-sapping sport of pro football, a week's rest has been paying off handsomely. Only the Detroit Lions, first team to draw a bye, failed to benefit. But the Lions actually started their season a week late—with a loss.

The Philadelphia Eagles (4-1-0), the East's second-place club, have Sunday off, but the Cleveland Browns (3-1) are 10-point favorites to defeat the Redskins at Washington and move into a tie with the Eagles—for either first or second, depending on what the Giants do.

Green Bay (3-1) and the Chicago Bears (3-1-1) are both touchdown favorites to remain atop the Western Conference. The Packers play an inter-conference game with the Steelers (2-2-1) at Pittsburgh, and the Bears wind up a West Coast visit at San Francisco against the 49ers (2-3).

The third-place Baltimore Colts (3-2), struggling to defend their NFL championship, are favored by 14 points to beat the Cowboys (0-5) at Dallas.

In the day's other game, the Los Angeles Rams 0-4-1), who tied the Bears last week to end a 12-game losing streak, are home to Detroit 1-3). The Rams are rated a touchdown better although the Lions upset the Colts 30-17 last week.

In the American League, Houston is at Buffalo and Dallas at Denver. The other four teams played Friday night.

Hard-running halfback Alex Webster may be available to the Giants against the Cards Sunday, but veteran quarterback Charley Conerly and punter Don Chandler are unlikely to play because of injuries. But the Giants haven't had Webster all season, and Conerly played little, Chandler not at all when the Giants won before. George Shaw threw four TD passes in that one and will start for the Giants again Sunday. The Cards are without promising quarterback George Izo and fullback Mal Hammack.

The high-scoring Browns, rocked 31-29 by the Eagles last week, will be on the rebound against the Redskins, who have found new life in the quarterbacking of Ralph Guglielmi and the placement kicking of rookie Bob Khayat.

Pittsburgh's chances of upsetting the Packers are dim as long as Bobby Layne's jammed right thumb prevents him from passing. Rudy Bukich again fills in for Layne. The Packers got fine passing from Lamar McHan last week to go with their already strong ground game.

The Bears, beaten only by the Colts, whipped the 49ers two weeks in Chicago, 27-10 on the against the 49ers' weak defense. The 49ers also have been having offensive difficulty lately.

Baltimore had to finish with five straight victories for the conference title last year, and with seven games to go, now is virtually in the same position. And Dallas is no place to let up. The Cowboys have looked bad in only one game, the route by the Browns, and held the Colts to a narrow 14-10 exhibition victory at Dallas in August.

Rookie Coach Bob Waterfield of the Rams is confident the Los Angeles team is improving weekly and is just about due for its first victory. The Lions' biggest threat is field goal kicker Jim Martin, who hit three against the Colts.

Horses Added For Running Of International

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — One Italian horse was scratched and two promptly added Saturday for the ninth running of the $100,000 Washington, D.C., International on Nov. 11.

Trainer Ugo Penco cabled from Turin that his 5-year-old Malhoa had gone off form and would not start in the mile and half grass race.

John D. Schapiro, Laurel president, sought and received acceptances for Rio Marin, 4-year-old colt, and Santa Severa, 3-year-old filly, to provide Italy with its first representation in the race.

They hiked the current prospective field to 11 with the other entries coming from the United States, England, Ireland, France, Russia and the Ukraine.

WIN STREAK CUT

Panthers Blank Syracuse, 10-0

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Pittsburgh shattered Syracuse's 16-game winning streak, whipping the No. 3 team of the nation 10-0 Saturday on a 14-yard touchdown by Jim Traficant and a 38-yard field goal by Fred Cox.

Pitt, a 10-point underdog which had won 2, lost 2 and tied 2 in six previous starts, grounded Syracuse's air game with three alert interceptions and recovered three of the Orange's fumbles before 41,872 fans, a record at Archbold Stadium.

It was the first game Syracuse, the No. 1 team of the nation last year, had lost since it bowed to the Oklahoma Sooners in the Orange Bowl after the 1958 season.

The last game it dropped in regular season play was to Holy Cross in the second game of the 1958 campaign. It had won 23 of 24 since.

Pitt dominated play in this rugged game, played in 60-degree temperature and bright sunshine. Twice the winners gave up the ball on downs, deep in Syracuse territory in the fourth period, passing up a field goal try to go for a TD with a pass.

As the game ended, Pitt was straining and clawing on the Syracuse 13, still putting on the pressure.

Traficant, a sophomore quarterback from Youngstown, Ohio, faked a handoff to fullback Jim Cunningham and ran 14 yards for the Pitt touchdown early in the first period. Pitt had grabbed the ball when center Andy Kuzneski intercepted a pass by Dave Sarette on the Syracuse 15.

The field goal by Cox came at 2:33 of the third period after he had recovered Ernie Davis' fumble on the Syracuse 25. Cox did a tremendous job all day with his punts, one 54-yard quick kick, his kickoffs into the end zone, his field goal and his conversion after the touchdown.

Pitt did its share of fumbling too, losing a potential touchdown after a 92-yard march in the second period. On a third and 2 situation, Traficant's handoff to Cox was fumbled into the end zone. Syracuse saved itself from an enemy TD when Dick Easterly fell on the ball.

The mighty Syracuse team that had rolled up to five straight this year in defense of its title never made a serious threat. In fact, Syracuse was held to a total of 138 yards, 100 rushing and only 38 passing. Mike Ditka, and Ron Delfine, a pair of fine ends, simply chased the Syracuse quarterbacks out of the ball park. Time after time, Ditka broke through to mow down the passer before he could get it away. Sarette, hurried in the opening minutes, threw the ball right into the hands of Kuzneski. He completed only three of 277 and had two intercepted.

The fierce Pitt line held Davis to a net of 37 yards while it let the C-men, Cox, Bob Clemens and Cunningham roll for a total of 120 yards.

Syracuse never seemed to recover from that first period TD and the shock of first losing the ball on a fumble and then giving it up on an interception.

Ends Heywood Haser and end Steve Jastrzembski and Cox recovered the fumbles for the winners.

Traficant was shaken up in the second period when his left arm appeared to have been injured but he came back in the ball game on the 92-yard drive that failed. His handoff to Cox missed fire and the ball bounced crazily into the end zone.

Terps Manage 15-0 Win For Third Straight

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Hard - hitting Maryland jarred South Carolina into seven fumbles and recovered four of them Saturday in a 15-0 victory that was the third straight for the late developing Terrapins.

Quarterback Dale Betty's passing, good for 13 completions on 18 throws, moved Maryland to its pair of touchdowns in the first and third quarters.

South Carolina, taking its fourth setback in five games, was frustrated throughout by inability to hold on to the football.

Twice in the first half, its backs fumbled inside the 10 and Maryland recovered. South Carolina couldn't hold the ball past midfield in the second half against the fired up Maryland defense.

Betty mixed a Collins concoction to move Maryland to its first touchdown. Fullback Red Collins started the 48-yard scoring drive with a 19-yard run, end Gary Collins took a Betty pass for the same distance and the fullback drove the last three years over the goal.

In the third period, the senior quarterback lofted a 28-yard scoring pass to end Hank Poniatowski.

The victory put Maryland on the credit side for the season with a

NATIONAL FOOTBALL LEAGUE

Giants Favored On Basis Of 'Year Of Bye' Figures

By JIM KENSIL

In the National Football League, where every team has a Chinaman's chance, the 1960 season may go down as "The Year of the Bye."

The New York Giants, only undefeated team in either conference, have the calendar going for them this week and are favored to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals by 10 points at New York.

And the Cardinals (2-3) can easily be forgiven if the Giants (3-0-1) beat them a lot worse. The Eastern Conference leaders already hold a 35-14 victory over the Cards, scored on the second Sunday of the season in St. Louis.

That was the same day the Washington Redskins drew a bye, then came back a week later to whip the Dallas Cowboys 26-14 on a day the Cleveland Browns had off. The Cowboys then met the rested Browns and were crushed 48-7. Green Bay didn't play that day, but resumed action last week with a 41-14 rout of San Francisco.

So that's been the pattern in this stop-gap year of the NFL's 13-team, 13-week schedule, a transitory period before the teams return to weekly play next year when Minneapolis-St. Paul becomes the 14th team. In the strength-sapping sport of pro football, a week's rest has been paying off handsomely. Only the Detroit Lions, first team to draw a bye, failed to benefit. But the Lions actually started their season a week late—with a loss.

The Philadelphia Eagles (4-1-0), the East's second-place club, have Sunday off, but the Cleveland Browns (3-1) are 10-point favorites to defeat the Redskins at Washington and move into a tie with the Eagles—for either first or second, depending on what the Giants do.

Green Bay (3-1) and the Chicago Bears (3-1-1) are both touchdown favorites to remain atop the Western Conference. The Packers play an inter-conference game with the Steelers (2-2-1) at Pittsburgh, and the Bears wind up a West Coast visit at San Francisco against the 49ers (2-3).

The third-place Baltimore Colts (3-2), struggling to defend their NFL championship, are favored by 14 points to beat the Cowboys (0-5) at Dallas.

In the day's other game, the Los Angeles Rams 0-4-1), who tied the Bears last week to end a 12-game losing streak, are home to Detroit 1-3). The Rams are rated a touchdown better although the Lions upset the Colts 30-17 last week.

In the American League, Houston is at Buffalo and Dallas at Denver. The other four teams played Friday night.

Hard-running halfback Alex Webster may be available to the Giants against the Cards Sunday, but veteran quarterback Charley Conerly and punter Don Chandler are unlikely to play because of injuries. But the Giants haven't had Webster all season, and Conerly played little, Chandler not at all when the Giants won before. George Shaw threw four TD passes in that one and will start for the Giants again Sunday. The Cards are without promising quarterback George Izo and fullback Mal Hammack.

The high-scoring Browns, rocked 31-29 by the Eagles last week, will be on the rebound against the Redskins, who have found new life in the quarterbacking of Ralph Guglielmi and the placement kicking of rookie Bob Khayat.

Pittsburgh's chances of upsetting the Packers are dim as long as Bobby Layne's jammed right thumb prevents him from passing. Rudy Bukich again fills in for Layne. The Packers got fine passing from Lamar McHan last week to go with their already strong ground game.

The Bears, beaten only by the Colts, whipped the 49ers two weeks in Chicago, 27-10 on the against the 49ers' weak defense. The 49ers also have been having offensive difficulty lately.

Baltimore had to finish with five straight victories for the conference title last year, and with seven games to go, now is virtually in the same position. And Dallas is no place to let up. The Cowboys have looked bad in only one game, the route by the Browns, and held the Colts to a narrow 14-10 exhibition victory at Dallas in August.

Rookie Coach Bob Waterfield of the Rams is confident the Los Angeles team is improving weekly and is just about due for its first victory. The Lions' biggest threat is field goal kicker Jim Martin, who hit three against the Colts.

Horses Added For Running Of International

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — One Italian horse was scratched and two promptly added Saturday for the ninth running of the $100,000 Washington, D.C., International on Nov. 11.

Trainer Ugo Penco cabled from Turin that his 5-year-old Malhoa had gone off form and would not start in the mile and half grass race.

John D. Schapiro, Laurel president, sought and received acceptances for Rio Marin, 4-year-old colt, and Santa Severa, 3-year-old filly, to provide Italy with its first representation in the race.

They hiked the current prospective field to 11 with the other entries coming from the United States, England, Ireland, France, Russia and the Ukraine.

Japanese Trying To Get Capital

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Japanese have invaded Wall Street in an all-out effort to attract American capital to Japan.

The Japanese securities industry has grown by leaps and bounds along with the island's economy the past 10 years and there is no end in sight. More and more corporations will be turning to equity financing to meet their needs and foreign capital will be sorely needed.

Japan's "big four" securities dealers and underwriters, Nikko Securities Co., Ltd., Yamaichi Securities Co., Ltd., Nomura Securities Co., Ltd., and Daiwa Securities Co., are out to woo both individual and institutional investors here.

Their efforts are being aided by the recent liberalization of Japan's foreign investment laws which permit easier repatriation of capital and earnings than previously possible.

In addition, these firms anxiously are awaiting action by the Japanese Finance Ministry in approving issuance of American depository receipts for stocks of leading Japanese firms.

Such a move might open the door for millions of American dollars to go into Japanese securities.

Four major New York banks, Irving Trust Co., Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., Chemical Bank New York Trust Co., and First National City Bank of New York, have taken the lead toward the issuance of ADR's.

American depository receipts are a method by which American investors can invest funds in foreign securities via registered receipts issued in this country. The receipts are backed most often by deposit of the original share certificates in designated banks abroad.

Some of the attractive features of the ADR system are that investors have the convenience of easier, quicker and less expensive transfer than would be enjoyed through holding the actual shares. And, even more important, the issuing bank also handles dividend payments, converting them into dollars from foreign currency if necessary.

To say that Japan's "big four" securities dealers are actively campaigning for American capital is putting it mildly. Requests to these firms for literature on Japanese securities will result in an overwhelming pile of papers.

Nikko, for example, has undertaken a U.S. advertising program and publication of a monthly newsletter in English compiled in New York plus publication of a weekly securities digest which is airmailed from Tokyo.

A special series of four-page studies on 101 major Japanese firms has been prepared for use by U.S. security analysts, and special booklets on investment in Japan, tax advantages of Japanese securities and procedures for foreign investment also are being distributed by the "big four."

Naomichi Toyama, head of Nikko's New York office, admitted that the number of actual American investors in Japanese securities is increasing slowly, but said approval of the American depository receipt system by the Japanese government would do much to quicken this foreign investment pace.

He told United Press International an important growing source of inquiry and interest concerning Japanese securities has been the U.S. investment clubs. Many of the clubs have requested company studies, and some have requested speakers to explain investment in foreign securities.

The modern Japanese securities industry dates back to May, 1949 when three exchanges were reopened in Tokyo, Osaka and Nagoya based on a new securities exchange law modeled after the securities exchange acts of the United States.

The exchanges were put on a membership system, tradings on a "future settlement" basis were abolished and the American system of margin transactions was adopted.

Dr. Goodpaster Found In Cell Semi-Conscious

MARION, Ill. (AP)—Dr. Walter J. Goodpaster, convicted Friday of murder and his punishment fixed at 199 years in prison, was found in semi-conscious condition in a jail cell at Metropolis Saturday. Authorities feared he had swallowed poison.

The Herrin optometrist, brother of a White House aide, was driven by Sheriff Dean West to the Marion Memorial hospital, where his stomach was pumped out.

The sheriff, who had gone to Metropolis to return Goodpaster, 47, to Marion, found him unconscious in his cell. Officials were able to revive him somewhat but he appeared unable to talk coherently.

Goodpaster was searched, but officials were unable to find a bottle or any other kinds of container. A 24-hour guard was placed on his hospital room.

The optometrist, brother of Brig. Gen. Andrew J. Goodpaster, White House Staff secretary, was convicted in the Christmas day rifle slaying of Margaret Strunk, 52, mother of 12 children.

Bernard Dobraski Jr., 33, testified Goodpaster killed her with a rifle shot and wounded Dobraski twice with pistol shots after Dobraski threw rocks at Goodpaster's barking watch dog. Dobraski and Mrs. Strunk were walking by Goodpaster's farm near Carterville after visiting several taverns together.

Announcement is made this weekend by the Reverend and Mrs. A. Donald Davies, 501 Erin Street, of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Dona Mabel Davis to Cecil Palmer Jarrell Jr. The future bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. C. P. Jarrell, 1504 Emerson, Monroe.

The couple will be united in marriage on Tuesday, December 27 at 12 o'clock noon in Grace Episcopal Church, with the bride's father performing the ceremony.

Miss Davies has selected Miss Ann Trousdale of Monroe, to serve as her maid of honor. Bridesmaids will be Mrs. Elmer Slagle, Monroe; Miss Betty Lou Echols, Bastrop and Mrs. Richard C. Guerriero, Monroe.

Dr. Jarrell will attend his son as best man. Serving as groomsmen for the wedding will be Elmer Slagle, Monroe; Al DeBlieux, Natchitoches; Thomas Godfrey, Monroe, and ushers will be Charles Buie, Fort Necessity, La., and Duncan Buie, Monroe.

A graduate of Neville high school, Miss Davies is now attending Northeast Louisiana State College, where she is a member of Phi Mu sorority. She is the granddaughter of John M. Roberts, Miami, Fla., and Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Davies, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Mr. Jarrell attended Louisiana State University and is at present a student at Northeast Louisiana State College. He is a member of Beta Sigma biology fraternity and Sigma Alpha Epsilon social fraternity.

The couple plans to establish a home in Monroe.

Wedding Date Scheduled By Shirley Crow, Fiance

PICTURE ON PAGE 1

Mrs. Lester Clyde Richardson announces the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Miss Shirley Ann Crow, to Charles Michael DeShong, son of the Reverend and Mrs. Jack C. McLendon of Converse, Louisiana. The wedding will be solemnized at 8 o'clock on the evening of Wednesday, November 23.

The Reverend T. Earl Ogg, pastor of the College Place Baptist Church, will officiate at the ceremony which will take place in the church sanctuary.

Miss Crow has chosen Miss Sandra Edwards to be her maid of honor. For her bridesmaids she has named Misses Juliana Hales, Pamelia Fuller and Judith Harrison.

Edwin Odom of Baskin will serve as best man and the groomsmen-ushers will be Kenneth Hoots of Sicily Island, William Windsor and Luther Buckner.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Ouachita Parish High School and is attending Northeast Louisiana State College where she is majoring in business education.

Mr. DeShong graduated from Bay Town High School, Panama City, Fla. before entering Gulf Coast Junior College in that city. He presently is continuing his studies in music at Northeast Louisiana State College.

The couple plan to make their home in Monroe.

Sleepwear Traced From Middle Ages

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

The present range of fashions in sleepwear is a recent development in clothing. Up until the Middle Ages people went to bed in the raw, huddling under fur pelts for covers. And when they began to wear a night garment, it was the shapeless nightshirt for men and women right down to the opening of this century.

Sleepwear has always been closely related to the warmth of houses, which only began to be comfortable during the eighteenth century. For most of our history women have been more interested in the canopies and curtains which hung around beds to keep out the cold. The nightgown was a strictly utilitarian garment for warmth.

During the Renaissance, when the nightgown became fairly common the chief embellishment was nasal rather than visual. Since bathing was rather uncommon, "night smoks" were perfumed, as were the bedclothes themselves.

All these facts and many more oddities were turned up in a recent study made of sleepwear by a large producer of electric blankets .It has been interested in the historical trend from bareness to bareness as warmth came to houses and beds were more efficiently insulated.

Take the nightcap, a standard piece of equipment through history until the middle of the last century. Men wore scarlet ones, sometimes embroidered and tasseled. Ladies' caps were styled like baby bonnets, with ribbon ties and ruffled edges. But for all the decoration, the nightcap was a necessity in unheated bedrooms.

Pajamas came in for men during the Gay Nineties, but women adopted them only during the early years of this century. There was a rage for Oriental fashions which made "harem trousers" respectable for women's sleepwear. Then the feminist era made them a badge of independence, and for some years few women would be found owning an "old-fashioned" nightgown.

During this century the load of covers once common on beds was reduced to a wool blanket or two, sometimes to a light wool cover heated by electricity.

The result has been a return to the nightgown, but with a difference. During the Thirties certain designers introduced the nightgown patterned after an evening gown, and sleepwear became a fashion item. Nylon brought still more elaborate styling, since ruffles no longer needed ironing.

The electric blanket people are amused by the present rage for the bikini pajama. Minimum although it may seem to us, it merely brings sleepwear back to the place it began 700 years ago.

Homemakers HD Member Elected Council Officer

Better Homemakers Home Demonstration club held its October meeting in the home of Mrs. Ray Wright on Dick Taylor Street with eight members present.

Mrs. Frank Buce, president, opened the meeting with the thought of the day after which Mrs. Ernest Grubbs, nutrition leader, demonstrated a talk on "Simple Time Saving Meals."

An appreciation certificate awarded the club by the American Red Cross for participation in the "Operation Fireside" project was entered in the scrap book. It was also announced the club won a blue ribbon for its booth at the Ouachita Valley Fair.

Mrs. Buce was elected vice-president of the Ouachita Council. At the close of the meeting luncheon was served to Mrs. J. C. Coon, Mrs. Virginia Wesson, Mrs. Ernest Grubbs, Mrs. Luther Klick, Mrs. Buce, Mrs. H. T. Everritt, and Mrs. Norman Martin.

Speaker Named For Federation Of Garden Clubs

Mrs. F. R. (Ione) Richardson of New Orleans, formerly of Ruston, will be featured speaker for the 11th annual meeting of the Louisiana Garden Club Federation which will convene November 11 at the Little Theater on Tech campus in Ruston.

Garden club members throughout the fifth district which includes Monroe, are expected to attend the sessions, slated to start at 9:30 a.m. according to Mrs. Frank Kaylor, fifth district director.

Business meetings will be held from 9:30 a.m. until noon with the main program to start at 1:30 p.m. following luncheon in the banquet room of the student center.

Mrs. Richardson will speak on the subject "Occidental (Western Style) Flower Arrangements," which will be illustrated by her own floral arrangements.

Holder of a life-time Nationally Accredited Flower Show judging certificate, Mrs. Richardson has since 1951 been instructor for National Council Judging schools in flower arrangements. She is also author of a new book entitled, "Flower Arrangements the American Way," recently published in New Orleans.

In addition she has lectured and taught throughout the United States, her engagements including the Art Institute in Chicago and Michigan State University in East Lansing.

The public is invited to attend.

Bosses Assail Secretaries For Self-Pity

At least that's what some bosses say.

They made their comments in a survey made public at a recent meeting of the New Orleans Secretaries Assn.

Among other faults are undependability, clannishness and moodiness.

Dr. Henry J. Engler, dean of Loyola University of the South's College of Business, says the survey was made here among 100 supervisors employing between 5 and 20 women.

The survey lists other faults as:

Unwillingness to accept responsibility, proneness to be hurt, excessive attention to details, and laziness.

Lack of time consciousness, exaggeration and misstatment, and excessive artiness.

Citing an example of "undependability," Engler reports some supervisors say single women would rather quit than break dates to work overtime.

Other bosses say they "are pretty morbid about minor illnesses, going to pieces and unable to concentrate on their work."

Parker-Wade Vows Read In Clarks Church

Clarks Baptist Church was the setting for the wedding of Miss Sandra Wade and Jimmy Parker which was solemnized Sunday morning. The Rev. Carvelia Johnston performed the double ring ceremony immediately following the morning worship service.

Mrs. Carvelia Johnston rendered nuptial music during the exchange of vows at the altar which was decorated with yellow gladioli and chrysanthemums.

The couple will be at home in Monroe, where Mr. Parker is employed and the bride is a student at Northeast Louisiana State College.

Sleepwear Traced From Middle Ages

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

The present range of fashions in sleepwear is a recent development in clothing. Up until the Middle Ages people went to bed in the raw, huddling under fur pelts for covers. And when they began to wear a night garment, it was the shapeless nightshirt for men and women right down to the opening of this century.

Sleepwear has always been closely related to the warmth of houses, which only began to be comfortable during the eighteenth century. For most of our history women have been more interested in the canopies and curtains which hung around beds to keep out the cold. The nightgown was a strictly utilitarian garment for warmth.

During the Renaissance, when the nightgown became fairly common the chief embellishment was nasal rather than visual. Since bathing was rather uncommon, "night smoks" were perfumed, as were the bedclothes themselves.

All these facts and many more oddities were turned up in a recent study made of sleepwear by a large producer of electric blankets .It has been interested in the historical trend from bareness to bareness as warmth came to houses and beds were more efficiently insulated.

Take the nightcap, a standard piece of equipment through history until the middle of the last century. Men wore scarlet ones, sometimes embroidered and tasseled. Ladies' caps were styled like baby bonnets, with ribbon ties and ruffled edges. But for all the decoration, the nightcap was a necessity in unheated bedrooms.

Pajamas came in for men during the Gay Nineties, but women adopted them only during the early years of this century. There was a rage for Oriental fashions which made "harem trousers" respectable for women's sleepwear. Then the feminist era made them a badge of independence, and for some years few women would be found owning an "old-fashioned" nightgown.

During this century the load of covers once common on beds was reduced to a wool blanket or two, sometimes to a light wool cover heated by electricity.

The result has been a return to the nightgown, but with a difference. During the Thirties certain designers introduced the nightgown patterned after an evening gown, and sleepwear became a fashion item. Nylon brought still more elaborate styling, since ruffles no longer needed ironing.

The electric blanket people are amused by the present rage for the bikini pajama. Minimum although it may seem to us, it merely brings sleepwear back to the place it began 700 years ago.

Homemakers HD Member Elected Council Officer

Better Homemakers Home Demonstration club held its October meeting in the home of Mrs. Ray Wright on Dick Taylor Street with eight members present.

Mrs. Frank Buce, president, opened the meeting with the thought of the day after which Mrs. Ernest Grubbs, nutrition leader, demonstrated a talk on "Simple Time Saving Meals."

An appreciation certificate awarded the club by the American Red Cross for participation in the "Operation Fireside" project was entered in the scrap book. It was also announced the club won a blue ribbon for its booth at the Ouachita Valley Fair.

Mrs. Buce was elected vice-president of the Ouachita Council. At the close of the meeting luncheon was served to Mrs. J. C. Coon, Mrs. Virginia Wesson, Mrs. Ernest Grubbs, Mrs. Luther Klick, Mrs. Buce, Mrs. H. T. Everritt, and Mrs. Norman Martin.

Speaker Named For Federation Of Garden Clubs

Mrs. F. R. (Ione) Richardson of New Orleans, formerly of Ruston, will be featured speaker for the 11th annual meeting of the Louisiana Garden Club Federation which will convene November 11 at the Little Theater on Tech campus in Ruston.

Garden club members throughout the fifth district which includes Monroe, are expected to attend the sessions, slated to start at 9:30 a.m. according to Mrs. Frank Kaylor, fifth district director.

Business meetings will be held from 9:30 a.m. until noon with the main program to start at 1:30 p.m. following luncheon in the banquet room of the student center.

Mrs. Richardson will speak on the subject "Occidental (Western Style) Flower Arrangements," which will be illustrated by her own floral arrangements.

Holder of a life-time Nationally Accredited Flower Show judging certificate, Mrs. Richardson has since 1951 been instructor for National Council Judging schools in flower arrangements. She is also author of a new book entitled, "Flower Arrangements the American Way," recently published in New Orleans.

In addition she has lectured and taught throughout the United States, her engagements including the Art Institute in Chicago and Michigan State University in East Lansing.

The public is invited to attend.

Campbell-Harper Vows Scheduled December 18 In West Monroe Church

Announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Martha Julia Harper to Jimmy Ray Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Ray Campbell of Minden, was made this weekend by the parents of the bride-elect, Mr. and Mrs. John Leron Harper of West Monroe.

The wedding will be an event of December 18 at 3 o'clock in the afternoon at the First Baptist church in West Monroe. Dr. Jaroy Weber, former pastor of the West Monroe church, will officiate at the exchange of vows.

Miss Becky Harper, sister of the bride-elect, will serve as maid of honor and Mrs. Gene Barham of Austin, Texas, will be matron of honor.

Chosen to serve as bridesmaids are Miss Jo Ann Mahaffey, Monroe; Miss Judy Dodds, Ruston and Miss Jeanette Brooks, West Monroe.

Willis Ray Campbell will attend his son as best man and ushers will include Max Rudd, Minden; Joe Hinton, and Larry Bowman, both of Ruston and Paul Hines of Sulphur.

Miss Harper is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clark Harper of West Monroe and the late Mr. and Mrs. Jasper H. Colvin, of Dubach. A graduate of West Monroe high school, she is at present a senior student at Louisiana Tech in Ruston, where she is a member of Kappa Delta sorority.

Also a senior at Louisiana Tech, Mr. Harper was graduated from Minden high school. He is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Fred Y. Baker of McGehee, Ark., and the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Campbell, Wilson, Ark.

The couple plans to continue studies at Louisiana Tech following their marriage.

News
Girl Scout

Intermediate troops plan to hold a court-of-awards at Georgia Tucker School Tuesday evening, November 1. Badges earned during the summer or completed since school started will be presented by leaders. Particularly honored will be eight girls from Troop 1 who have reached Curved Bar Rank, the highest in Intermediate Scouting. Troop 15 will have charge of the opening flag ceremony. Since the meeting is on a school night, it will start promptly at 7:00 and end as promptly at 8:00 p.m. Families and friends of the participating Scouts are urged to attend. Come and show our Curved Bar Scouts that we are proud of them!

Tomorrow is another red letter day. It's Halloween, of course. But it is also the 100th birthday of Juliette Low, founder of Girl Scouts of the U. S. A. Troops are celebrating Founder's Day with special observances of their own. Troop 56, first year Brownies, heard the story of Juliette Low at their meeting last week and had birthday cake, with yellow frosting and decorations of daisies ("Daisy" was the nickname of our founder) made by Mary Ann Hart's mother. One candle stood for 100 years. Mrs. J. T. Smith, Mrs. R. G. Hart, and Mrs. Tom Files are leaders of the troop.

Many girls and leaders are wearing the Centennial Patch on their uniforms in honor of the Birthday Years of Girl Scouting, from now until the golden anniversary in 1962. Each troop has a large poster of the Birthday Year's Trail, on which to place pictures and write-ups of troop activities that mark these historic occasions.

Troop camping last weekend was a wonderfully adventurous experience for the girls of Troop 15. For most of the girls it was their second such experience and according to the accompanying adults the girls carried out their plans for fun and kapers like veterans. Helpful, too was the fact that almost all of the girls have had one to four seasons of day camping at Pine Wood.

Mrs. John Salisbury, Mrs. Charles Schneider, and Mrs. G. A. Waschka were the adults in charge. Girls who attended were: Mary Ann Atkinson, Carol Cooper, Mary Beth Crossland, Linda Eaton, Nancy Hammonds, Dottie Kiper, Martha Keeling, Barbara Kurtz, Susan Martin, Kathy Mouk, Ann Murphy, Marianne Salisbury, Dolores Schneider, Claire Schonlau, Betty Jo Spargo, Susan Stone, Harriet Wadley, Carol Waschka.

Cooking in a pot on a crane over the open fire, campfire, cutting sticks and lashing a table, using the patrol system effectively, doing kapers efficiently, singing as they worked, were highlights of the trip, as evaluated by girls and leaders. The careful planning with girls, the time spent in practicing lashing, making bedrolls, kaper charts, added to the smooth operation, as well as to the fun. Proof that the troop did a good job is shown by the fact that they are already planning two nights next time and have put a date on the camp calendar!

Guests Attend Claiborne Club At Perkins Home

Two guests, Mrs. Charles Glover and Mrs. E. Hargrove, were present when Mrs. James Perkins entertained the Claiborne Home Demonstration club at its October meeting in her home on Wallace Dean Road. Mrs. L. E. McCurry was co-hostess and Wayne Wall from the Farm Bureau was guest speaker.

Mrs. E. Hargrove of the Progressive Home Demonstration club gave a demonstration on Simple Time Saving Meals. Mrs. J. O. Frantom gave a report on the last council meeting and health and safety and home management reports were given by Mrs. W. J. Dunn and Mrs. Charles Magown.

Members present were Mrs. David Bryan, Mrs. E. C. Gaskins, Mrs. C. E. Crawford, Mrs. Charles Magown, Mrs. W. J. Dunn, Mrs. J. W. Fleming, Mrs. L. M. Bayne, Mrs. R. R. The November meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Jasper Jones, Vancil Road with Mrs. J. W. Fleming, co-hostess.

Drew PTA Has Panel Discussion On Curriculum

A panel discussion highlighted the October meeting of Drew Parent-Teacher Association held last week in the school cafeteria. Mrs. J. M. Feazel, president, had charge of the meeting.

The newly-formed band and flute classes under direction of A. E. Chapman Jr. entertained with several musical selections.

The panel, composed of Mrs. J. W. Wininger, Mrs. G. W. Welch, Mrs. A. P. Burkett and Superintendent W. W. Ward had as its subject for discussion, "Let's Look at Curriculum." Mrs. Carl Gregory, program chairman, served as moderator and the panelists gave a general outline of subjects taught, extra curricula activities and a comparison of the curriculum with others in the state and nation.

Mrs. J. E. Bryan and Mrs. Roy Wood, committee chairmen, gave reports on the budget and playground equipment. The fifth grade won room count with the largest number of parents represented.

The bride-elect attended Newcomb College, New Orleans, and currently is enrolled at Northeast Louisiana State College. She is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority.

Mr. Walker is the grandson of Mr. James Nathaniel Neal and the late Mrs. Neal of Mansfield and the late Mr. and Mrs. William Thomas Walker of Jonesboro.

He attended Tulane University, New Orleans, and will enter Northeast Louisiana State College in the spring semester.

Check Measure

Before shopping for clothes, a man should have someone help him to check his measurements. Measure height without shoes while standing against a wall. Measure chest horizontally with tape close up under the arms. Hold tape snugly when measuring waist. Also measure the trouser inseam — stretching the tape from crotch along the inseam to length desired.

Early Eye Care

Even in infancy and early childhood, parents should be alert for evidences of eye trouble. Signs of eye difficulties include swollen, red or encrusted eyelids with recurring sties, cross-eye or uneven position of the eye inflamed and watery eyes or constant, rapid motion of the eyeballs. Be on the lookout also for aimless rolling of the eyes, frowning or squinting, twisting, or tilting the head when looking at objects, a marked sensitivity to light, frequent rubbing of the eyes or stumbling over small objects

Cashmere Care

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cashmere experts recommend washing the fiber instead of dry cleaning because the gentle agitation in laundering renews the softness and keeps the sweater fluffy. Dalton of America, a leading cashmere house, said that dry cleaning is turn will give cashmere a flat look.

Garnish Tomatoes

You can give baked or broiled tomatoes (cut into halves) a pizza-style topping by garnishing with grated cheese and anchovies.

News Girl Scout

Intermediate troops plan to hold a court-of-awards at Georgia Tucker School Tuesday evening, November 1. Badges earned during the summer or completed since school started will be presented by leaders. Particularly honored will be eight girls from Troop 1 who have reached Curved Bar Rank, the highest in Intermediate Scouting. Troop 15 will have charge of the opening flag ceremony. Since the meeting is on a school night, it will start promptly at 7:00 and end as promptly at 8:00 p.m. Families and friends of the participating Scouts are urged to attend. Come and show our Curved Bar Scouts that we are proud of them!

Tomorrow is another red letter day. It's Halloween, of course. But it is also the 100th birthday of Juliette Low, founder of Girl Scouts of the U. S. A. Troops are celebrating Founder's Day with special observances of their own. Troop 56, first year Brownies, heard the story of Juliette Low at their meeting last week and had birthday cake, with yellow frosting and decorations of daisies ("Daisy" was the nickname of our founder) made by Mary Ann Hart's mother. One candle stood for 100 years. Mrs. J. T. Smith, Mrs. R. G. Hart, and Mrs. Tom Files are leaders of the troop.

Many girls and leaders are wearing the Centennial Patch on their uniforms in honor of the Birthday Years of Girl Scouting, from now until the golden anniversary in 1962. Each troop has a large poster of the Birthday Year's Trail, on which to place pictures and write-ups of troop activities that mark these historic occasions.

Troop camping last weekend was a wonderfully adventurous experience for the girls of Troop 15. For most of the girls it was their second such experience and according to the accompanying adults the girls carried out their plans for fun and kapers like veterans. Helpful, too was the fact that almost all of the girls have had one to four seasons of day camping at Pine Wood.

Cooking in a pot on a crane over the open fire, campfire, cutting sticks and lashing a table, using the patrol system effectively, doing kapers efficiently, singing as they worked, were highlights of the trip, as evaluated by girls and leaders. The careful planning with girls, the time spent in practicing lashing, making bedrolls, kaper charts, added to the smooth operation, as well as to the fun. Proof that the troop did a good job is shown by the fact that they are already planning two nights next time and have put a date on the camp calendar!

NOVEMBER 19 is the date selected for their marriage by Miss Linda Bryan, above, and Herbert Wayne Sanford. The vows will be solemnized at 8 p.m. in Downsville Baptist church. Parents of the betrothed couple are Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Bryan of Downsville and Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Sanford, West Monroe. Only attendants for the wedding will be Miss Margaret Sanford, West Monroe, sister of the future bridegroom, and Bobby Butler, Monroe. The couple plans to establish a home in West Monroe.

November 26 Wedding Planned By Miss Maurey, George Thomas Walker Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Maurey of Chicago, Ill., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Madeleine Joan Maurey, to George Thomas Walker Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. George Thomas Walker of Monroe. The wedding will be solemnized at 11 a.m. on Saturday, November 26.

Dr. W. H. McFadden, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church will officiate at the ceremony which will take place in Bryn Mawr Community Church, Chicago.

Miss Maurey has chosen her sister, Miss Joan Ann Maurey of Chicago, to be her maid of honor.

For her bridesmaids she has selected her fiance's sister, Miss Ellen Walker of Monroe; Miss Virginia Beem, Atlanta, Ga., Miss Malise Mapp, of Monroe; and Miss Mary Ann Moore of Chicago.

Dr. George Thomas Walker will serve his son as best man and the groomsmen-ushers are to be Allen Foster of Monroe, Thomas O'Connor of Chicago, Richard Watson of West Monroe, and Roger Williams of Natchitoches.

Miss Maurey is the granddaughter of Mrs. William Carpenter and the late Mr. Carpenter of Chicago and Mrs. Eugene Maurey Sr., and the late Mr. Maurey of Chicago.

The bride-elect attended Newcomb College, New Orleans, and currently is enrolled at Northeast Louisiana State College. She is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority.

Mr. Walker is the grandson of Mr. James Nathaniel Neal and the late Mrs. Neal of Mansfield and the late Mr. and Mrs. William Thomas Walker of Jonesboro.

He attended Tulane University, New Orleans, and will enter Northeast Louisiana State College in the spring semester.

Check Measure

Before shopping for clothes, a man should have someone help him to check his measurements. Measure height without shoes while standing against a wall. Measure chest horizontally with tape close up under the arms. Hold tape snugly when measuring waist. Also measure the trouer inseam — stretching the tape from crotch along the inseam to length desired.

Early Eye Care

Even in infancy and early childhood, parents should be alert for evidences of eye trouble. Signs of eye difficulties include swollen, red or encrusted eyelids with recurring sties, cross-eye or uneven position of the eye inflamed and watery eyes or constant, rapid motion of the eyeballs. Be on the lookout also for aimless rolling of the eyes, frowning or squinting, twisting, or tilting the head when looking at objects, a marked sensitivity to light, frequent rubbing of the eyes or stumbling over small objects

Cashmere Care

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cashmere experts recommend washing the fiber instead of dry cleaning because the gentle agitation in laundering renews the softness and keeps the sweater fluffy. Dalton of America, a leading cashmere house, said that dry cleaning is turn will give cashmere a flat look.

Garnish Tomatoes

You can give baked or broiled tomatoes (cut into halves) a pizza-style topping by garnishing with grated cheese and anchovies.

Talk On Safety Features PTA At Claiborne

Tommy Hebert of the West Monroe Police Department spoke on "Safety — A Challenge," at the Claiborne Parent-Teacher Association in West Monroe on Thursday October 20.

Mr. Hebert stressed the need of parents emphasizing safety precautions to their children each day.

Mrs. James H. Butler, president, introduced a representative trio from the Ward 5 Recreation Commission, Bobby Wilson, Charles Calhoun and James Dana, who outlined the group's history, proposals and plans.

Mrs. Miles Tolleson gave a report of the Fall District PTA meeting. Mrs. P. B. Mangum's second grade class won the prize for most mothers in attendance at the meeting.

Lamb Meat Balls

NEW YORK (UPI) — A meat ball variation calls for ground lamb instead of beef.

Combine 1 pound of ground lamb with ½ cup of fine dry bread crumbs, 1 teaspoon of salt and ¼ teaspoon of pepper. Shape into 1-inch balls, and cook, with ¾ cup of chopped onions, over medium heat until the lamb is browned on all sides. Add 2 cans (8 - ounce size) of tomato sauce, cover and cook over medium heat 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve over rice. Serves 4.

With tomorrow being Hallowe'en the season of witching parties is upon us. This week there have been a number of affairs for spooks and goblins and such. Young people eight to eighty can enjoy this type of carrying - on.

Thursday afternoon ROOKIE DAVIS invited thirty-five little friends to celebrate his birthday at a Hallowe'en party in the young people's room at Bayou DeSiard country club. Witches, moons, ghosts, hung from the ceiling, and other spooky appointments carried out the theme. Little guests came in costume and enjoyed a supper of orange birthday cake and ice cream.

Two - year - old PAMELA TROY was honored on Thursday at a party held at the home of her grandmother, VERA TROY. Orange balloons decorated the playroom, and Hallowe'en tablecloth, placemats, and plates contributed to the atmosphere. Hats and blowouts were given as favors. Eleven little two-year-old guests were served birthday cake and ice cream.

A pumpkin-shaped pinata holding candies and other prizes was the feature at CAROLYN MINTZ's fourth birthday party Tuesday. A real live witch passed out the favors, Trick or Treat balls. Forty little costumed guests attended the party in the young people's lounge at Bayou DeSiard country club. Ice cream was served, with a chocolate cake decorated with a witch and cat.

For the junior high set, a hayride with police escort, yet) is a delightful party at this season. Members of the Seventh Grade Fun club rode to Camp Ki-Ro-Li Friday night. Box suppers were served and games played before the group returned home round nine.

Entertaining neighbors, the FRED KINGS have planned two parties in a week. Saturday night, a grown-ups' affair, with some forty guests in attendance. Yellow roses were used in the living room. Variegated euonymus and yellow chrysanthemums decorated a driftwood candleholder which centered the dining table. On the buffet was a harvest arrangement of pumpkins, corn, and eggplant. Snacks included barbecued ham, lobster mousse, prairie fire, and barbecued tiny hamburgers . . . Tomorrow night, neighborhood children will gather at the Kings, as they have for several years, for a hot dog supper before "Trick or Treating". Movies are shown of previous years' parties and costumes worn then.

Members of the Cotillion Dance Club attended a "Western Roundup" party last night in the Paragon ballroom. Jerry Lane's orchestra played from a fenced-in corral. Saddles hung on the fence, and a stagecoach was parked near-by. On the backdrop behind the bandstand were guns, holsters, and Western hats. Informal attire — jeans, calico, and cowboy shirts — were the order of the evening as club members danced from nine until one. Breakfast was served beginning at 12:30. On the committee who planned the affair were DEEDLE and MALCOLM SMITH, KATHLEEN and BILL EASON, MARY and FRANK EASON, BYRNIE and BILL SMITH.

In New York at this writing are FRANCES M'HENRY, DICK MAJOR, and GLO WRIGHT. They are there for ten days of shows, sight-seeing, and city-shopping.

Today is H. H. PATRICK's seventy-eighth birthday. His daughter, WILMA GUERRIERO, plans a family dinner party in his honor at noon. Pale pink daisies in a white compote will center an aqua-covered table. The menu will include Rock Cornish hen, with individual birthday cakes and ambrosia for dessert.

Thursday at noon, PAT MADDEN and MARY ALICE LOFLIN were hostesses at luncheon in the Madden home. Individual tables were set up in the dining room and the den for twenty-four guests. Palest pink sasanquas and chrysanthemums decorated the living room. Fruit, pyracantha, and orange candles were used in the paneled den. Fruit cake with hot lemon sauce topped off the meal of ham, spicy string beans, and peach salad.

En route to the Ole Miss-LSU game yesterday, the JOE DIXONS and the JERRY RYANS stopped off for lunch with Cissy's parents, the ALTON WESTBROOKS, in Jackson. After the game, the foursome proceeded to Memphis to spend the night.

Another group who went to the game was made up of thirty friends, who stopped in Clarksdale on the way back. They are due home today. In the group: HILDA and GYP M'DONALD, MARIE and HENRY BERNSTEIN, MARIE LOUISE and GEORGE SNELLINGS, VERA and DICK TROY, MARY PEARL and CECIL JARRELL, LOUISE and TOM LEIGH, BOBBIE and NEIL BUIE, FRANCES and AL HUEY, BETTY and JOE GOYNE, ISABEL and A. L. SMITH, LOUISE and JOHN THEUS, ELLEN and MERTON ABINGTON, JANE and CLAUDE EARNEST, COOTER and VICTOR DAVIS, ALICE and TED ALLEN, BETTY and JIMMY MOORE.

The hag is astride
This night for to ride,
The devil and she together;
Through thick and through thin
Now out and then in,
Though ne'er so foul be the weather.
A thorn or a burr,
She takes for a spur,
With a lash of a bramble she rides now;
Through brakes and through briers,
O'er ditches and mires,
She follows the spirit that guides now.
The storm will arise
And trouble the skies
This night; and more for the wonder,
The ghost from the tomb
Affrighted shall come,
Called out by the clap of the thunder.

Fleur De Lis Club Has Fall Flower Show

The Fleur de Lis Garden Club held a placement flower show Saturday, October 22 in the home of Mrs. J. B. Young on Lakeshore Drive.

The colorful arrangements of fall flowers created by members were judged by Mrs. C. C. Luckey and Mrs. K. R. Young.

At the conclusion of the afternoon refreshments were served in the summer house to members and guests.

Out-of-town guests were Dr. John Wright, Mrs. R. L. Vining, Mrs. B. H. Talbot, Mrs. Bertha Crews, Mrs. Nan Wright and Mrs. Earl Puddy.

Members present were Mrs. Dwight Alberson, Mrs. Shep Aulds, Mrs. A. R. Bates, Mrs. Julius Fink, Mrs. J. W. Golson, Mrs. Edward Garrett, Mrs. Velpo Cuess, Mrs. J. K. Mayo, Mrs. Ralph Murphy, Mrs. S. J. Russell, Mrs. J. B. Young, Mrs. K. R. Young, Mrs. P. L. Neely, Mrs L. A. Shelton, Mrs. Joe Monroe, Mrs. R. W. Gregory Jr. and Mrs. H. Stapp.

GONE ARE THE DAYS of the drab rain cloud rainwear. Today you can be just as stylish during the numerous wet days as the sunny ones in an all-purpose coat, such as the gay checked raincoat with matching hat pictured above. The new fabric by Milliken loves water, just as you'll love wearing this coat.

Rainwear Offers Study In Contrasts

Rainwear is a study in contrasts this season. . .coats are big and short, bold and subdued, worn inside or out.

Yes, big, big silhouettes are news in rain and all-weather coats. Not only is the body cut wide, but sleeves are roomy, collars generous, pockets giant.

There's also an important alternate silhouette ... the semi-fitted princess style.

Short coats, in seven-eights and tunic lengths, will be seen in profusion. Other "shorties" are the eskimo-styled coats, "goal" coats and draw-string waistline coats.

Bold are the blanket plaids that often appear in reversible coats. The other half of the story is most often tackle twill, duck or wide wale corduroy.

Subdued are colors and prints. Black olive is the outstanding new hue arrival, with prints appearing in medallion, stripe-effect, floral or paisley.

In fabrics, jersey assumes new fashion stature by way of laminated synthetic foam backings which give qualities of crease resistance and warmth.

Last, but wonderfully new and exciting, is the appearance of capes on the rainwear scene. They will range from the "Sherlock" to a coat with an over-sized collar.

Drew 4-H Club Elects Officers, Plans Projects

Election of officers for the ensuing year was held at the organizational meeting of the 4-H club of Drew School held recently.

Sharon Parsons, who has been active in 4-H work for several years and who won special recognition at the local and state fairs as well as at the Achievement Day, was chosen to serve as president.

Other officers are Karen Roberts, vice-president; Sharon Hodge, secretary and Jimmy Ware, council member. Local leaders working with the club are Miss Elaine Canady, Mrs. Jo Beth Bridges and B. W. Britt, faculty members.

Sixty-three 4-H members selected projects of interest with the assistance of E. L. Branch, assistant county agent and Mrs. A. P. Burkett, principal.

Beads Add Dazzle To Fall Scene

There's a boom on in beading. Not since the twenties has fashion interest in shimmering bead trim and all - over beaded dresses been as high as it is for Fall '60.

Bead and paillette specialists both here and abroad are "busy as bees" embroidering evening fabrics, with glistening bugle beads, seed pearls and crystals, many in intricate patterns.

Lavish fabrics are often encrusted with gold, silver or iridescent spangles and fashioned into graceful cocktail dresses and gowns that are glittering and beautiful.

Designers are including beading and spangled gowns in all their new collections, removing them once and for all from the "flashy" category.

While many of these gowns are still in the high - priced range, thanks to our American designers and manufacturers the price is falling.

Dinner suits and short sheaths also display beading to fashion advantage. Many of these are hand - embroidered with pearls and huge, headlight sized "diamonds."

Sweaters and blouses adorned with beaded or pearl monograms are teamed with satin or velvet sheath skirts for the "tailored cocktail" look preferred by so many women.

New Lines

Boys' shoes are taking on the slip-on or high riser lines of men's shoe styles. Reverse seam patterns, moccasin toes, swirls, and heart and diamond wing tips trim the shoes they'll wear to class — and after.

For Brunch

Heat cooked leftover rice with cooked leftover flaked fish in butter and call it kedegree. Good for brunch.

Couple Slates November Vows In Mississippi

Mr. and Mrs. James Chester Day of Natchez announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Mary Anne to Robert Bryan Steele, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Thomas Steele of Starkville, Miss.

The wedding is scheduled for November 25 at the Jefferson Street Methodist church in Natchez.

Miss Day was graduated from Natchez high school and attended Mississippi State College for Women, Columbus. She was graduated from the Mather School of Nursing, Southern Baptist Hospital, New Orleans, La., and is now associated with the Texas Children's Hospital in Houston, Texas.

The prospective bridegroom was graduated from Starkville high school and Mississippi State University, at Starkville. He now resides in Houston where he is employed.

Short coats, in seven-eights and tunic lengths, will be seen in profusion. Other "shorties" are the eskimo-styled coats, "goal" coats and draw-string waistline coats.

Bold are the blanket plaids that often appear in reversible coats. The other half of the story is most often tackle twill, duck or wide wale corduroy.

Subdued are colors and prints. Black olive is the outstanding new hue arrival, with prints appearing in medallion, stripe-effect, floral or paisley.

In fabrics, jersey assumes new fashion stature by way of laminated synthetic foam backings which give qualities of crease resistance and warmth.

Last, but wonderfully new and exciting, is the appearance of capes on the rainwear scene. They will range from the "Sherlock" to a coat with an over-sized collar.

Drew 4-H Club Elects Officers, Plans Projects

Election of officers for the ensuing year was held at the organizational meeting of the 4-H club of Drew School held recently.

Sharon Parsons, who has been active in 4-H work for several years and who won special recognition at the local and state fairs as well as at the Achievement Day, was chosen to serve as president.

Other officers are Karen Roberts, vice-president; Sharon Hodge, secretary and Jimmy Ware, council member. Local leaders working with the club are Miss Elaine Canady, Mrs. Jo Beth Bridges and B. W. Britt, faculty members.

Sixty-three 4-H members selected projects of interest with the assistance of E. L. Branch, assistant county agent and Mrs. A. P. Burkett, principal.

Beads Add Dazzle To Fall Scene

There's a boom on in beading. Not since the twenties has fashion interest in shimmering bead trim and all - over beaded dresses been as high as it is for Fall '60.

Bead and paillette specialists both here and abroad are "busy as bees" embroidering evening fabrics, with glistening bugle beads, seed pearls and crystals, many in intricate patterns.

Lavish fabrics are often encrusted with gold, silver or iridescent spangles and fashioned into graceful cocktail dresses and gowns that are glittering and beautiful.

Designers are including beading and spangled gowns in all their new collections, removing them once and for all from the "flashy" category.

While many of these gowns are still in the high - priced range, thanks to our American designers and manufacturers the price is falling.

Dinner suits and short sheaths also display beading to fashion advantage. Many of these are hand - embroidered with pearls and huge, headlight sized "diamonds."

Sweaters and blouses adorned with beaded or pearl monograms are teamed with satin or velvet sheath skirts for the "tailored cocktail" look preferred by so many women.

New Lines

Boys' shoes are taking on the slip-on or high riser lines of men's shoe styles. Reverse seam patterns, moccasin toes, swirls, and heart and diamond wing tips trim the shoes they'll wear to class — and after.

For Brunch

Vivid Colors Predominant In 1961 Home Decorations

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Floors, walls, fabrics and color highlight the "Decorator and Design, 1961" show. More than 100 exhibits reflect the efforts of members of the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Decorators.

The furniture is elegant and perhaps a little precious for the average homemaker, but ideas are unlimited for a talented amateur decorator.

A Provincial Spanish family room with built-in hibachi has sheet flooring of pink vinyl with an elaborate black inset, resembling Spanish grillwork. A Portugese family room is done in colors taken from floor tiles decorated with fruits in amber, bitter green and Portugese blue. A room keyed to black, white and red has a floor of parquet walnut, combined with black Groutite in which black mosaic vinyl is set. A floor of Sctoch plaid vinyl is also shown.

One floor has planks of varying widths painted gray with half inch strips of carpeting inserted between each board. Leona Kahn paints the wide wood floors of her country house a bright coral, a charming effect with her color scheme of yellow, pink and white. Everett Brown's country kitchen has a floor and a dado in Delft design vinyl, handsomely offset by walls of black and white checked gingham, and shelves of American pottery and pewter.

Many walls are dark — black, brown, red, deep blue — and treated with unusual effects. Lloyd Bell uses small strips of green wood, crossed and recrossed to form a mural trellis decoration. Jens Risom has a wall of tree bark cork. Stuart Blaine and Robert Booth panelled two walls of their "country salon" in cane with walnut frames. The third wall is entirely covered in antique French pannelled cabinets.

Patricia Harvey shows a wall covering of black on black vinyl, another of white on white vinyl. Another setting was highlighted by a brown and black toile covering walls and furniture. John Wisner uses deep blue grasscloth as a background for an antique console table. Hector Grant's 18th century foyer is draped in a wall covering of elegant striped gray satin, Melanie Kahane uses leather on the walls and a unique floor covering of real rosewood laminated over cork with a vinyl surface. Newly developed adhesives make it possible to use the fabric wall coverings seen throughout the show.

Brilliant reds, blues, greens, purples and pale yellows and pinks are predominant in all exhibits.

Bicycle Rack To Be Project Of Lenwil PTA

A parent-teacher tea was held by the Lenwil P-TA when it met Thursday, October 20 to acquaint the parents with the school program.

Rev. Paul Owens gave a talk on the advantage of Christianity as part of a growing child's education as well as the present failure to meet this need as parents.

Mrs. C. P. Owens and Mrs. James Butler were elected to fill the unexpired terms of vice-president and magazine chairman.

It was voted to purchase a bicycle rack for the school as a project for the year, from proceeds derived from the carnival.

At the conclusion of the meeting the school faculty, hosts for the day, served punch to a large number of members.

Panel Discusses Study Habits At Millsaps PTA

"Improving Study Habits" was the topic of the program for Millsaps Parent-Teacher Association at its October meeting held last Thursday at the school.

Mrs. Willis Martin, program chairman, introduced Mrs. H. R. Wilhite, Mrs. Pipes Johnston, teachers and C. O. Wilson, school principal, who appeared on the panel discussion.

The group, representing different grade levels, informed the parents how to help their children in studies. Mrs. Martin acted as moderator for the discussion.

Mrs. C. M. Eaker, president, conducted a brief business session, during which reports were given by committee chairmen, with an increase shown in membership and magazines. Mrs. Robert Gentry, magazine chairman, was commended for the large increase in subscriptions.

Lee Popejoy has been selected by Mr. Elliott to serve as best man and ushers will be Clyde Elliott, Murphy Oliver, Richard P. Sevier, Maxwell Yerger Jr., and Jacob Storey.

Hose Blend

Stocking colors for fall reflect the new concept of color coordination. Jet brown blends black and brown; black amethyst, a gem tone, is for wearing with the amethyst costume. To wear with black or brown, there's green onyx.

Unusual Corsage

If you are giving a party for someone who likes to sew, make an usual corsage for her. Buy spools of thread in all colors, tape or tie each to the end of a green pipe cleaner, tie stems together with bow of pastel ribbon and arrange corsage in a box from a local florist.

Summer Clothing Should Be Clean Before Storing

The passing of Indian Summer marks the end of season for lighter clothing in many parts of the country. Homemakers who are bringing out those winter clothes should take particular pains when they store away their summer things if they want them in good condition next summer.

So advises American Institute of Laundering, research and education center for the professional laundry industry. Laboratory technicians at the Joliet, Illinois, laundering headquarters warn that summer weight blankets and jackets aren't the only things that require special care when storing. Woolens should be laundered, put in moth crystals, and sealed for the winter. Cottons and synthetic materials should be laundered and carefully packed.

Laundering before fall storage is especially important because of the stains, soil, and perspiration that are so much a part of summer activity may otherwise become "set" in the fabric. These "set blemishes are nearly impossible to remove when the garment is needed at the next warm season. Body oil stains compound the difficulty, for they pick up dust in storage if not covered.

When sent to the laundry, summer clothes are returned cleaned, pressed. If they are then packed away in closed containers, they will be ready for wearing when needed.

Summer clothing should be stored in a dry place to avoid mildew damage. And they should be packed loosely, so that there will be fewer wrinkles when time comes for wearing them again, say the Institute technicians.

Black Market In Caviar Is Unique Racket

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Tehran's police, with no sympathy for gourmets, are cracking down on a unique racket — a black market in caviar.

The fish delicacy is a government monopoly, and a non - authorized or cut rate caviar peddler can get up to two years in prison under a new law.

Iran is almost the world's only source of the genuine stuff. Russia's famed caviar usually isn't Russian; they buy it from Iran.

Caviar comes from fish eggs, and the eggs come from the sturgeon — a big brown fish caught almost exclusively in the southern reaches of the Caspian, the half owned by Iran. The Soviet Union owns only the northern Caspian, where sturgeon for some reason don't get hooked.

Caviar is by no means a staple food in Iran, but a pound of the finest black imperial grade costs about 12 dollars a pound here. In a New York nightclub it can come to 10 dollars a spoonful.

Smugglers or black marketeers buy direct from Iranian fishermen, pack the caviar in used government tins which are sealed only with tape, and sell it for about half the government price. Only four government shops handle caviar in Tehran, and the caviar pirates operate from fish stores or by door - to - door peddling.

Quadruple 'Needle,' Boot-Look New Terms Underfoot In Fall Fashions

Fashions afoot are "getting the needles" this fall as four distinct "needles" (trade talk for pointed toe shoes) inject a sharp note of news in fine footwear.

According to the Shoe Fashion Service of the Leather Industries of America, the four needles are: the single needle on the moderately tapered toe in sports, casual and walking shoe styles . . . . the double needle, or the pointed-toe shoe style that shows up in everything from daytime spectators to evening pumps.

Now there's the triple needle point, a sharper toe shoe that comes into its own after dark in cocktail and formal slippers . . . and the quadruple needle — so thin so pointed silhouette, that it is most at home in formal settings.

Although all the "needles" look sharper, there's plenty of toe room in new shoe styles. Shoes are not merely elongated at the shoe tip, but throughout the entire forepart where the typically longer foot of the American woman needs more room.

Supple leather uppers shape the long, lithe lines of the sharper toe shoes without bulge, buckling or discomfort to the foot. Lightweight, but sturdy, thin leather soles firmly support the thin sharp lines of the newer, slimmer shoes.

And in the spotlight are light, graceful, high stepping boots. With a higher topline, a longer vamp, smooth or brushed leather, these boots come in a wide range of delicate styles from the most casual flat to the high heeled daytimer.

Storm footwear for fashionable women gets a "gay boot" in boot shoes — tops and bottoms are all leather. . .warmth, comfort and breathing-room are built in, thus eliminating the need for bulky overshoes in colder, wetter weather.

Leather shoes for fall, all in all, are for fun . . . for flair and for high fashion! Look for these newsy shoes to complement the new season's fashions.

Jackie Kennedy Feels Hubby Is Not Eating Right

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — The other day Mrs. Jack Kennedy left her hotel suite to make a handshaking visit to the Volunteers for Kennedy headquarters.

She was wearing the same doublebreasted purple maternity coat and mushroom-type beret ("Call it 'just a hat,' " she suggested by way of description) in which she had made recent public appearances with her husband. She had a hacking cough, from a head cold.

On the way to the volunteer offices, someone mentioned that a newsman traveling with Kennedy had said the Democratic presidential candidate wasn't eating right.

Jacqueline Kennedy's big brown eyes grew sorrowful, and she said in her soft, low-pitched, breathless voice: "That's one of the reasons I'm saddest not to be traveling with him. His campaign is so fast-paced, there's often not time to grab even a sandwich. When I'm there, I make sure he eats."

She looked bleak. "I'm especially sad not to be with him now, to help him in this greatest crusade of his life."

After a pause, she said with a well-bred chuckle containing the slightest suggestion of a stiff-upper-lip: "But I must say, every time I see him he looks better than before. It's really rather bad for one's ego."

Someone volunteered he had heard a woman say, "It would be just like Jackie Kennedy to have her baby on election eve."

Quick as a quip, straightfaced, she came back: "Oh I hope not. I'd have to get up the next day to go vote."

Does she want a boy or girl?

"Either one would be welcomed with equal joy," she said gravely.

"I'm so delighted with our little girl (Caroline, nearly 3) that I can't think of anything nicer than another little girl."

As for names, if it's a boy it will be named after his father. "Girls' names are in the weeding-out stage."

Jacqueline (she doesn't like "Jackie" but everyone calls her that) says she is getting "a little bit more confident" every day about the election's outcome.

So would she redecorate the White House?

"Oh no," she said. "It's presumptuous even to think of it."

Quadruple 'Needle,' Boot-Look New Terms Underfoot In Fall Fashions

Fashions afoot are "getting the needles" this fall as four distinct "needles" (trade talk for pointed toe shoes) inject a sharp note of news in fine footwear.

According to the Shoe Fashion Service of the Leather Industries of America, the four needles are: the single needle on the moderately tapered toe in sports, casual and walking shoe styles . . . . the double needle, or the pointed-toe shoe style that shows up in everything from daytime spectators to evening pumps.

Now there's the triple needle point, a sharper toe shoe that comes into its own after dark in cocktail and formal slippers . . . and the quadruple needle — so thin so pointed silhouette, that it is most at home in formal settings.

Although all the "needles" look sharper, there's plenty of toe room in new shoe styles. Shoes are not merely elongated at the shoe tip, but throughout the entire forepart where the typically longer foot of the American woman needs more room.

Supple leather uppers shape the long, lithe lines of the sharper toe shoes without bulge, buckling or discomfort to the foot. Lightweight, but sturdy, thin leather soles firmly support the thin sharp lines of the newer, slimmer shoes.

And in the spotlight are light, graceful, high stepping boots. With a higher topline, a longer vamp, smooth or brushed leather, these boots come in a wide range of delicate styles from the most casual flat to the high heeled daytimer.

Storm footwear for fashionable women gets a "gay boot" in boot shoes — tops and bottoms are all leather. . .warmth, comfort and breathing-room are built in, thus eliminating the need for bulky overshoes in colder, wetter weather.

Leather shoes for fall, all in all, are for fun . . . for flair and for high fashion! Look for these newsy shoes to complement the new season's fashions.

Jackie Kennedy Feels Hubby Is Not Eating Right

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

She was wearing the same doublebreasted purple maternity coat and mushroom-type beret ("Call it 'just a hat,'" she suggested by way of description) in which she had made recent public appearances with her husband. She had a hacking cough, from a head cold.

On the way to the volunteer offices, someone mentioned that a newsman traveling with Kennedy had said the Democratic presidential candidate wasn't eating right.

Jacqueline Kennedy's big brown eyes grew sorrowful, and she said in her soft, low-pitched, breathless voice: "That's one of the reasons I'm saddest not to be traveling with him. His campaign is so fast-paced, there's often not time to grab even a sandwich. When I'm there, I make sure he eats."

She looked bleak. "I'm especially sad not to be with him now, to help him in this greatest crusade of his life."

After a pause, she said with a well-bred chuckle containing the slightest suggestion of a stiff-upper-lip: "But I must say, every time I see him he looks better than before. It's really rather bad for one's ego."

Someone volunteered he had heard a woman say, "It would be just like Jackie Kennedy to have her baby on election eve."

Quick as a quip, straightfaced, she came back: "Oh I hope not. I'd have to get up the next day to go vote."

Does she want a boy or girl?

"Either one would be welcomed with equal joy," she said gravely.

"I'm so delighted with our little girl (Caroline, nearly 3) that I can't think of anything nicer than another little girl."

As for names, if it's a boy it will be named after his father. "Girls' names are in the weeding-out stage."

Jacqueline (she doesn't like "Jackie" but everyone calls her that) says she is getting "a little bit more confident" every day about the election's outcome.

So would she redecorate the White House?

"Oh no," she said. "It's presumptuous even to think of it."

Tots To Teens May Soon Be On 'Best Dressed' List

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Next thing you know, someone will announce a "ten best dressed" list for tots to teenagers.

For the art of being chic no longer is solely for grownups. Even a tomboy can be dressed to suit her type. (Dressing to "your type" is one of the cardinal rules that women like the Duchess of Windsor follow to land on the annual ten best).

Tips on fashion from the crawler to college girl stage are covered in the three newest consumer service publications from the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union.

The pamphlets are called, "How to Dress Your Little Girl," giving advice on purchasing for the two to 10-year-olds; "Mother-Daughter Guide to Fashion," for girls 10 to 14; and "College Wardrobe," for the older girls.

Now, about turning the tomboy into a fashion plate. The first booklet advised "bright, gay, sturdy, easy-to-clean clothes."

It suggested "sweaters and skirts, overblouses, jumpers, knits, stretch ski pants and boxy coats. Leotards instead of socks or stockings that fall down will look neater and keep her out of trousers—some of the time."

For a tomboy's party clothes, choose taffeta, wool or sateen, to 10 group also advised on dress for the demure and shy girls. For the demure, it suggested pretty, but not tricky clothes. Dark victorian colors, such as garnet red, violet, deep blue, dark greens and brown. Choose small, precise prints; velvet, lace or starched white collars.

For the shy child, select simple lines, and don't over-dress her. Choose easy-care clothes so that if she spills food at a party, scording won't be necessary. If she has a bad feature, don't lead to further embarrassment by ignoring it in her clothing. If her feet toe in, for instance, choose shoes to blend with the rest of her clothing. A contrasting color will make them more obvious.

The booklet advised building a child's wardrobe around outdoor clothing, the same as an adult wardrobe should be planned around coats. Choose dresses and separates in colors to go with her coats, snowsuits, jackets and sweaters, so she won't have colors clashing.

MRS. JAMES E. STRICKLIN

West Monroe Couple Wed In Ridge Avenue Church

Miss Linda Gay Whitehead, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Whitehead, 2321 Liberty Drive, West Monroe, became the bride of James E. Stricklin, son of Mrs. Fred L. Stricklin, 2413 N. 9th, West Monroe, on Friday, October. 21.

The double ring ceremony was solemnized at 7 p.m. in Ridge Avenue Baptist Church by Rev. A. T. Mitchell. Baskets of white gladioli, greenery and white tapers in branched candelabra, formed a setting for the exchange of vows.

Preceding the ceremony a program of nuptial music was played by Miss Sue Saxon, organist, who also accompanied Luther Burney, as he sang, "I Love You Truly," "Because," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of white lustre satin, fashioned with fitted bodice and floor-length skirt. The long sleeves tapered to points at the wrists and the round neckline was embossed with seed pearls and sequins on lace motif. Her veil of silk illusion cascaded from a crown of seed pearls and iridescent sequins and she carried a bouquet of feathered carnations centered with a yellow - throated white orchid.

Miss Patricia Colvin served as maid of honor and only attendant for the bride. She wore a shrimp colored frock styled with full skirt and fitted bodice, with matching accessories. Her headpiece was of bronze leaves and feathered chrysanthemums and carried a nosegay of the same blossoms.

Rawls Dupree served as best man and ushers were Richard Ballard and Jimmy Cook.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Whitehead wore a beige brocade faille dress with matching accessories and a corsage of bronze chrysanthemums. Mrs. Stricklin, mother of the bridegroom, wore a dress of floral design with hat of velvet flowers and other accessories in beige.

A reception was held in the church following the ceremony. An arrangement of white and orange chrysanthemums and gladioli flanked by tapers centered the bride's table which was covered with a cutwork cloth. A similar arrangement decorated the table where Miss Glenda Griffin presided at the guest book.

Those presiding at the table were Miss Virginia Watson, Miss Tywannia White, Miss Gwen Newcomer and Miss Edith Halstead. Mrs. W. F. Everitt assisted with the reception hospitalities.

When the couple left for a wedding trip to Shreveport, the bride was wearing a gray wool suit with blue accessories and the white orchid from her bouquet. They will establish a home in West Monroe.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Stricklin were graduated from West Monroe high school and attended Northeast Louisiana State College.

Out - of - town guests included Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Alexander of Shreveport and Mr. and Mrs. Hosea Brewster, Choudrant.

Assorted Colors Spice Lingerie

For fall, lingerie designers dipped their paint brushes in colors that are new to the intimate apparel picture . . . and have come up with loads of luscious colors.

Unusual are the many soft lilacs, important are the browns from cocoa to light beige and champagne. Vivid blues, greens and reds will still be seen, but the trend is to more subdued hues.

Color - matched sets of slips or half slips and panties, well received last season, make a repeat performance for fall.

Sport Shirts Take On Color

Boys' sport shirts for fall are in a panorama of colors . . . handkerchief prints, tapestry and embroidered effects, large paisleys in muted colors, unusual conversationals, neat checks and much madras — all form the fall picture.

A pullover placket model will be very popular while olives, deep golds with hints of vintage tones and trims will be the leading shades.

Budget Aid

Ever serve a rich tomato sauce over hot cooked yellow cornmeal? An Italian specialty that's hearty and delicious: also helpful with the budget!

Wash, Wear

Wash-and-wear is now scoring high in fall outerwear due to a skillful co-ordination of shell, lining and trim fabrics.

Foam Rubber

Stick to soap and water when cleaning foam rubber upholstery. Cleaning fluids sometimes deteriorate the rubber.

Everybody's Dieting Now—Here's How

Fall bumbled along this year as usual — conversation at bridge tables and over water coolers turned to thoughts of F-A-T, and it is still raging.

The consensus of the dieters is that "nothing works." But women have become lazy about losing weight, judging by letters asking advice:

". . .I want something that will do the job at once. I am going on a cruise with my husband next week and need to lose 10 pounds... ". . .A friend of mine took pills and managed to lose 20 pounds in a couple of weeks. Where can I get those pills?"

The requirements of any good weight-reducing program are: 1. Less food. 2. Time. 3. Balanced diet. 4. Exercise.

SAFE AND SURE

Diet specialists agree that the safest reducing plan employs a wide variety of foods in the diet. Nonsensical diets have been making the rounds and many dieters have tortured themselves on strict diets for a weight loss that is temporary.

The highly-touted protein diet, for instance, will show a good loss of weight as long as you are on the diet. A few days of normal food intake, however, may put you back on the pound-plus side. Most dieters believe they can eat ALL the protein they like and lose weight. That isn't so. A good portion of steak could still use up a half-day's allotment of calories.

Why do women torture themselves when they try to reduce? It is easier to cut down on portions of foods eaten daily. After a few days, the smaller diet will accommodate the stomach to your satisfaction.

Important items to skip on the "eat less food" plan include mayonnaise, jelly, catsup, mustard, rolls, cookies, cakes, pastries and other sweets.

LOW-CALORY DIET

Here is a diet that is low-calory and effective, yet offers vitamins and minerals necessary in maintaining good health:

Breakfast: Choice of fruit, either fresh or the equivalent in peach, pear, 2-3 cup of grapefruit or 1-3 cup of applesauce. Include a whole orange each morning. Also one glass of skimmed milk and one cup of coffee. A demitasse spoon of honey may be used in coffee for sweetening.

Lunch: 1 serving of cottage cheese, 1 serving of sliced tomatoes, 1 teaspoon of dressing, ½ cup of cooked string beans, ½ cup of stewed celery, 1 piece or ½ cup of fresh fruit — peach, apricot, applesauce, grapefruit or ½ cup of strawberries.

(Lunch may be varied in this way: Substitute cole slaw, celery or asparagus for tomato. Substitute carrots, cabbage, peas, cauliflower or beets for string beans. Add a sliced hard-cooked egg when cottage cheese is omitted.)

Dinner: Choice of meat — lean steak, lamb chop, beef liver, roast veal, broiled chicken, codfish, haddock, lean hamburger; two vegetables. (Choice of asparagus, string beans, squash, spinach, broccoli, turnips, stewed celery, okra, tomatoes.) Salad should be eaten each night. Choices could be made from romaine, watercress, tomato, mixed greens. Serve with 1 teaspoon of French dressing.

Choice of fruits: Strawberries, cherries, pineapple, apricots.

There are low-calory salad dressings — French or Italian— that are touted to add only from one to three calories a serving. These could save you 300 calories a week, if you like them. There are low-calory mayonnaise type dressings also available for dieters.

Women's Club Makes Plans For Numerous Events

Plans for a party to honor retired personnel of the Missouri-Pacific Lines of this area were made by members of the Missouri Pacific Women's Club at the October meeting held in the club house.

Luncheon was served to approximately 75 members. and guests. Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Lamb, who entertained the group at conclusion of the afternoon by showing slides of their recent tour of the Mediterranean countries.

During the business session presided over by Mrs. J. W. Folk, entertainment for the year was planned with Mrs. J. C. Love named to head the entertainment committee. Plans were also made to accept an invitation from the El Dorado club to attend a banquet in that city.

Letters of appreciation were read from the YMCA for assistance in their recent drive and a donation was made to the United Givers Fund. Dolls were distributed to the members to be dressed for the Salvation Army. A letter was also read stressing the importance of getting out the vote in the coming general elecion.

Members present were Mrs. L. A. Allen, Mrs. J. R. Arthur, Mrs. P. O. Bedgood, Mrs. W. E. Burke, Mrs. J. W. Chowning, Mrs. C. R. Clay, Mrs. J. H. Calk, Mrs. H. G. Cooper, Mrs. C. E. Copeland, Mrs. L. N. Copes, Mrs. Earl Cundiff, Mrs. J. W. Folk, Mrs. R. R. Griffith, Mrs. O. T. Jones, Mrs. L. C. Leath, Mrs. B. B. Lewis, Mrs. J. C. Love, Mrs. Gene Marshall, Mrs. H. E. McMillan, Mrs. Charles Hall, Mrs. H. L. Moore, Mrs. B. F. Norris, Mrs. F. V. Reitzell, Mrs. A. J. Speer and Mrs. G. P. Walker.

Delicious Kumquats

Slice preserved kumquats citrus cups. Good as a first course or dessert. Use some of the syrup from the kumquats to sweeten the citrus fruit.

Luncheon was served to approximately 75 members. and guests. Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Lamb, who entertained the group at conclusion of the afternoon by showing slides of their recent tour of the Mediterranean countries.

During the business session presided over by Mrs. J. W. Folk, entertainment for the year was planned with Mrs. J. C. Love named to head the entertainment committee. Plans were also made to accept an invitation from the El Dorado club to attend a banquet in that city.

Letters of appreciation were read from the YMCA for assistance in their recent drive and a donation was made to the United Givers Fund. Dolls were distributed to the members to be dressed for the Salvation Army. A letter was also read stressing the importance of getting out the vote in the coming general election.

Members present were Mrs. L. A. Allen, Mrs. J. R. Arthur, Mrs. P. O. Bedgood, Mrs. W. E. Burke, Mrs. J. W. Chowning, Mrs. C. R. Clay, Mrs. J. H. Calk, Mrs. H. G. Cooper, Mrs. C. E. Copeland, Mrs. L. Poll Reveals Women Want Companionship Over Love, Money In Marriage Today

Some surprising facts about American marriage have emerged from an authoritative new study conducted over a five year period by a team of University of Michigan sociologists and social psychologists.

The study revealed that:

—American women want companionship from their husbands even more than they want love or money.

—Children, far from bringing married couples closer together, are the major cause of a loss of satisfaction in each other's companionship and love.

—Nearly all wives, including those without children, become increasingly less satisfied with their husbands' companionship, a decline that researchers describe as "corrosive."

Under the direction of Mrs. Robert O. Blodd and Donald M. Wolfe, researchers interviewed more than 900 American wives in a cross-section sample of an entire community, and their findings contradict many popular beliefs. According to the Michigan report, for example, the domination of the male by American women has been greatly exaggerated. The control exercised at home by husbands or wives depends less on their sex than on their personal competence, and the balance of power is still held by a majority of husbands. White collar men possess more authority at home than working-class men, and surburban husbands have more authority than city husbands.

In probing the strengths and weaknesses in American marriage today, the Michigan study discovered that "in the first two years, 52 per cent of the wives are very well satisfied with their marriages, and none notably dissatisfied. Twenty years later, only six percent are still very satisfied, while 21 per cent are conspicuously dissatisfied."

Even though the course of married love runs downhill for many years, however, the Michigan survey points out, "the degree of recovery after the children leave home is surprising." Marriage remains a healthy institution, and researchers agree, there seems little evidence that it is on the verge of collapse.

When all the pros and cons are taken into account, the data of the Michigan survey shows a generally impressive average level of satisfaction with marriage and what it brings.

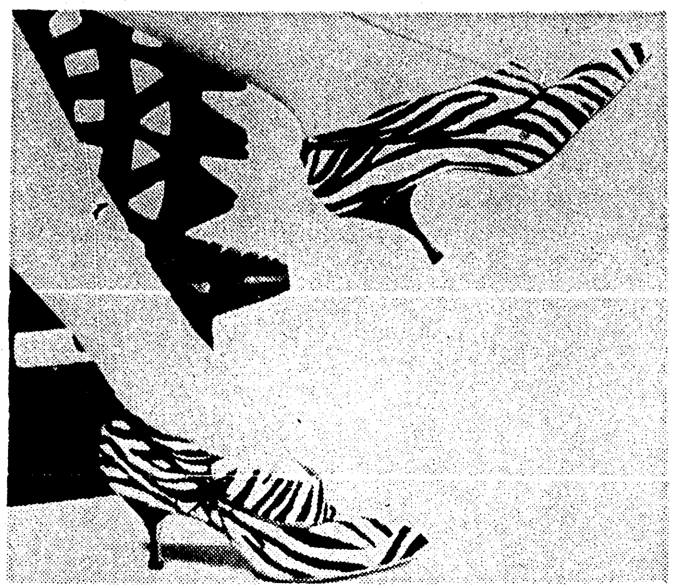
Fake Furs Resemble Zoo Parade

WEARING THE LATEST in leopard prints is the shell-like little flat, the explanation point to the most casual of fashions. The fabric is really furry stinciled poney, taking another fashion stance.



FASHIONABLY PHONEY is this new boot-on-a-heel, popular for fall and winter footwear. The attractive ankle-high boot is actually zebra stinciled pony.

Wild animals couldn't hold back the stampede of man-made furs into the fall fashion arena! Once designers saw how "like real" they are . . .and their low price tags, there was no stopping the onrush of all kinds of stunning styles in "fur."

These frankly fake fabrics are showing up in everything from evening wraps to sleeptime robes, and even appear in the season's footwear.

Otter, of mohair and Dynel, will probably be the most important fur this season. It's sleek and lovely, and difficult to discern from its expensive counterpart.

Mink? Oh, yes . . .the jewel of the fur world shows up in this man-made world too. There's even a pure white, full length coat of this plush fabric.

Snow-leopard, chinchilla, zebra, tiger, broadtail and seal are just a few examples of the "copy cats" you'll see.

You never know what man will make next . . .there are even fake furs that have no substitute in the animal kingdom! And, there are furs you could have, but probably wouldn't . . .such as a copy of the Dalmation dog's sleek fur and lovely markings.

Most of these modern furs are possible because of the discovery of wash-wear fabrics. Orlon, dynel, verel, nylon, etc., are blended together or with other fabrics, such as silk, to create most of these furs.

There's a real flurry of furry fashions for fall . . .and budget-minded gals are going to be mighty happy over the "frankly fakes."

Appearing in the season's footwear is an astounding collection of boots, pumps and little flats, in the ferocious zebras and leopards.

These include the classic jazz oxford, in what is really stenciled pony, jungle-bred and leopard-spotted, likewise the shell-like skeedle.

Then there are the zebras, imposters in furry stenciled pony, completely wild and chic, in pumps that hug the ankle on a dancer's heel that take on a new air in their furry guise.

Fall Fashion Is Featuring The Button

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Contemporary fashion's putting a temporary stop to the old game of "button, button, who's got the button."

The newest buttons are so large —and glittery—that few designers try to conceal them.

Bernard Hellman, of the National Notion Association, pulled out a tray of the newest buttons —sparkling things ranging from one to three inches in diameter —to show the latest trend.

"Primarily," he said, "buttons serve two purposes, as closures and trimmings. This season the emphasis is on trimmings. The simplest dress, as a result, becomes a costume when it's jeweled buttons catch the light — from sun, electric bulbs or men's eyes."

In a typical year, the button expert said, annual sales of buttons amount to about $32 million. But this year's giant and jeweled trend is expected to push button sales further into the millions.

Many of the buttons sold are of the dozen for a dime quality. But the new trend is so catching, that sales of buttons costing $1 each, and more, probably will double, Hellman said.

The button man said you can judge the value of the dress you buy by the buttons on it at the time of purchase.

"And the budget - conscious woman who buys a lower-priced dress with poor quality buttons can make it look better by replacing them with more expensive ones.

"What's more, there's no simpler nor more effective remodeling job on last season's dress than by making it look fresher, newer and certainly more fashionable with the newest, biggest, jeweled buttons."

As a result of the trend, Hellman said, dozens of simple tricks with buttons are popping into view.

For example, you can sew a bright one near the left shoulder of a sweater or classic woolen dress and it looks like an ornamental pin.

To add to the continuity of a costume, you can replace bone buttons with jeweled ones adding a match-mate button to the hat you plan to wear.

With the same idea in mind, Hellman said, a button is stitched to the lapel of a coat, to the brim of a hat or to the rim of a pair of shoes—or even to the cuff of gloves.

"It adds brightness to an otherwise somber costume," he said.

Hellman said teen-agers are making the most of the new big buttons. They are making earrings of buttons, sewing them on bands of ribbon to make bracelets, hairbands and chokers.

DEAR ABBY

Friends Will See Change Try Being Yourself —

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My daughter, who is 23, has fallen in love with a married man almost as old as her father. He told me he would get a divorce and marry her as soon as he could get the money together. I offered to lend him the money to hurry things along, but he said he couldn't accept it, as it is against his principles. He is very polite and dresses nice. My husband doesn't know anything about this and I'm afraid to tell him for fear he'll break this man's neck. My daughter is a good girl and never ran around. Should I tell my husband and try to get this man free? Our daughter says if she can't have him she'll never look at another man. —MRS. NO NAME

DEAR MRS.: This "very polite" man who "dresses nice" and is too high principled to borrow money is a no-good bum! Tell her to get out of this married man's life, and tell him to stay away from your daughter. And by all means, tell your husband. He probably won't break the man's neck; maybe he'll just wring it.

DEAR ABBY: Here is my story: I lost my mother and father in the same month. Then my married daughter came home with her two babies because her marriage broke up. It was more than I could take so I did what any healthy, normal woman would do. I went haywire.

I had to have shock treatments to get over my depression. I came out of it all right but since I had those shock treatments everyone says I am crazy. Tell me, if a person has had shock treatments, does that mean they are crazy for life? I feel fine. —FEELING FINE

DEAR FEELING FINE: If you feel fine and your doctor says you are fine—than you "are" fine. Don't pay any attention to what people say.

DEAR ABBY: A couple of years ago I fell in with the wrong crowd. They were very wild and had bad reputations. After I realized what kind of girls I was involved with, I stopped going with them. Then I tried to make new friends and found out nice girls didn't want anything to do with me. That was over a year ago and they still won't accept me. What can I do to get my name off the "bad girl" list? I tried being the "wholesome type" (I went without makeup for a whole week) and I tried being the witty, life-of-the-party type. I've tried being the quiet, polite type, but nothing has changed. I am desperate for friends. —REFORMED

DEAR REFORMED: If you have really reformed . . . try being yourself.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "Schatzie": The distance between your boyfriend's ears is just one block. That "prove your love" line is pretty stale.

Sterlington HD Club To Elect New Officers

Wallpapers Stress Taste, With Trend To Deep Color

Good taste — not limited to the higher price ranges but extending through all price levels —keynotes the new wallpapers. Superior design, style and color are appropriate to the present interest in decorating elegance.

An important trend is toward darker, richer backgrounds. Many of today's wallpapers show traditional patterns adapted from historical papers, using dark rich reds, muted browns, deep golds, yellowish greens, blues and warm grays.

One such pattern is a new damask, with a subtle olive green against vibrant Persian blue to give the effect of silk shot slightly with gold thread.

Traditional fleur-de-lis pattern shows the influence of this color trend. Instead of the usual gold on white, the pattern now appears in silver and Wedgewood blue on a midnight blue background.

Trend toward deeper hues doesn't mean that the pastels are neglected. They are plentiful, in color variations such as saffron yellow, celadon green, clear cyclamen pink and many lilac hues.

Refreshing color combinations include: clear cyclamen pink with red, light olive with aqua, lilac with blue, orange with pink.

Pupil Grouping Explained To Sherrouse PTA

A symposium on the subject "What Is Grouping?" highlighted a meeting of the Sherrouse Parent-Teacher Association Thursday evening in the school auditorium.

Speakers on the symposium were Dr. W. J. Christmas, from the Education department of Northeast Louisiana State College; Mrs. W. S. Vincent, principal of Sherrouse school and Mrs. W. S. Gannaway, a parent.

The meeting was conducted by Mrs. W. L. Allen, president, who announced that all first grade and transfer pupils had been tested with the telebinocular.

Mrs. J. G. Caldwell, program chairman, pointed out that the P-TA programs for the current year had been planned to familiarize the parents with what is happening to their children in the school. Following her introduction of the panel speakers, Dr. Christmas traced the history of grouping. He concluded by presenting the present status of grouping, purpose of which should be to provide better learning experiences for all children.

Mrs. Vincent summarized the basic considerations in grouping at Sherrouse school as what is best for the child and the group with which he is placed. Mrs. Gannaway expressed a parent's support of grouping as it strives to develop each child's talents.

Tell her to get out of this married man's life, and tell him to stay away from your daughter. And by all means, tell your husband. He probably won't break the man's neck; maybe he'll just wring it.

DEAR ABBY: Here is my story: I lost my mother and father in the same month. Then my married daughter came home with her two babies because her marriage broke up. It was more than I could take so I did what any healthy, normal woman would do. I went haywire.

I had to have shock treatments to get over my depression. I came out of it all right but since I had those shock treatments everyone says I am crazy. Tell me, if a person has had shock treatments, does that mean they are crazy for life? I feel fine. —FEELING FINE

DEAR FEELING FINE: If you feel fine and your doctor says you are fine—than you "are" fine. Don't pay any attention to what people say.

DEAR ABBY: A couple of years ago I fell in with the wrong crowd. They were very wild and had bad reputations. After I realized what kind of girls I was involved with, I stopped going with them. Then I tried to make new friends and found out nice girls didn't want anything to do with me. That was over a year ago and they still won't accept me. What can I do to get my name off the "bad girl" list? I tried being the "wholesome type" (I went without makeup for a whole week) and I tried being the witty, life-of-the-party type. I've tried being the quiet, polite type, but nothing has changed. I am desperate for friends. —REFORMED

DEAR REFORMED: If you have really reformed . . . try being yourself.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "Schatzie": The distance between your boyfriend's ears is just one block. That "prove your love" line is pretty stale.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Greene of Monterey of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Mamie Inez to Lt. Charles F. Sturgeon, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Sturgeon of Woodville, Miss.

Date of the wedding will be announced.

The bride-elect is at present employed in Natchez, Miss. Lt. Sturgeon was graduated from the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., with a bachelor of science degree and is now stationed with the army at Fort Benning, Georgia.

Wallpapers Stress Taste, With Trend To Deep Color

Good taste — not limited to the higher price ranges but extending through all price levels —keynotes the new wallpapers. Superior design, style and color are appropriate to the present interest in decorating elegance.

An important trend is toward darker, richer backgrounds. Many of today's wallpapers show traditional patterns adapted from historical papers, using dark rich reds, muted browns, deep golds, yellowish greens, blues and warm grays.

One such pattern is a new damask, with a subtle olive green against vibrant Persian blue to give the effect of silk shot slightly with gold thread.

Traditional fleur-de-lis pattern shows the influence of this color trend. Instead of the usual gold on white, the pattern now appears in silver and Wedgewood blue on a midnight blue background.

Trend toward deeper hues doesn't mean that the pastels are neglected. They are plentiful, in color variations such as saffron yellow, celadon green, clear cyclamen pink and many lilac hues.

Refreshing color combinations include: clear cyclamen pink with red, light olive with aqua, lilac with blue, orange with pink.

Pupil Grouping Explained To Sherrouse PTA

A symposium on the subject "What Is Grouping?" highlighted a meeting of the Sherrouse Parent-Teacher Association Thursday evening in the school auditorium.

Speakers on the symposium were Dr. W. J. Christmas, from the Education department of Northeast Louisiana State College; Mrs. W. S. Vincent, principal of Sherrouse school and Mrs. W. S. Gannaway, a parent.

The meeting was conducted by Mrs. W. L. Allen, president, who announced that all first grade and transfer pupils had been tested with the telebinocular.

Mrs. J. G. Caldwell, program chairman, pointed out that the P-TA programs for the current year had been planned to familiarize the parents with what is happening to their children in the school. Following her introduction of the panel speakers, Dr. Christmas traced the history of grouping. He concluded by presenting the present status of grouping, purpose of which should be to provide better learning experiences for all children.

Mrs. Vincent summarized the basic considerations in grouping at Sherrouse school as what is best for the child and the group with which he is placed. Mrs. Gannaway expressed a parent's support of grouping as it strives to develop each child's talents.

Auctions Provide Way To Furnish Home Cheaply

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

One inexpensive way to furnish that first home or add needed objects to an established household, if funds are limited, is to hit the auction circuit.

You may not find everything you want and certain items such as bedding are best bought new, but there are many items to be found that can start you off with some possessions for a pittance. Ladders, saws, power tools and large kitchen appliances often may be bought for a small investment.

If you stick to basic home furnishings when bidding, you'll do well at an auction. Tables, chairs, lamps of recent vintage usually bring small prices and these may afford something better, or perhaps they will be good enough to become permanent fixtures in your home.

Neophytes should not bid on antiques or fine furnishings, however, Even experts can be fooled. A common practice at many auctions today is to introduce beautiful objects that look old, but are contemporary, made from the old molds or by cheap labor abroad. Scrupulous dealers are fooled by these objects. They buy them, and sell them for little more than the purchase price perhaps. But the same objects available in shops and variety stores sell for a fraction of the auction price.

Turning up at auction after auction are silver-plated nickel trays and coffee services being passed off as old Sheffield, small wine glasses with satin glass figures supporting the cup, hand embroidered table cloths and dinner napkins, Dresden ware and Bohemian painted plates. Staffordshire is so faithfully reproduced, particularly the poodles, even to their copper luster collars, that they are difficult to distinguish from the real thing. Unscrupulous manufacturers can give them appropriate aged appearances that can even fool dealers. Very little old Delft is available, yet at every auction one sees collectors acquiring more Delft that is nothing more than modern chinaware.

It is best to leave purchases of this kind to the experts. Concentrate on what you really need for your home.

Power tools should be inspected carefully. Very often these have outlived their usefulness before they are put up for sale. Other tools should be examined for rust.

If you plan to bid on a rug, inspect it beforehand. A beautiful rug that is going at a bargain could have a large hole not visible on the auctioneer's block. So could table cloths and napkins. An upholstered chair or divan with a loose leg or minus stuffing or with a great many repairs required will not be a bargain.

Small tables are good buys at auctions, especially now when the painted end table and coffee table is in vogue.

Narrow Room Always Problem For Decorators

By VIVIAN BROWN

The long narrow room is a challenge to decorators, amateurs or professionals. If the family likes to entertain, the problem of contriving a cozy seating arrangement can be frustrating as this letter from an Oakland, Calif. reader indicates:

"Our living room is nine feet by 22 feet, broken up by a staircase, entrance door opposite the fireplace, three windows and a door that leads into a dining room. The only unbroken space is the wall that runs parallel to the fireplace, but it is 6 feet plus staircase, and our sofa is 7 feet, so there is no room for it. We can't put it in front of the fireplace because of the door. The short wall on the other side of the room is broken up by a window. We are at our wit's end to find a cozy place where we can group our furniture. What can we do?"

I would part with the sofa. It seems to be the problem now, unless you can make a structural change moving the entrance door to the other end of the wall. A love seat or two - seater sofa would serve your purposes better. If your home is temporary, a three - seater sectional sofa could offer advantages of two pieces plus chair at the moment, and used later in a larger living room. Small - scaled furniture is the answer to a narrow living room, and then it can be cozier even than a larger room, if planned carefully. A big mirror over the fireplace or sofa could give the illusion of more space.

A Toledo reader writes:

"We have a very tiny dining room, six feet by eight feet. Is there anyway to decorate it so that it can look brighter and larger? It is painted dark green, a color that was on the wall when we moved into the house."

A gay wallpaper could perk up this room considerably. A wallpaper of birds, trees, or a country mural scene would help. A vivid color combined with bright white can lend an enchanting effect in a tiny room. A bright blue and white wallpaper with white wainscoting is particularly effective if the furniture is pine or another warm tone. Mahogany furniture takes well to yellow and white. Ditto walnut.

A Marlboro, Mass homemaker has kitchen problems:

"Could you help me select a wall paint to go with yellow tile and black border in my kitchen. My clock, chair ladder, serving car, spice cabinet and stove accessories are red, my kitchen set is bronze, floor tile is light gray with splashes of yellow and black. Stove, washing machine and refrigerator are white, The archway between kitchen and hall is painted pale rose. What colors besides white and yellow could I choose?"

You have yellow. gray, black, white, red and bronze in your kitchen. It would give a circus effect to introduce another color with strong colors such as those A pale yellow or white paint seems to be your only solution to harmony in the color scheme.

Trees Bloom In Profusion

By MILDRED SWIFT

While in Baton Rouge last week I saw a gorgeous planting of candle trees. At 8925 Airline, there were 48 in bloom.

When you examine these blooms you can see why the name candle has been attached to them. The flowers are yellow, the color of light, and the bloom stems are always pointing straight up, just like candles. This gives the tree a neat appearance. The botanical name is Cassia Alata and the plant belongs to the pea family.

Candle tree is a native of the tropics. From that we know that it cannot be carried over through our winters without protection and that it only thrives in our summers. It's woody and in it's native home lives for several years.

AL SAYS

Al Aleman of Baton Rouge gives this information about the candle tree. The seed pods are still green even at this late season. From that we'd conclude that the seeds do not mature before the frost hits them. So, gardeners in Baton Rouge have saved these seed and brought them to maturity by this method: Before the frost comes, they gather branches with pods on them, place the ends in water and store them inside a garage. In that way the seeds continue to develop and when they are dry, they're harvested and stored in a dry place during the winter.

PLANTING

Plant the seed of this candle tree in flats or boxes (I've used buckets) in February. Protect from colds and freeze. When it's cotton planting time, transplant outside.

Aleman states that one gardener has carried the plants over but doesn't feel the great amount of work is worth while. This is what he did: dug up some of the candle trees with a ball of dirt around the roots and stored them in his garage. He was careful to keep the soil on the roots or the plant would starve to death.

Then the soil was kept moist. The plant treated in that manner would be set out in the spring and would grow off earlier than those grown from seed. Much of the top died during the winter and the plant was more or less just a stump when time to set out. This information is given in case you want to go to this trouble so you can boast of having the first candle tree blooms next summer.

OLD FASHIONED

In most of the old gardens little Johnny jump-ups were found growing in a careless manner. The first I saw were in Cele Parkers garden on DeSiard Road, 32 years ago. For a while we both grew them. In the last years I've seen few of these in North Louisiana gardens.

These Johnny jump-ups have little pansey - like flowers which are very effective when the plants are massed close together for a ground cover. I've grown them as pot plants.

These plants grow about six to eight inches high, usually and produce flowers freely for several months, in one continuous bloom, usually starting in January. The flowers are about one-half to three-fourth inches across. The petals are predominately yellow with purple and lavender markings. The plants thrive without care, growing in ordinary garden soil. They're free from insects and disease, and are cold hardy.

The plants self-sow seeds which make "volunteer" plants for the next season, provided the soil is not disturbed too much. I've seen the plants blooming where they'd just "popped up" out in the lawn.

The plants can be grown in full sun or partial shade. Seeds and plants are hard to find in this area. Some seed catalogues list these. Seed could be planted now in boxes and set the plants out later. I always planted the seed where they were to stay. However, they are so very small there is danger of rains carrying them away. If you do transplant, get this done by the first week in December. Remember the plants bloom in January.

Johnny jump-ups bloom earlier than pansies, can take more hot weather and do not have to be picked constantly as pansies do. They're lovely used as a ground cover in rose or bulb beds. The botanical name is viola kitailbeliana, variety rafinesquii.

WHAT'S NEW?

Can you imagine washing dishes automatically without water or detergent? In the kitchen of the future that's probably what you'll be doing. Such a dishwasher uses sound waves for this purpose. A friend comes in to dinner. You wheel the food in on an attractive cart with a plastic top. After dinner (according to the Merchandising Week) you then open the cart and load your dirty dishes inside. Then, it's off to the kitchen, attach it to the sink, push a few buttons, and the next dishes you see are clean ones. The washer is about 34 inches high and will roll under the average counter top.

Soon you can charcoal broil inside your kitchen. The usual objections - smoke, fuel odors, flare-up dangers - are no danger problems because of a new invention. This one is a charcoal lighter that looks like a coffee pot without a top. You fill it with charcoal, plug it into your electrical outlet, and in about 10 minutes you have enough red charcoal to cook a good-sized roast. A heat resisting shield keeps the handle cool for pouring the ready-to-use-coals into pit or grill.

CLOTHES HINTS

Here's something to keep in mind when buying or making a dress. Collarless necklines, cut below the base of the neck, or forming various versions of the "V", give the illusion of length to the neck. A deep "U" or keyhole neckline is satisfactory, also.

Today's beauty hint to all of us past 40: Shorter hair, lowered necklines, and longer strings of beads mean throats are being unveiled this fall. Use a good nourishing cream to shape up skin in this area and to keep it firm and elastic.

Jet is back, used in buttons, pins and earbobs. Look in the old button box. If you're a button - saver you'll find some of these hoarded from back in the 1930's.

Velvet has been a favorite fabric for centuries. It is very important in the fall and winter picture. When buying a velvet dress, it's important to make sure the dress isn't too tight. Velvet drapes so beautifully, it is a shame to spoil it with a skimpy or too-tight look. Black velvet is a popular choice for party coats, as well as dresses, suits and hats. This year there are wonderful jewel colors like amethyst, ruby emerald, turquoise and topaz.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Your Open House programs for next week are: Monday, Paul Hardee will show the children how to make jack o' lanterns. Tuesday, Marjorie Johnson will prepare some jack-o-lantern appetizers: Wednesday, flower arrangements with Gladys Kulke. Thrusday and Friday, Marketing with Mildred.

See you next Sunday.

Impressions Of Photokina Lasting Ones

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

The photokina 1960 in Cologne, Germany, shuttered its booths some time ago. Its many thousands of visitors have dispersed, but among them a couple of photo personalities left lasting impressions.

One of them is Man Ray and the other, Weegee.

Both are well known in photography inner circles as distinctive individuals with a flair for pointing a camera into uncharted channels. Both were born in the United States and are now living and working in Europe. Each had his own photo exhibition at Photokina and each made a personal appearance there to see the world show.

COMPARISON

So much alike . . . and so very different in appearance, dress and talk!

Man Ray celebrated his 70th birthday at the photo fair but his sprightly walk, careful grooming and agile mind belied the years. He recalled his photo beginning more than a half - century ago in California. His first camera was a homemade film - holder and box built around a projecting lens he had picked up. It could be used only for portraits with the subject riveted to a spot exactly 12 feet away.

"Exposure - coupled zoom lenses and automatic cameras have come a long way," he acknowledged as he passed the latest examples in the crowded aisles. "But it still takes imagination to make the pictures mean anything."

He proved that point 40 years ago with his photo innovations. At a time when large cameras and needle - sharp contact prints were the accepted vogue, he dabbled in enlargements, impressionistic and soft - focus portraits and in darkroom techniques like solarization. It created a controversy. He was taking the realism out of photography, it was argued.

DRAWBACKS

But he showed realism has its drawbacks sometimes. His artistic photo of a nude figure was refused for exhibition. He took the negative, covered it with glass beads and made a print of the combination. The nude, discreetly disguised through a crystal screen, was acceptable.

Today, despite somewhat failing vision, Man Ray still experiments in his Paris studio.

MORE PERSONAL

My knowledge of Weegee is more personal and goes back more than 30 years. At the time he was a darkroom printer for the newspaper synidcate in which I started to work. His real name, Arthur Fellig, was as unknown then as it is now. But as a character, everybody knew Weegee.

His trademark then, as now, is a black, chewed - up cigar, wild hair, probling eyes and a camera bag over a rumpled suit.

He did some remarkable photography of New York's unseen night life of the early 30's — its seamy characters, murders, fires and society figures. It resulted in a book, "Naked City," and overnight fame. He went on to the West Coast where he spoofed the movie colony foibles in "Naked Hollywood."

ADVANCE MAN: Man Ray, a pioneer in many of the techniques of modern photography, poses in front of a self-portrait he made in 1929. The revealing comparison was snapped at Photokina 1960 by Heinz Leitermann of The Overseas Weekly.

Curtain Call

By BB STRON
Guest Writer

Wasn't it the most! And all the poor girl wanted was her yellow skirt! See what a guilty conscience, fully justified, can do to you. I'm just reminiscing about "The Seven Year Itch." Our first play of the season made history in the Monroe Little Theatre, with an unprecedented run for a straight play. This is due largely to our increased membership, which you will be interested to know is past the 1500 mark. Isn't that wonderful? Our hats are off to the cast, crew and director for a job well done. Everyone really lived it up and enjoyed the performances immensely.

AT SHOWING

For the presentation Sunday night, we had in our audience, the director of the El Dorado Little Theatre, and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. White. With them was Mr. Lockett, who did the props for El Dorado's production last year of "The Seven Year Itch." They enjoyed our show, and told us that their next show will be "The Male Animal." I am sure some of our folk will go to El Dorado for their show.

The case and crew of the play were entertained Saturday night with a party at the home of Edna Frantom. A delightful time was reported by everyone.

Word comes to us that Louis Girard (Gurerriero) has just completed a very successful run as the lead, Elliott Nash, the playwright, in "The Gazebo," in Augusta, Michigan, at the Barn Theatre. He received rave reviews in all of the newspapers there, including the Kalamazoo Gazette.

Attention everyone! Our next presentation will be "The Gazebo," which is a hearty and hilarious comedy melodrama by Alec Coppel. Tryouts for "The Gazebo" will be held Monday night, October 31st, at 7:30 p.m. at the Selman Field Playhouse. We urge everyone who is the least bit interested in the theatre to turn out. Experience is not necessary. If you have the "urge" to act, please come. The cast calls for nine men and three women. The play will be presented early in December. Let's cooperate with our new director, and have a big crowd out Monday night for tryouts.

The Broadway run of "The Gazebo" starred Jayne Meadows and Walter Slezak, and the movie starred Debbie Reynolds and Glenn Ford. All of the parts are good and the play is very entertaining. So plan now to come on our Monday night at 7:30 p.m. for tryouts. See you then.

TRAVEL

Switzerland Is Haven For Novice Tourists

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

INTERLAKEN, Switzerland (UPI) — Most novice tourists figure on seeing Switzerland in one day — and then wonder what they'll do in the afternoon.

That's selling this little country short and short - changing yourself. One day's hardly time enough to fall in love with the mite - sized nation richly blessed with some of nature's most spectacular shows.

NAME IT

Name your pleasure and you'll find it in this land — say snow-capped mountains with peaks reaching above the clouds, sky blue lakes fed by alpine springs, ancient castles, and all else that you demand of a tourist paradise.

By its very smallness, the country is a natural one for the novice tourist to really pick over when starting a tour of Europe. Allow about 10 days in Switzerland and you can study one country, its people and culture, its government and its industries at a leisurely pace.

By jet plane, the land where kings go to school and royalty vacations is only about seven hours from New York.

And getting there isn't beyond the means of the average American in the habit of saving for a dream trip every so many years. Right now, with special 17 - day excursion rates on Swissair and other lines the cost of a two-week vacation in Switzerland is $499—including jet transport and hotels.

Visiting Switzerland is like visiting several nations at once. Part of it is French - speaking. Another part is German - speaking. And a third part is Italian - speaking.

But along with the tri - lingual nature of the country, the culture is divided three ways, too. Spend a few days in the German section, for example, and it's just like being in Germany.

In the French section, you'd swear you're in France. The Italian section's like Italy.

Because Switzerland is at the center of the European continent, she is known as the heart of Europe, the crossroads of Europe, and the roof of Europe. The Alps make her the geographical roof literally.

To the north, the country is surrounded by Germany. To the east is Austria, and to the west is France. Italy is to the south.

QUICK TRIP

Any time you are in a border town, you simply hop a streetcar or bus and 10 minutes later you are in another country.

Surveying the superb panoramas, the American tourist gets the feeling that some of the best of America's beauty has been swept into one bundle and deposited within the borders of Switzerland.

When you want to picture the country, think of some of the beauty spots in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, Maine and Massachusetts. Add something from the Grand Canyon, Texas and California.

With the extraordinary concentration of natural beauties to be found in the compact place, and the excellent transportation network which brings anything within a few hours' reach, Switzerland's an ideal vacationland for those wanting to get the most for the least.

The millions of tourists who visit the country annually enjoy the picturesque lakes, swimming and sailing in summer, or mountain climbing.

Some visit historical sites and art treasures, others ascend mountains in cog railways or cable cars.

Every year the Alpine resorts are visited by lovers of skiing, skating, tobogganing, curling, ice schools. Others just relax in the winter sun.

Modern technical science has helped to open up parts of the country that were once accessible only to the more intrepid travelers. In addition to the mountain railways, 53 funiculars, 83 aerial cable cars, 45 chair lifts and 208 ski lifts are in operation.

To help the novice mountaineers, there are about 400 professional mountain guides, each of whom has been put through severe tests before being given the coveted silver badge of the Swiss Alpine Club.

In spite of the Swiss people's very modern way of life — plumbing practically everywhere and girls in high - heeled shoes riding bikes — there are many local and national events which serve as reminders that the past is not dead and is worthy of meditation and enjoyment.

If a tourist is lucky, he or she might get caught up in one of centuries-old ceremonies commemorating national victories. Or the tourist might become involved in a popular pageant or procession.

FESTIVAL

For example — each wine - growing area has its vintage festival in autumn. Geneva celebrates her victory over the forces of the Duke of Savoy in 1602 with L'Escalade; a picturesque carnival is held in Basel: Zurich hails the arrival of spring with a colorful historic pageant organized by the Guilds, culminating in the burning of an effigy of winter.

When you go to Switzerland, also expect:

—Hotel and restaurant service that makes you feel like a monarch.

—Flowers everywhere, including in some buses and always at the table.

—Friendly, smiling people much like yourself.

—No language difficulty. Most folks speak English. And when that isn't spoken, gestures work fine.

—Cities so clean that it's hard to imagine they're lived in.

—Practically no television.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Plant Trees For Others

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Everyone who enjoys the trees in their autumn colors should plant a tree himself. The trees that we see about us today were all planted or grew naturally 50 years or more ago, and those who set them out and cared for them knew that they were planting them not so much for themselves as for us today.

Everyone shares a tree. It is the trees in your neighbor's yard that you can see best. In the morning and afternoon, your trees shade his lot or his trees shade yours.

SPOILED

We Southerners are spoiled. We live in a great forest of many kinds of native trees, yet we neglect to care for or to plant them. With bulldozers taking them down to create acres of blistering hot parking lots every day, we had better begin to insist that developers of these areas shade our automobiles with trees. If this can be done in very small countries where the populations are greater than ours, we can certainly spare a few cubic feet in the large country.

Surely these hot places where we have to shop will teach us to care for the trees we have at home. A few bags of fertilizer will often save a starving mature tree which has hundreds of years of life expectancy. To create the same amount of shade that we are getting from some of the large specimens requires from 40 to a 100 years of growth from a young specimen.

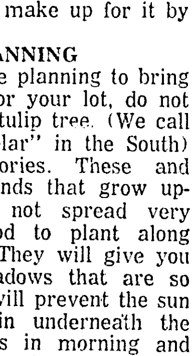
The chief evidence of starvation in a tree is the dying back of small branches in the top. Look up at the crown of your tree against the sky. If there are little dead branches here and there, you had better get busy and feed it. Since we remove most of the leaves underneath our trees every year, we must make up for it by fertilizing.

PLANNING

When you are planning to bring in new trees for your lot, do not forget the tall tulip tree. (We call it a "tulip poplar" in the South) and the hickories. These and many more kinds that grow upward and do not spread very much are good to plant along your borders. They will give you those long shadows that are so beautiful and will prevent the sun from beating in underneath the spreading trees in morning and after noon. As tall trees help to tall tree is a cylinder of cool air cool off the land in summer. Each tree is a cylinder of cool air which gradually gets heavy and comes down onto the area underneath it.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Fall Garden Calendar Full



By MARY JARDINE

The Fall garden club calendar is crowded with many interesting events and listed below for your convenience are important dates to remember:

Thursday, November 3, Winnsboro Garden Club presents Mrs. M. B. Latham in a demonstration-lecture on Holiday Decorations for Homes and Churches. Small fee. Public cordially invited. Fellowship Hall Methodist Church, Winnsboro, 3 p.m.

Thursday, November 3, Tensas Garden Club Fall Flower Show, Community House, 3 to 6 p.m. Theme: Fall Festival of Flowers. Public invited.

Friday, November 11, annual Fifth District Meeting of Louisiana Garden Club Federation, Little Theatre, Tech Campus, Ruston. Registration 9 to 9:30 a.m. Business meeting to 12 noon. Main Program 1:30 p.m. Mrs. Frank Richardson (Ione Talbert) guest speaker. Subject: Occidental (Western Style) arrangements. Registrations may be mailed to Mrs. J. D. Murry, Rt. 1, Ruston, $3.50 for entire day or $1.50 afternoon program alone. Very important meeting, all garden club members urged to attend.

GARDENS OF EUROPE

"Gardens of Western Europe," is the title of a beautifully illustrated handbook just published by the Brooklyn Botanic Garden. It fulfills the great need for an up-to-date guide to the most noteworthy private gardens, parks, botanic gardens and nurseries open to visitors abroad. Edited by Frederick G. Meyer, a botanist with the U. S. Department of Agriculture, this hand book is a concise guide to places of genuine horticultural interest in Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Italy, Luxembourgh, Monaco, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland. This paper covered handbook, with a page size of 6 by 9 inches, will fit easily into the travel bag of every gardener going to Europe. And for those who may never leave home, it offers stimulating reading and new ideas in landscape design.

HOME GARDENERS

Mrs. M. W. Montgomery's design was of great interest, the curved driftwood resembling a Viking ship. Burford Holly and pink mums were massed in a triangular pattern along one of the lines of the driftwood. The imagination conjures up a ship in full sail!

Mrs. M. J. Hortman selected a brown cypress root set on a brown burl. The design was vertical in pattern. A color harmony of autumn tones. Brown dock provided height followed by yellow bronze cortalaria. Deep bronze mums were massed low as a center of interest.

"Rocket to the Moon," would be an appropriate title for Mrs. K. R. Young's vertical design. A natural color cypress knee with strong vertical lines was set on a round base. In the background tall brown dock formed the first vertical placement with graduated placements of wine celosia coming down the vertical line and terminating at the base with a brilliant rosette of red celosia.

Mrs. W. R. Moseley selected a graceful triangular piece of driftwood for her design. A goldfinch perched on the upper branch contemplated the pleasing pattern of pine and white mums with Burford Holly berries tucked in at the edges.

Information On Daffodils

By AUDREY DAWSON

A number of homemakers have called asking what varieties of daffodils are best to plant in this area. The following is information from work done at out LSU Experiment Station over a period of six years, and these are some that proved satisfactory. Fortune was proven to be the best variety of the large cupped type. When left in place for three years, the size held up very well and loss of bulbs was slight. It is believed to be one of the best daffodils to plant.

Alasnam - This is similar to the King Alfred variety but in the six-year test proved much more dependable than the King Alfred.

Helios - is a large cupped type that did quite well in the experiment—when left in place for three years, the size of the flowers deteriorated but there was little loss in bulbs.

Thalia produces from one to four delicate white flowers per stalk. This variety is highly recommended for planting.

King Alfred - The results were variable. In some cases it did as well as any variety when left in space for three years. In other cases at end of three years very few bulbs were left. The damage seemed to be due to basal rot.

HALLOWEEN

Tomorrow night is Halloween. To mothers, my message to you do be sure to stress safety to the children as they go out on their "Trick or Treat" tours. To motorists - the message is the same, do practice safety. Drive slowly so that if that child steps in the path of your automobile that you can stop.

WOOD PANELING

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, are planning to build or remodel your home and you are planning to use paneling, our specialist suggests that you shop around and see the various types on the market. Solid wood paneling comes milled in a number of ways and in a large variety of woods. Some of the most popular woods are pine, cypress, gum, oak, willow, birch, poplar, redwood and Philippine mahogany. Be sure to select doors and other wood work to match the paneling. Plywood paneling has become quite popular. It is manufactured in a large variety of woods and in different thicknesses.

Pressed wood paneling is a sandwich type laminated panel made with resin treated wood flakes and veneer particles. Some has a mosaic textured surface and some is finished with a thin veneer of hardwood.

AGENT'S SCHEDULE

Yours truly will meet the following Home Demonstration Clubs this month: Nov. 28 9:30, Cadeville at Mrs. J. A. Strudivant's, 2:00, Colony, Mrs. Margie Goodard; Nov. 3, 9:30, Progressive, Mrs. Roy Simmons; 2:00, Watson, at the school; Nov. 4, Swartz, 9:30, Mrs. Bonner Corder, 2:00, Woodlawn at Mrs. E. L. Tisdale; Nov. 8, 9:30, Better Homemakers with Mrs. E. Grubbs, 1:30 Okaloosa at Mrs. Audrey Fuller's; Nov. 9, 9:30, Thrifty Homemakers with Mrs. W. S. Grey; 2:00, Logtown, Mrs. Verne Hanson; Nov. 10, 9:30, McGuire, 1:30, Cheniere, Mrs. C. C. McGrew, 2:00 Bosco, Mrs. Allen Cloud; Nov. 16, 9:30, Claiborne, Mrs. Jasper Jones, 2:00, Eureka; Nov. 17, 9:30, Lamkin, Mrs. C. T. Baird 2:00, McClendon, Mrs. Henry Blazier; Nov. 21, Lakeview; Nov. 22, 1:00, Lakeshore, Mrs. Robert Heard; Nov. 23, District Meeting; Nov. 24, Holiday; Nov. 25, 1:30, Lenwil; Nov. 29, 1:00 Sterlington, Mrs. J. R. Williams.

FURNITURE STYLES

Many of the new furniture designs can be traced to influences from earlier days. Earlier American is returning to popular favor.

Furniture has more slender lines and is less bulky. Wood finishes are in medium tones with less of the blond finishes. More dining room furniture is being bought. Buffets are lower and may have open or glass enclosed shelves that can be bought separately and placed on top of the buffet.

A THOUGHT

He that shoots best may sometimes miss the mark, but he that shoots not at all can never hit it.

Landscaping Can Be Fun, Says Expert

By NEIL ODENWALD
LSU Horticulture Specialist

Beautiful, orderly outdoor spaces are important in the daily lives of all people. They add to the attractiveness and comfort of our surroundings and to the value of our homes. We can do much in the fall and the winter months to improve our landscapes for personal satisfaction and for greater beauty, comfort and convenience.

The key to successful landscaping is careful planning. Lack of planning brings about a landscape that ends up dominating instead of serving. Masses of plants may take up a large portion of the outdoor spaces for themselves and literally shut the owners out from their own land, confining them, in a manner of speaking.

BASIC MATERIAL

The most important basic material in the landscape is plants. They can be obtained in all forms, sizes, colors, and textures. Before they can be used to an advantage they must be understood.

The first question in selecting plants for a landscape should be what are the needs, and where do these needs exist? The next question is what plants will best satisfy these needs? Keep in mind that for a specific location on a particular site, after careful planning, a certain plant material will be best. Also, when there is careful selection, maintenance problems will be reduced.

The landscape should have color. There are a wealth of plants that can be selected which will give special seasonal interest. Color might come from the spring-flowering bulbs or from the gray branches of deciduous plants during the dormant season. With poor planning, the landscape may be colorful only during one season of the year. During the remaining months the site will lack both special interest and personal satisfaction to the home owner.

STUDY

When making plans for landscaping a new home, or when making changes on an existing home site. but there is a chal- to local nurserieis to study the growth characteristics of various plants. What are the height and spread of specific plants considered for a specific location? Will their rate of growth soon dwarf the amount of remaining outdoor space. Visit neighbors to study the cultivation requirements for plants growing under similar soil and climate conditions.

Safety Vital For Children At Halloween

Parents and motorists can help make Halloween free from tragedy.

With a thought about the observance Monday, Mrs. Alice Teddlie, assistant specialist in family life, with the LSU Agricultural Extension Service, gave some advise on safety measures.

"Little spooks outside after dark on Halloween, wearing dull black witches' costumes or skeleton suits are difficult to see in darkened streets or roadways," she said. "Remind children not to dash between parked cars, not to play in the street, and not to cross the street without first looking both ways."

SLOW DOWN

Motorists, should slow down, she said. They should keep in mind that there will be more children in the streets than usual.

Here are some tips provided by her for making the observance safe, and enjoyable, too:

Buy or make flameproof costumes that are light colored. They're easier to see at night.

Make sure the outfits aren't tripping hazards and they won't catch on bushes, hedges or fences.

Be sure masks don't restrict vision or provide danger of suffocation.

Use reflecting tape, liquid or bands on children's costumes, capes, jack-o'-lanterns, broomsticks, and hats.

Don't allow the child to use candles or torches. If he carries a lantern, make sure it's lighted by flashlight batteries.

Don't let the child carry a knife, sword or other sharp instrument, make a dummy one.

Trees Bloom In Profusion

By MILDRED SWIFT

While in Baton Rouge last week I saw a gorgeous planting of candle trees. At 8925 Airline, there were 48 in bloom.

When you examine these blooms you can see why the name candle has been attached to them. The flowers are yellow, the color of light, and the bloom stems are always pointing straight up, just like candles. This gives the tree a neat appearance. The botanical name is Cassia Alata and the plant belongs to the pea family.

Candle tree is a native of the tropics. From that we know that it cannot be carried over through our winters without protection and that it only thrives in our summers. It's woody and in it's native home lives for several years.

AL SAYS

Al Aleman of Baton Rouge gives this information about the candle tree. The seed pods are still green even at this late season. From that we'd conclude that the seeds do not mature before the frost hits them. So, gardeners in Baton Rouge have saved these seed and brought them to maturity by this method: Before the frost comes, they gather branches with pods on them, place the ends in water and store them inside a garage. In that way the seeds continue to develop and when they are dry, they're harvested and stored in a dry place during the winter.

PLANTING

Plant the seed of this candle tree in flats or boxes (I've used buckets) in February. Protect from colds and freeze. When it's cotton planting time, transplant outside.

Aleman states that one gardener has carried the plants over but doesn't feel the great amount of work is worth while. This is what he did: dug up some of the candle trees with a ball of dirt around the roots and stored them in his garage. He was careful to keep the soil on the roots or the plant would starve to death.

Then the soil was kept moist. The plant treated in that manner would be set out in the spring and would grow off earlier than those grown from seed. Much of the top died during the winter and the plant was more or less just a stump when time to set out. This information is given in case you want to go to this trouble so you can boast of having the first candle tree blooms next summer.

OLD FASHIONED

In most of the old gardens little Johnny jump-ups were found growing in a careless manner. The first I saw were in Cele Parkers garden on DeSiard Road, 32 years ago. For a while we both grew them. In the last years I've seen few of these in North Louisiana gardens.

These Johnny jump-ups have little pansey - like flowers which are very effective when the plants are massed close together for a ground cover. I've grown them as pot plants.

These plants grow about six to eight inches high, usually and produce flowers freely for several months. in one continuous bloom, usually starting in January. The flowers are about one-half to three-fourth inches across. The petals are predominately yellow with purple and lavender markings. The plants thrive without care, growing in ordinary garden soil. They're free from insects and disease, and are cold hardy.

The plants self-sow seeds which make "volunteer" plants for the next season, provided the soil is not disturbed too much. I've seen the plants blooming where they'd just "popped up" out in the lawn.

The plants can be grown in full sun or partial shade. Seeds and plants are hard to find in this area. Some seed catalogues list these. Seed could be planted now in boxes and set the plants out later. I always planted the seed where they were to stay. However, they are so very small there is danger of rains carrying them away. If you do transplant, get this done by the first week in December. Remember the plants bloom in January.

Johnny jump-ups bloom earlier than pansies, can take more hot weather and do not have to be picked constantly as pansies do. They're lovely used as a ground cover in rose or bulb beds. The botanical name is viola kitailbeliana, variety rafinesquii.

WHAT'S NEW?

Can you imagine washing dishes automatically without water or detergent? In the kitchen of the future that's probably what you'll be doing. Such a dishwasher uses sound waves for this purpose. A friend comes in to dinner. You wheel the food in on an attractive cart with a plastic top. After dinner) according to the Merchandising Week) you then open the cart and load your dirty dishes inside. Then, it's off to the kitchen, attach it to the sink, push a few buttons, and the next dishes you see are clean ones. The washer is about 34 inches high and will roll under the average counter top.

Soon you can charcoal broil inside your kitchen. The usual objections - smoke, fuel odors, flare-up dangers - are no danger problems because of a new invention. This one is a charcoal lighter that looks like a coffee pot without a top. You fill it with charcoal, plug it into your electrical outlet, and in about 10 minutes you have enough red charcoal to cook a good-sized roast. A heat resisting shield keeps the handle cool for pouring the ready-to-use-coals into pit or grill.

CLOTHES HINTS

Here's something to keep in mind when buying or making a dress. Collarless necklines, cut below the base of the neck, or forming various versions of the "V", give the illusion of length to the neck. A deep "U" or keyhole neckline is satisfactory, also.

Today's beauty hint to all of us past 40: Shorter hair, lowered necklines, and longer strings of beads mean throats are being unveiled this fall. Use a good nourishing cream to shape up skin in this area and to keep it firm and elastic.

Jet is back, used in buttons, pins and earbobs. Look in the old button box. If you're a button - saver you'll find some of these hoarded from back in the 1930's.

Velvet has been a favorite fabric for centuries. It is very important in the fall and winter picture. When buying a velvet dress, it's important to make sure the dress isn't too tight. Velvet drapes so beautifully, it is a shame to spoil it with a skimpy or too-tight look. Black velvet is a popular choice for party coats, as well as dresses, suits and hats. This year there are wonderful jewel colors like amethyst, ruby emerald, turquoise and topaz.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Your Open House programs for next week are: Monday, Paul Hardee will show the children how to make jack o' lanterns. Tuesday, Marjorie Johnson will prepare some jack-o-lantern appetizers: Wednesday, flower arrangements with Gladys Kulke. Thrusday and Friday, Marketing with Mildred.

See you next Sunday.

Impressions Of Photokina Lasting Ones

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

The photokina 1960 in Cologne, Germany, shuttered its booths some time ago. Its many thousands of visitors have dispersed, but among them a couple of photo personalities left lasting impressions.

One of them is Man Ray and the other, Weegee.

Both are well known in photography inner circles as distinctive individuals with a flair for pointing a camera into uncharted channels. Both were born in the United States and are now living and working in Europe. Each had his own photo exhibition at Photokina and each made a personal appearance there to see the world show.

COMPARISON

So much alike . . . and so very different in appearance, dress and talk!

Man Ray celebrated his 70th birthday at the photo fair but his sprightly walk, careful grooming and agile mind belied the years. He recalled his photo beginning more than a half - century ago in California. His first camera was a homemade film - holder and box built around a projecting lens he had picked up. It could be used only for portraits with the subject riveted to a spot exactly 12 feet away.

"Exposure - coupled zoom lenses and automatic cameras have come a long way," he acknowledged as he passed the latest examples in the crowded aisles. "But it still takes imagination to make the pictures mean anything."

He proved that point 40 years ago with his photo innovations. At a time when large cameras and needle - sharp contact prints were the accepted vogue, he dabbled in enlargements, impressionistic and soft - focus portraits and in darkroom techniques like solarization. It created a controversy. He was taking the realism out of photography, it was argued.

DRAWBACKS

But he showed realism has its drawbacks sometimes. His artistic photo of a nude figure was refused for exhibition. He took the negative, covered it with glass beads and made a print of the combination. The nude, discreetly disguised through a crystal screen, was acceptable.

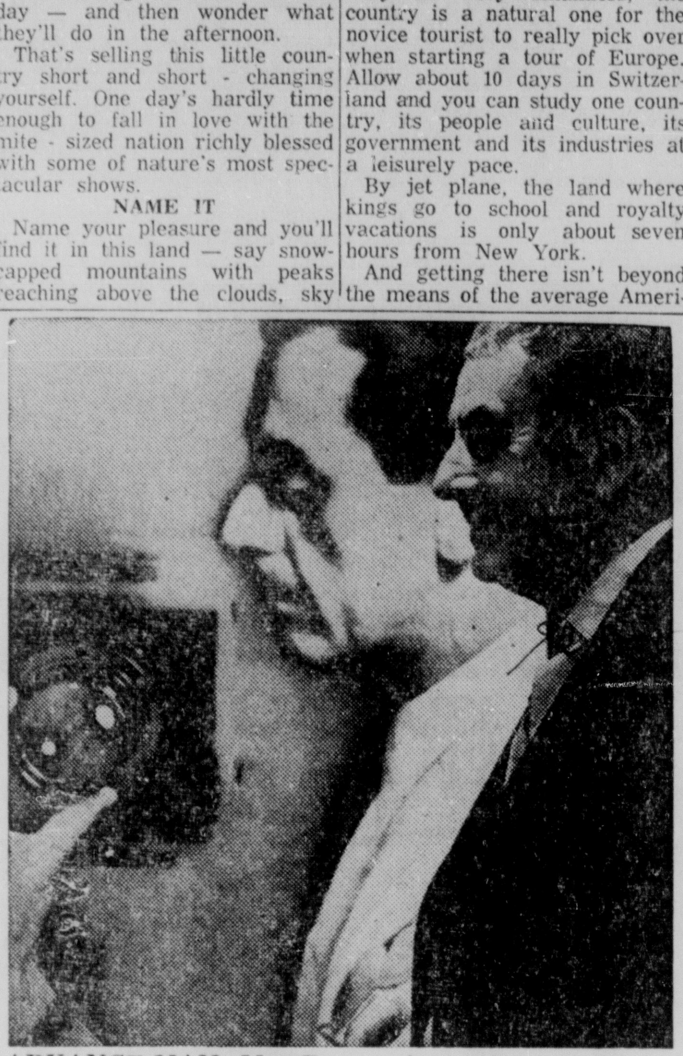
Today, despite somewhat failing vision, Man Ray still experiments in his Paris studio.

MORE PERSONAL

My knowledge of Weegee is more personal and goes back more than 30 years. At the time he was a darkroom printer for the newspaper synidcate in which I started to work. His real name, Arthur Fellig, was as unknown then as it is now. But as a character, everybody knew Weegee.

His trademark then, as now, is a black, chewed - up cigar, wild hair, probling eyes and a camera bag over a rumpled suit.

He did some remarkable photography of New York's unseen night life of the early 30's — its seamy characters, murders, fires and society figures. It resulted in a book, "Naked City," and overnight fame. He went on to the West Coast where he spoofed the movie colony foibles in "Naked Hollywood."



ADVANCE MAN: Man Ray, a pioneer in many of the techniques of modern photography, poses in front of a self-portrait he made in 1929. The revealing comparison was snapped at Photokina 1960 by Heinz Leitermann of The Overseas Weekly.

Curtain Call

By BB STRON
Guest Writer

Wasn't it the most! And all the poor girl wanted was her yellow skirt! See what a guilty conscience, fully justified, can do to you. I'm just reminiscing about "The Seven Year Itch." Our first play of the season made history in the Monroe Little Theatre, with an unprecedented run for a straight play. This is due largely to our increased membership, which you will be interested to know is past the 1500 mark. Isn't that wonderful? Our hats are off to the cast, crew and director for a job well done. Everyone really lived it up and enjoyed the performances immensely.

AT SHOWING

For the presentation Sunday night, we had in our audience, the director of the El Dorado Little Theatre, and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. White. With them was Mr. Lockett, who did the props for El Dorado's production last year of "The Seven Year Itch." They enjoyed our show, and told us that their next show will be "The Male Animal." I am sure some of our folk will go to El Dorado for their show.

The case and crew of the play were entertained Saturday night with a party at the home of Edna Frantom. A delightful time was reported by everyone.

Word comes to us that Louis Girard (Gurerriero) has just completed a very successful run as the lead, Elliott Nash, the playwright, in "The Gazebo," in Augusta, Michigan, at the Barn Theatre. He received rave reviews in all of the newspapers there, including the Kalamazoo Gazette.

Attention everyone! Our next presentation will be "The Gazebo," which is a hearty and hilarious comedy melodrama by Alec Coppel. Tryouts for "The Gazebo" will be held Monday night, October 31st, at 7:30 p.m. at the Selman Field Playhouse. We urge everyone who is the least bit interested in the theatre to turn out. Experience is not necessary. If you have the "urge" to act, please come. The cast calls for nine men and three women. The play will be presented early in December. Let's cooperate with our new director, and have a big crowd out Monday night for tryouts.

The Broadway run of "The Gazebo" starred Jayne Meadows and Walter Slezak, and the movie starred Debbie Reynolds and Glenn Ford. All of the parts are good and the play is very entertaining. So plan now to come on our Monday night at 7:30 p.m. for tryouts. See you then.

TRAVEL

Switzerland Is Haven For Novice Tourists

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

INTERLAKEN, Switzerland (UPI) — Most novice tourists figure on seeing Switzerland in one day — and then wonder what they'll do in the afternoon.

That's selling this little country short and short - changing yourself. One day's hardly time enough to fall in love with the mite - sized nation richly blessed with some of nature's most spectacular shows.

NAME IT

Name your pleasure and you'll find it in this land — say snow-capped mountains with peaks reaching above the clouds, sky blue lakes fed by alpine springs, ancient castles, and all else that you demand of a tourist paradise.

By its very smallness, the country is a natural one for the novice tourist to really pick over when starting a tour of Europe. Allow about 10 days in Switzerland and you can study one country, its people and culture, its government and its industries at a leisurely pace.

By jet plane, the land where kings go to school and royalty vacations is only about seven hours from New York.

And getting there isn't beyond the means of the average American in the habit of saving for a dream trip every so many years. Right now, with special 17 - day excursion rates on Swissair and other lines the cost of a two-week vacation in Switzerland is $499—including jet transport and hotels.

Visiting Switzerland is like visiting several nations at once. Part of it is French - speaking. Another part is German - speaking. And a third part is Italian - speaking.

But along with the tri - lingual nature of the country, the culture is divided three ways, too. Spend a few days in the German section, for example, and it's just like being in Germany.

In the French section, you'd swear you're in France. The Italian section's like Italy.

Because Switzerland is at the center of the European continent, she is known as the heart of Europe, the crossroads of Europe, and the roof of Europe. The Alps make her the geographical roof literally.

To the north, the country is surrounded by Germany. To the east is Austria, and to the west is France. Italy is to the south.

QUICK TRIP

Any time you are in a border town, you simply hop a streetcar or bus and 10 minutes later you are in another country.

Surveying the superb panoramas, the American tourist gets the feeling that some of the best of America's beauty has been swept into one bundle and deposited within the borders of Switzerland.

When you want to picture the country, think of some of the beauty spots in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, Maine and Massachusetts. Add something from the Grand Canyon, Texas and California.

With the extraordinary concentration of natural beauties to be found in the compact place, and the excellent transportation network which brings anything within a few hours' reach, Switzerland's an ideal vacationland for those wanting to get the most for the least.

The millions of tourists who visit the country annually enjoy the picturesque lakes, swimming and sailing in summer, or mountain climbing.

Some visit historical sites and art treasures, others ascend mountains in cog railways or cable cars.

Every year the Alpine resorts are visited by lovers of skiing, skating, tobogganing, curling, ice schools. Others just relax in the winter sun.

Modern technical science has helped to open up parts of the country that were once accessible only to the more intrepid travelers. In addition to the mountain railways, 53 funiculars, 83 aerial cable cars, 45 chair lifts and 208 ski lifts are in operation.

To help the novice mountaineers, there are about 400 professional mountain guides, each of whom has been put through severe tests before being given the coveted silver badge of the Swiss Alpine Club.

In spite of the Swiss people's very modern way of life — plumbing practically everywhere and girls in high - heeled shoes riding bikes — there are many local and national events which serve as reminders that the past is not dead and is worthy of meditation and enjoyment.

If a tourist is lucky, he or she might get caught up in one of centuries-old ceremonies commemorating national victories. Or the tourist might become involved in a popular pageant or procession.

FESTIVAL

For example — each wine - growing area has its vintage festival in autumn. Geneva celebrates her victory over the forces of the Duke of Savoy in 1602 with L'Escalade; a picturesque carnival is held in Basel; Zurich hails the arrival of spring with a colorful historic pageant organized by the Guilds, culminating in the burning of an effigy of winter.

When you go to Switzerland, also expect:

—Hotel and restaurant service that makes you feel like a monarch.

—Flowers everywhere, including in some buses and always at the table.

—Friendly, smiling people much like yourself.

—No language difficulty. Most folks speak English. And when that isn't spoken, gestures work fine.

—Cities so clean that it's hard to imagine they're lived in.

—Practically no television.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Plant Trees For Others

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Everyone who enjoys the trees in their autumn colors should plant a tree himself. The trees that we see about us today were all planted or grew naturally 50 years or more ago, and those who set them out and cared for them knew that they were planting them not so much for themselves as for us today.

Everyone shares a tree. It is the trees in your neighbor's yard that you can see best. In the morning and afternoon, your trees shade his lot or his trees shade yours.

SPOILED

We Southerners are spoiled. We live in a great forest of many kinds of native trees, yet we neglect to care for or to plant them. With bulldozers taking them down to create acres of blistering hot parking lots every day, we had better begin to insist that developers of these areas shade our automobiles with trees. If this can be done in very small countries where the populations are greater than ours, we can certainly spare a few cubic feet in the large country.

Surely these hot places where we have to shop will teach us to care for the trees we have at home. A few bags of fertilizer will often save a starving mature tree which has hundreds of years of life expectancy. To create the same amount of shade that we are getting from some of the large specimens requires from 40 to a 100 years of growth from a young specimen.

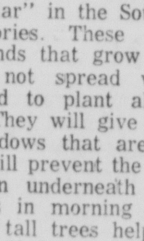
The chief evidence of starvation in a tree is the dying back of small branches in the top. Look up at the crown of your tree against the sky. If there are little dead branches here and there, you had better get busy and feed it. Since we remove most of the leaves underneath our trees every year, we must make up for it by fertilizing.

PLANNING

When you are planning to bring in new trees for your lot, do not forget the tall tulip tree. (We call it a "tulip poplar" in the South) and the hickories. These and many more kinds that grow upward and do not spread very much are good to plant along your borders. They will give you those long shadows that are so beautiful and will prevent the sun from beating in underneath the spreading trees in morning and after noon. As tall trees help to tall tree is a cylinder of cool air cool off the land in summer. Each tree is a cylinder of cool air which gradually gets heavy and comes down onto the area underneath it.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Fall Garden Calendar Full



By MARY JARDINE

Thursday, November 3, Winnsboro Garden Club presents Mrs. M. B. Latham in a demonstration-lecture on Holiday Decorations for Homes and Churches. Small fee. Public cordially invited. Fellowship Hall Methodist Church, Winnsboro, 3 p.m.

Thursday, November 3, Tensas Garden Club Fall Flower Show, Community House, 3 to 6 p.m. Theme: Fall Festival of Flowers. Public invited.

Friday, November 11, annual Fifth District Meeting of Louisiana Garden Club Federation, Little Theatre, Tech Campus, Ruston. Registration 9 to 9:30 a.m. Business meeting to 12 noon. Main Program 1:30 p.m. Mrs. Frank Richardson (Ione Talbert) guest speaker. Subject: Occidental (Western Style) arrangements. Registrations may be mailed to Mrs. J. D. Murry, Rt. 1, Ruston, $3.50 for entire day or $1.50 afternoon program alone. Very important meeting, all garden club members urged to attend.

GARDENS OF EUROPE

"Gardens of Western Europe," is the title of a beautifully illustrated handbook just published by the Brooklyn Botanic Garden. It fulfills the great need for an up-to-date guide to the most noteworthy private gardens, parks, botanic gardens and nurseries open to visitors abroad. Edited by Frederick G. Meyer, a botanist with the U. S. Department of Agriculture, this hand book is a concise guide to places of genuine horticultural interest in Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Italy, Luxembourgh, Monaco, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland. This paper covered handbook, with a page size of 6 by 9 inches, will fit easily into the travel bag of every gardener going to Europe. And for those who may never leave home, it offers stimulating reading and new ideas in landscape design.

HOME GARDENERS

Mrs. M. W. Montgomery's design was of great interest, the curved driftwood resembling a Viking ship. Burford Holly and pink mums were massed in a triangular pattern along one of the lines of the driftwood. The imagination conjures up a ship in full sail!

Mrs. M. J. Hortman selected a brown cypress root set on a brown burl. The design was vertical in pattern. A color harmony of autumn tones. Brown dock provided height followed by yellow bronze cortalaria. Deep bronze mums were massed low as a center of interest.

"Rocket to the Moon," would be an appropriate title for Mrs. K. R. Young's vertical design. A natural color cypress knee with strong vertical lines was set on a round base. In the background tall brown dock formed the first vertical placement with graduated placements of wine celosia coming down the vertical line and terminating at the base with a brilliant rosette of red celosia.

Mrs. W. R. Moseley selected a graceful triangular piece of driftwood for her design. A goldfinch perched on the upper branch contemplated the pleasing pattern of pine and white mums with Burford Holly berries tucked in at the edges.

Information On Daffodils

By AUDREY DAWSON

A number of homemakers have called asking what varieties of daffodils are best to plant in this area. The following is information from work done at out LSU Experiment Station over a period of six years, and these are some that proved satisfactory. Fortune was proven to be the best variety of the large cupped type. When left in place for three years, the size held up very well and loss of bulbs was slight. It is believed to be one of the best daffodils to plant.

Alasnam - This is similar to the King Alfred variety but in the six-year test proved much more dependable than the King Alfred.

Helios - is a large cupped type that did quite well in the experiment—when left in place for three years, the size of the flowers deteriorated but there was little loss in bulbs.

Thalia produces from one to four delicate white flowers per stalk. This variety is highly recommended for planting.

King Alfred - The results were variable. In some cases it did as well as any variety when left in space for three years. In other cases at end of three years very few bulbs were left. The damage seemed to be due to basal rot.

HALLOWEEN

Tomorrow night is Halloween. To mothers, my message to you-do be sure to stress safety to the children as they go out on their "Trick or Treat" tours. To motorists - the message is the same, do practice safety. Drive slowly so that if that child steps in the path of your automobile that you can stop.

WOOD PANELING

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, are planning to build or remodel your home and you are planning to use paneling, our specialist suggests that you shop around and see the various types on the market. Solid wood paneling comes milled in a number of ways and in a large variety of woods. Some of the most popular woods are pine, cypress, gum, oak, willow, birch, poplar, redwood and Philippine mahogany. Be sure to select doors and other wood work to match the paneling. Plywood paneling has become quite popular. It is manufactured in a large variety of woods and in different thicknesses.

Pressed wood paneling is a sandwich type laminated panel made with resin treated wood flakes and veneer particles. Some has a mosaic textured surface and some is finished with a thin veneer of hardwood.

AGENT'S SCHEDULE

Yours truly will meet the following Home Demonstration Clubs this month: Nov. 28 9:30, Cadeville at Mrs. J. A. Strudivant's, 2:00, Colony, Mrs. Margie Goodard; Nov. 3, 9:30, Progressive, Mrs. Roy Simmons; 2:00, Watson, at the school; Nov. 4, Swartz, 9:30, Mrs. Bonner Corder, 2:00, Woodlawn at Mrs. E. L. Tisdale; Nov. 8, 9:30, Better Homemakers with Mrs. E. Grubbs, 1:30 Okaloosa at Mrs. Audrey Fuller's; Nov. 9, 9:30, Thrifty Homemakers with Mrs. W. S. Grey; 2:00, Logtown, Mrs. Verne Hanson; Nov. 10, 9:30, McGuire, 1:30, Cheniere, Mrs. C. C. Owens; Nov. 11, 10:00 Parish Council Meeting, 2:00, Liberty, Mrs. Jerry Lovett; Nov. 14, 1:00, Drew, Mrs. George Bailey; Nov. 15, 9:30, Cypress, Mrs. E. B. McGrew, 2:00 Bosco, Mrs. Allen Cloud; Nov. 16, 9:30, Claiborne, Mrs. Jasper Jones, 2:00, Eureka; Nov. 17, 9:30, Lamkin, Mrs. C. T. Baird 2:00, McClendon, Mrs. Henry Blazier; Nov. 21, Lakeview; Nov. 22, 1:00, Lakeshore, Mrs. Robert Heard; Nov. 23, District Meeting; Nov. 24, Holiday; Nov. 25, 1:30, Lenwil; Nov. 29, 1:00 Sterlington, Mrs. J. R. Williams.

FURNITURE STYLES

Many of the new furniture designs can be traced to influences from earlier days. Earlier American is returning to popular favor.

Furniture has more slender lines and is less bulky. Wood finishes are in medium tones with less of the blond finishes. More dining room furniture is being bought. Buffets are lower and may have open or glass enclosed shelves that can be bought separately and placed on top of the buffet.

A THOUGHT

He that shoots best may sometimes miss the mark, but he that shoots not at all can never hit it.

Landscaping Can Be Fun, Says Expert

By NEIL ODENWALD
LSU Horticulture Specialist

Beautiful, orderly outdoor spaces are important in the daily lives of all people. They add to the attractiveness and comfort of our surroundings and to the value of our homes. We can do much in the fall and the winter months to improve our landscapes for personal satisfaction and for greater beauty, comfort and convenience.

The key to successful landscaping is careful planning. Lack of planning brings about a landscape that ends up dominating instead of serving. Masses of plants may take up a large portion of the outdoor spaces for themselves and literally shut the owners out from their own land, confining them, in a manner of speaking.

BASIC MATERIAL

The most important basic material in the landscape is plants. They can be obtained in all forms, sizes, colors, and textures. Before they can be used to an advantage they must be understood.

The first question in selecting plants for a landscape should be what are the needs, and where do these needs exist? The next question is what plants will best satisfy these needs? Keep in mind that for a specific location on a particular site, after careful planning, a certain plant material will be best. Also, when there is careful selection, maintenance problems will be reduced.

The landscape should have color. There are a wealth of plants that can be selected which will give special seasonal interest. Color might come from the spring-flowering bulbs or from the gray branches of deciduous plants during the dormant season. With poor planning, the landscape may be colorful only during one season of the year. During the remaining months the site will lack both special interest and personal satisfaction to the home owner.

STUDY

When making plans for landscaping a new home, or when making changes on an existing home site. but there is a chal- to local nurserieis to study the growth characteristics of various plants. What are the height and spread of specific plants considered for a specific location? Will their rate of growth soon dwarf the amount of remaining outdoor space. Visit neighbors to study the cultivation requirements for plants growing under similar soil and climate conditions.

Safety Vital For Children At Halloween

Parents and motorists can help make Halloween free from tragedy.

With a thought about the observance Monday, Mrs. Alice Teddlie, assistant specialist in family life, with the LSU Agricultural Extension Service, gave some advise on safety measures.

"Little spooks outside after dark on Halloween, wearing dull black witches' costumes or skeleton suits are difficult to see in darkened streets or roadways," she said. "Remind children not to dash between parked cars, not to play in the street, and not to cross the street without first looking both ways."

SLOW DOWN

Motorists, should slow down, she said. They should keep in mind that there will be more children in the streets than usual.

Here are some tips provided by her for making the observance safe, and enjoyable, too:

Buy or make flameproof costumes that are light colored. They're easier to see at night.

Make sure the outfits aren't tripping hazards and they won't catch on bushes, hedges or fences.

Be sure masks don't restrict vision or provide danger of suffocation.

Use reflecting tape, liquid or bands on children's costumes, capes, jack-o'-lanterns, broomsticks, and hats.

Don't allow the child to use candles or torches. If he carries a lantern, make sure it's lighted by flashlight batteries.

Don't let the child carry a knife, sword or other sharp instrument, make a dummy one.

IT STARTED WITH SURPLUS PLANE

Finn Twins Still Waging Battle With U. S. Courts

Editor's Note — All the Finn twins wanted to do was fly. Instead they landed right in the middle of a fantastic private battle to save the little man from big government. For nine years when the police haven't been arresting the Finns, they've been arresting the police and the end isn't in sight.

By JOE LEWIS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—It may be a surprise to the folks at the United Nations, but a most uncivil little war is being fought in the United States.

The combatants: the United States government vs. the Finn twins.

Hostilities started over ownership of a World War II surplus plane the government sold for $200 to a school district nearly 15 years ago.

But no one foresaw trouble that fine February day nine years ago when George Carroll Finn and his brother, Charles Calvin, bought the plane from the school district for $21,000.

The Finns, who celebrated their 37th birthday the day of the sale, dreamed of starting an airline.

But their dream has turned into a nightmarish combination of comic opera and Irish tragedy that included: court fights, fist fights, plane seizures, imprisonment, nationwide headlines, hungar strikes, a congressional investigation, and a letter from President Eisenhower. Coming up soon: the Finns' $20-million suit against the federal government.

Now the government would like a truce, having long since disclaimed any interest in the plane. But the Finns refuse to settle for less than unconditional surrender.

Who are the Finns? They're World War II flying officers, veterans of the Berlin airlift, black-haired, blue-eyed Irish-Americans who'd rather argue than eat and rather fight than argue. They were born and raised in San Francisco, sons of an electrician, and educated in pre-med and psychology at the University of California.

To headline writers, they're the flying Finns (after spiriting away the plane); the fighting Finns (both have scrapped with law officers); the filing Finns (with an eye toward their many lawsuits) and the thin Finns (after two long hunger strikes in prison).

To their supporters, the Finns are heroes battling for every little guy who feels he's been pushed around by a vast, impersonal bureaucracy.

To their detractors, they're hot-headed headline hunters.

Let's start with the day the Finns flew their plane out of the tiny sunset school yard in Bakersfield, Calif. — where it had been used as a monument and children's playroom.

They had only 1,200 feet of makeshift runway. The two-engine C46A transport requires 1,400 feet. The Finns had never flown a C46, could not hire a pilot because of risk—so they had to fly it out themselves.

A crowd made bets on the Finns' chances for survival as George fired the engines. The plane lurched forward.

If it didn't reach 60 m.p.h. by the halfway mark it wouldn't have speed to clear the runway, and Charles was to yell, "Stop."

Charles yelled. And the old transport, tail wagging and flaps creaking, lumbered skyward like a winged elephant. It turned out Charles yelled, "Stop" but George thought he said "Go!" It was a shaky but appropriate beginning.

On July 3, 1952, while the Finns outfitted the plane, the government sued for $198,000—claiming the district had no right to resell a surplus plane for flying purposes.

The Finns cited an obscure regulation permitting resale with no restrictions three years after the government disposes of a plane.

On Jan. 18, 1953, the Finns snatched — the government says "stole" and the twins say "liberated" — the plane. They flew it across Death Valley to an abandoned airstrip near Tonopah, Nev. Now they were fugitives.

The FBI sent a carload of agents to reclaim plane and Finns.

Charlie Finn saw a thin, white dust cloud over the highway and knew what was coming. Strapping on six-gun and holster, he stood on the wing, like a defiant John Wayne.

"Get off the plane. You're under arrest," the FBI men told Charlie.

"Where's your warrant?" said Charlie.

The next morning, four FBI cars—loaded with shotguns, tear gas and a battering ram—roared up.

The agents happily waved the warrant—and arrested the wrong Finn. The FBI didn't learn its mistake until George's fingerprints were taken in Las Vegas. The warrant was for Charlie, who had left.

The plane was flown to Nellis Air Force Base, Nev., and held there.

Both Finns finally were booked.

But a grand jury refused to indict them, after the key prosecution witness admitted he couldn't identify the Finn who snatched the plane.

A judge ruled the plane was the Finns' property—and the government appealed.

Meanwhile, the Finns—desperate yet unable to get their plane back—made what they now concede was a tactical error.

The Finns were charged with assaulting, threatening and impeding a federal officer in performance of duty.

"He wasn't assaulted and wasn't on duty," retorted George. "He was at lunch." Result: one-year terms, and they were sent to the federal prison at St. Joseph, Mo. Next: a protest hunger strike—and Los Angeles newspapers started a crusade to win bail pending appeal.

The outcry succeeded. A federal judge ordered them released on the 23rd of their fast. Their weight had dropped from about 135 pounds apiece to slightly above 100.

Their appeal failed. They were rejailed. They renewed their fast nd officials kept the them alive by force-feeding them molasses, wheat germ oil and sugared milk for 35 days.

The newspaper clamor resumed.

The late Sen. William Langer of North Dakota asked the Finns to end their fast, promising them a congressional investigation. The Finns agreed.

In August 1955, they were released on an unsolicited parole after 114 days of imprisonment. The prison was happy to see them go.

Langer kept his word. His Constitutional Rights subcommittee alleged the Finns had been deprived of their lawful rights. The senator also nursed a bill through Congress paving the way for the Finns' lawsuit against the government.

Since then, from court to court, the brothers have waged a confusing round of legal battles. And the Finns, who didn't know a habeas corpus from a helicopter when it all started, won a surprising number of legal decisions.

n Jan. 18, 1957, the weary Justice Department relinquished any further claim to the plane. It was sold at a sheriff's sale for $3,500.

The Finns simply couldn't raise the money to buy it, having exhausted their savings in court fights. They think it now is being flown by an airline in South America.

The Finns have become leaders of a rather hazily defined movement in Los Angeles, a city with hazily defined movements galore.

The president of a dog food company gave them several thousand dollars to continue their fight against the government. Their landlady hasn't charged them a cent's rent for the last seven years ("We'll pay everybody back when we win our case," George declares) and a total stranger once lent them a car.

They deny they hate authority and say what they're really fighting is the capricious use of authority by officialdom.

Several times they've run afoul of police in Los Angeles and elsewhere because they were unable to resist that universal impulse to tell off a cop.

Police stopped George, charging him with lacking a valid auto registration and proper illumination of his license plate and having one headlight out of operation. George noticed one tail light on the police car was not working. He refused to sign the citation until the driver submitted to a citizen's arrest. The patrolmen called the sergeant at the police station.

The sergeant cruised to the scene in a new police car—and George noticed the auto had no license plates. He threatened to make a citizen's arrest of the sergeant. And so it went . . . all the way to the police station and into court.

They made headlines anew last August when marshals, seeking George for a court session, mistakenly nabbed Charles. He fought a gang of them down a corridor, down three floors in an elevator, and into the lobby. Next day, when the marshals caught up with George, there was—you guessed it—a duplicate battle over the same course. Result: a new cause for litigation.

Qualities That Make Best Statesman, Social Worker

By RONALD J. BUTLER

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—What quality makes the best statesman, business manager, social worker or educator?

According to psychologist Hans Hahn, it's empathy, a factor long recognized in literature and art but only recently the subject of concentrated scientific research.

Empathy, Hahn says, is the degree of feeling one man has for the suffering, problems or happiness of another.

And, he adds, he has developed a test which allows him to determine the degree of empathy present in an individual.

He says the test is highly accurate, can't be faked and identifies a personality as well as fingerprints identify a person.

The test records emotions which otherwise might be hidden when the subject is asked to look at pictures ranging from the gruesome and tragic to the meaningless or pleasant.

This is accomplished by equipment similar to that used in lie detectors.

It measures the skin's resistance to slight electric currents and variations in skin temperature. Both are affected by a man's emotional status.

The value of the test, Hahn says, covers a wide range.

He predicts a time soon when it will be possible to pick the type of men best suited as business managers, diplomats, educators or other careers. Or the test may be used in rehabilitating some criminals.

In brief, Hahn says, the test shows whether a man is capable of getting along with—and understanding—other people.

Hahn, who heads the Transylvania College psychology department, became interested in empathy in South America nearly 25 years ago.

He saw much severe, widespread poverty and disease in the university town where he taught psychology and anthropology. And he noticed some of his European colleagues were indifferent to the suffering.

Hahn wondered how men with similar academic backgrounds could have such a large difference in their outlook on life.

Then, he says, he decided the difference was in the degree of empathy, and that empathy "must be an innate personality trait independent of intelligence or education."

In 1946 Hahn asked a group of primitive South American Indians to classify as good or bad a group of pictures depicting such scenes as a man spanking his wife and of men spitting on a child.

To the Indians, spanking the wife wasn't bad. "They looked on spanking the women as a good educational method," Hahn says.

But the sight of the men spitting on the child evoked indignation, and by studying other, similar reactions, Hahn decided primitives have as much empathy as anyone else.

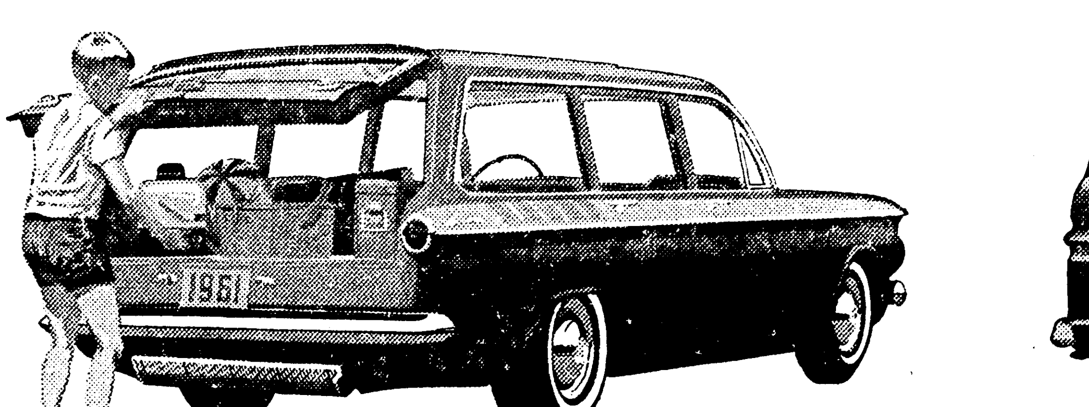
LOWER PRICES AND LOTS MORE TO LIKE! NEW '61 CHEVY CORVAIR

You're going to like what's new with the '61 Corvair. Increased space for you and whatever you want to take along with you. Spunkier engines. Smarter styling. Greater economy. And it all costs you less than ever.

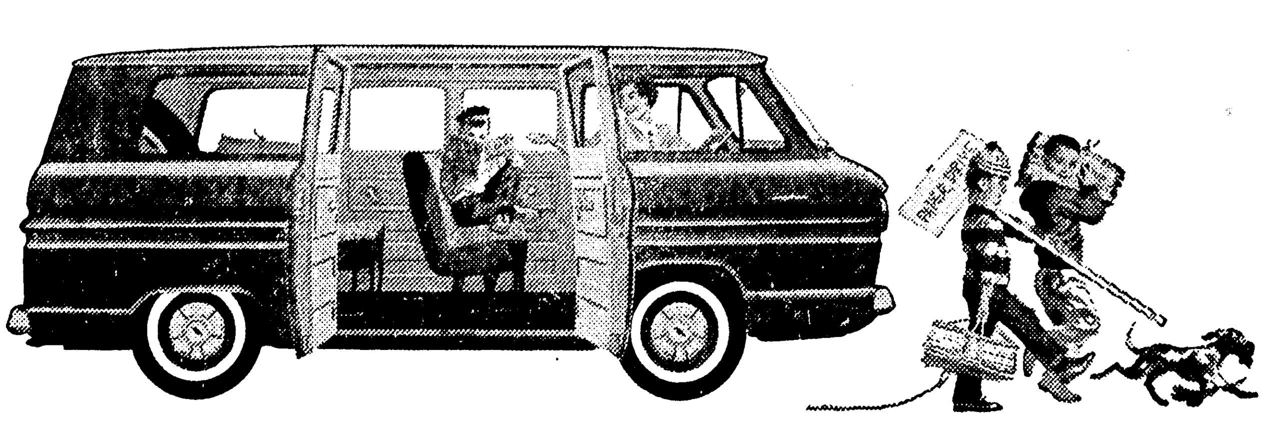
Let's start with Corvair's lower prices. Every coupe and sedan is lower in price. Enough said.

You'll go for the way Corvair gives you more miles to a gallon of gas. Its faster than ever cold-weather warmup. There's a thrifty new heater (optional at extra cost) that sends warmth to the rear seat, too. And a longer range fuel tank. You wouldn't want us to change the easy handling and tremendous traction that've become a Corvair trademark—but we have boosted that air-cooled rear engine's displacement to 145 cu. in.

We could go on and on about the new members of Corvair's complete line of complete thrift cars. The Lakewood Station Wagon does big things with a cargo and still handles like a dream. And the Greenbrier Sports Wagon you'll have to see. It has more room for people and the things that go with them—up to 175.5 cubic feet of it. Look into all of the '61 Corvairs first chance you get, at your Chevrolet dealer's!



Here's the Corvair Lakewood 700 4-Door Station Wagon with 68 cubic feet of cargo space (rear seat folded).



NOW IN PRODUCTION: The Corvair Greenbrier Sports Wagon with up to twice as much room for people and things as ordinary wagons. (Shown with optional-at-extra-cost third seat in position.)

IT STARTED WITH SURPLUS PLANE

Finn Twins Still Waging Battle With U. S. Courts

Editor's Note — All the Finn twins wanted to do was fly. Instead they landed right in the middle of a fantastic private battle to save the little man from big government. For nine years when the police haven't been arresting the Finns, they've been arresting the police and the end isn't in sight.

By JOE LEWIS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—It may be a surprise to the folks at the United Nations, but a most uncivil little war is being fought in the United States.

The combatants: the United States government vs. the Finn twins.

Hostilities started over ownership of a World War II surplus plane the government sold for $200 to a school district nearly 15 years ago.

But no one foresaw trouble that fine February day nine years ago when George Carroll Finn and his brother, Charles Calvin, bought the plane from the school district for $21,000.

The Finns, who celebrated their 37th birthday the day of the sale, dreamed of starting an airline.

But their dream has turned into a nightmarish combination of comic opera and Irish tragedy that included: court fights, fist fights, plane seizures, imprisonment, nationwide headlines, hungar strikes, a congressional investigation, and a letter from President Eisenhower. Coming up soon: the Finns' $20-million suit against the federal government.

Now the government would like a truce, having long since disclaimed any interest in the plane. But the Finns refuse to settle for less than unconditional surrender.

Who are the Finns? They're World War II flying officers, veterans of the Berlin airlift, black-haired, blue-eyed Irish-Americans who'd rather argue than eat and rather fight than argue. They were born and raised in San Francisco, sons of an electrician, and educated in pre-med and psychology at the University of California.

To headline writers, they're the flying Finns (after spiriting away the plane); the fighting Finns (both have scrapped with law officers); the filing Finns (with an eye toward their many lawsuits) and the thin Finns (after two long hunger strikes in prison).

To their supporters, the Finns are heroes battling for every little guy who feels he's been pushed around by a vast, impersonal bureaucracy.

To their detractors, they're hot-headed headline hunters.

Let's start with the day the Finns flew their plane out of the tiny sunset school yard in Bakersfield, Calif. — where it had been used as a monument and children's playroom.

They had only 1,200 feet of makeshift runway. The two-engine C46A transport requires 1,400 feet. The Finns had never flown a C46, could not hire a pilot because of risk—so they had to fly it out themselves.

A crowd made bets on the Finns' chances for survival as George fired the engines. The plane lurched forward.

If it didn't reach 60 m.p.h. by the halfway mark it wouldn't have speed to clear the runway, and Charles was to yell, "Stop."

Charles yelled. And the old transport, tail wagging and flaps creaking, lumbered skyward like a winged elephant. It turned out Charles yelled, "Stop" but George thought he said "Go!" It was a shaky but appropriate beginning.

On July 3, 1952, while the Finns outfitted the plane, the government sued for $198,000—claiming the district had no right to resell a surplus plane for flying purposes.

The Finns cited an obscure regulation permitting resale with no restrictions three years after the government disposes of a plane.

On Jan. 18, 1953, the Finns snatched — the government says "stole" and the twins say "liberated" — the plane. They flew it across Death Valley to an abandoned airstrip near Tonopah, Nev. Now they were fugitives.

The FBI sent a carload of agents to reclaim plane and Finns.

Charlie Finn saw a thin, white dust cloud over the highway and knew what was coming. Strapping on six-gun and holster, he stood on the wing, like a defiant John Wayne.

"Get off the plane. You're under arrest," the FBI men told Charlie.

"Where's your warrant?" said Charlie.

It turned out the warrant was in Los Angeles. The FBI gazed uneasily at the newsmen and photographers watching — and drove off. m

The next morning, four FBI cars—loaded with shotguns, tear gas and a battering ram—roared up.

The agents happily waved the warrant—and arrested the wrong Finn. The FBI didn't learn its mistake until George's fingerprints were taken in Las Vegas. The warrant was for Charlie, who had left.

The plane was flown to Nellis Air Force Base, Nev., and held there.

Both Finns finally were booked. But a grand jury refused to indict them, after the key prosecution witness admitted he couldn't identify the Finn who snatched the plane.

A judge ruled the plane was the Finns' property—and the government appealed.

Meanwhile, the Finns—desperate yet unable to get their plane back—made what they now concede was a tactical error.

The Finns were charged with assaulting, threatening and impeding a federal officer in performance of duty.

"He wasn't assaulted and wasn't on duty," retorted George. "He was at lunch." Result: one-year terms, and they were sent to the federal prison at St. Joseph, Mo. Next: a protest hunger strike—and Los Angeles newspapers started a crusade to win bail pending appeal.

The outcry succeeded. A federal judge ordered them released on the 23rd of their fast. Their weight had dropped from about 135 pounds apiece to slightly above 100.

Their appeal failed. They were rejailed. They renewed their fast nd officials kept the them alive by force-feeding them molasses, wheat germ oil and sugared milk for 35 days.

The newspaper clamor resumed. The late Sen. William Langer of North Dakota asked the Finns to end their fast, promising them a congressional investigation. The Finns agreed.

In August 1955, they were released on an unsolicited parole after 114 days of imprisonment. The prison was happy to see them go.

Langer kept his word. His Constitutional Rights subcommittee alleged the Finns had been deprived of their lawful rights. The senator also nursed a bill through Congress paving the way for the Finns' lawsuit against the government.

Since then, from court to court, the brothers have waged a confusing round of legal battles. And the Finns, who didn't know a habeas corpus from a helicopter when it all started, won a surprising number of legal decisions.

n Jan. 18, 1957, the weary Justice Department relinquished any further claim to the plane. It was sold at a sheriff's sale for $3,500.

The Finns simply couldn't raise the money to buy it, having exhausted their savings in court fights. They think it now is being flown by an airline in South America.

The Finns have become leaders of a rather hazily defined movement in Los Angeles, a city with hazily defined movements galore.

The president of a dog food company gave them several thousand dollars to continue their fight against the government. Their landlady hasn't charged them a cent's rent for the last seven years ("We'll pay everybody back when we win our case," George declares) and a total stranger once lent them a car.

They deny they hate authority and say what they're really fighting is the capricious use of authority by officialdom.

Several times they've run afoul of police in Los Angeles and elsewhere because they were unable to resist that universal impulse to tell off a cop.

Police stopped George, charging him with lacking a valid auto registration and proper illumination of his license plate and having one headlight out of operation. George noticed one tail light on the police car was not working. He refused to sign the citation until the driver submitted to a citizen's arrest. The patrolmen called the sergeant at the police station.

The sergeant cruised to the scene in a new police car—and George noticed the auto had no license plates. He threatened to make a citizen's arrest of the sergeant. And so it went . . . all the way to the police station and into court.

They made headlines anew last August when marshals, seeking George for a court session, mistakenly nabbed Charles. He fought a gang of them down a corridor, down three floors in an elevator, and into the lobby. Next day, when the marshals caught up with George, there was—you guessed it—a duplicate battle over the same course. Result: a new cause for litigation.

Qualities That Make Best Statesman, Social Worker

By RONALD J. BUTLER

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—What quality makes the best statesman, business manager, social worker or educator?

According to psychologist Hans Hahn, it's empathy, a factor long recognized in literature and art but only recently the subject of concentrated scientific research.

Empathy, Hahn says, is the degree of feeling one man has for the suffering, problems or happiness of another.

And, he adds, he has developed a test which allows him to determine the degree of empathy present in an individual.

He says the test is highly accurate, can't be faked and identifies a personality as well as fingerprints identify a person.

The test records emotions which otherwise might be hidden when the subject is asked to look at pictures ranging from the gruesome and tragic to the meaningless or pleasant.

This is accomplished by equipment similar to that used in lie detectors.

It measures the skin's resistance to slight electric currents and variations in skin temperature. Both are affected by a man's emotional status.

The value of the test, Hahn says, covers a wide range.

He predicts a time soon when it will be possible to pick the type of men best suited as business managers, diplomats, educators or other careers. Or the test may be used in rehabilitating some criminals.

In brief, Hahn says, the test shows whether a man is capable of getting along with—and understanding—other people.

Hahn, who heads the Transylvania College psychology department, became interested in empathy in South America nearly 25 years ago.

He saw much severe, widespread poverty and disease in the university town where he taught psychology and anthropology. And he noticed some of his European colleagues were indifferent to the suffering.

Hahn wondered how men with similar academic backgrounds could have such a large difference in their outlook on life.

Then, he says, he decided the difference was in the degree of empathy, and that empathy "must be an innate personality trait independent of intelligence or education."

In 1946 Hahn asked a group of primitive South American Indians to classify as good or bad a group of pictures depicting such scenes as a man spanking his wife and of men spitting on a child.

To the Indians, spanking the wife wasn't bad. "They looked on spanking the women as a good educational method," Hahn says.

But the sight of the men spitting on the child evoked indignation, and by studying other, similar reactions, Hahn decided primitives have as much empathy as anyone else.

FOREIGNER VIEWS AMERICA

What Exchange Students Think

Editor's Note—There are 50,000 foreign students in America but some of the lessons they are learning are bitter ones. A Korean, who was a journalism student here, offers some valuable advice.

By CHOON WHA LEE

Written for The Associated Press

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Wherever he saw an "apartment for rent" sign, the African student knocked. The answer never changed: no vacancy.

An Arab, in America studying political science, wrote a letter to a newspaper disagreeing with its claim that Arab nationalism and communism were identical. A few weeks later the student received a letter from the State Department telling him to cease all such political activities or face deportation.

These are the bitter lessons that some of the 50,000 foreign students in the United States are learning.

Millions of dollars are being spent to send these students here from overseas. It will all be wasted if instead of learning democracy they find bigotry and censorship that will make them enemies instead of friends of the United States when they return home. America can do better.

INSTANCES

In many instances it has. A survey by an Indian journalism student at Syracuse University where I also studied, Saaduddeen M. Saleem, found that what impressed foreign students most about Americans was their friendliness.

Next in order of approval were the Americans' high standard of living, opportunities, informality of the people, dignity of labor, individualism, equality of men and women and the ability of their professors.

In describing Americans they used such words as "hardworking," "unassuming," "resourceful," "honest," "frank."

America, they say, is young, dynamic, technologically advanced.

But for some it can be lonely, frustrating, humiliating.

For instance, the African student I mentioned. It took him thre[illegible]s to get an apartment. The [illegible] was too much. For the rest of the year he lived a completely hermitic life, not going out to one restaurant or theater.

And he was no ordinary student. He was a government employe and $6,500 had been spent on him for this one year of training.

Another African student, newly arrived in Evanston, Ill., couldn't get a haircut for a month until he walked into a Negro barbershop.

And the Arab. Like many, he looked upon America with a high mystic expectation, the leader of the free world and guardian of democracy where freedom of the press was guaranteed by the Constitution. The incident with the State Department was the biggest disappointment of his stay here.

Sometimes American democracy appears more like hypocrisy.

Certainly Americans are friendly. But at times their ignorance of the rest of the world is dismaying to the foreign student and their attitude toward the overseas visitor, while well intentioned, often seems patronizing.

Why should Americans be concerned about the impressions foreign students have of America?

For one reason, many of the students will some day be in the high echelons of their respective countries. The attitudes they assume toward America today may determine if their attitudes will be favorable to American interests tomorrow when they are leaders.

Another point is that America today needs and wants to be understood in its true light. This is why millions of dollars are spent abroad each year to inform the people of the world about what America and Americans are really like.

And what group of foreigners would one expect to understand Americans better and more sympathetically than the foreign students who live and learn in this country?

Foreign students can have better impressions of America if Americans let them see the country and people from within, not from without. It is through their wholesome experience and full participation in daily life that American ideals will become worthy and valuable.

One of the very best ways to show the foreign student the American way of life is to invite him into your home. It gives him a chance to know Americans more closely and above all, it gives him the rare opportunity to enjoy the family atmosphere all students miss.

Here are some dos and don'ts. Understanding and tactfulness are the rules of thumb.

During the meal, restrain yourself from asking him too many questions to satisfy your curiosity. No sooner than he lifts a fork to enjoy the home-cooked meal than the host and hostess bombard him with questions.

It's a good idea to know beforehand if your guest's religion permits him to eat meat.

Don't ask him questions that may offend him. Never ask, for example, "Do you have elephants in your country?" "Do you have trains, planes and supermarkets like ours?" One student said such questions sounded as an insult intended to show advanced American culture. "They think we live in the stone age," he said.

Marriage customs are an interesting subject of conversation but never start the conversation by saying "Do you really buy a wife?" This will never do.

In the academic year 1958-59 there were 47,245 foreign students in the United States compared with 34,232 in 1955. The number is increasing each year.

Yet too often, the newcomers are simply dumped out at airports and harbors. From there they are on their own and become easy victims of shocks and frustrations.

When in Rome do as the Romans do, but how do you begin?

The foreign students should undergo preliminary orientation in their own countries and this is already being done in Korea, Formosa and South Viet Nam.

The institute of international education provides orientation programs at American campuses. The Methodist Church has a similar program as does the International Cooperation Administration in Washington.

Experience proves that the oriented student faces the intricacies of life more calmly and is better able to mix with and understand the American more sympathetically and objectively.

Methodist Youth To Collect For UNICEF Locally

The Methodist youth of the Twin Cities will collect for UNICEF on Monday night from 6:00 to 8:30.

The contributions to the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund will help fight disease, provide milk, establish rural health centers, and give emergency aid to the less fortunate people in other countries, said drive officials.

Motto of the drive is, "Not trick or treat, but pennies for UNICEF."

BISHOP GALLOWAY

Bishop Slated To Appear At Local Church

The San Antonio area bishop of the Methodist Church, Paul V. Galloway, will be speaker this morning at services at the First Methodist Church of Monroe.

Bishop Galloway's father, J. J. Galloway, served as a minister in the North Arkansas Conference. The bishop received his training at Hendrix Methodist College in Conway, Ark., Southern Methodist University, University of Chicago, and Yale Divinity School.

He has honorary degrees from both Hendrix and Southern Methodist University. In 1958 he went on a preaching mission on Norway. He served as delegate to the General Conference last year, and chairman of the program committee for this quadrennium.

He was elected bishop at the Jurisdictional Conference in San Antonio last June, and was assigned to the San Antonio area of the church.

Bazaar Slated For Funds To Benefit School

Turkey dinners, booths and games will be featured at St. Matthew's church annual Bazaar on Thursday, November 10. Purpose of the Bazaar is to help pay for electronic and other equipment purchased for classes in the junior-senior high school.

Ladies from the church of Jesus the Good Shepherd, Our Lady of Fatima and St. Joseph will work with St. Matthew's on the bazaar.

Mrs. H. G. Cooper, general chairman said that turkey dinners will be served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and again for supper from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m.

"Delicious homemade Gumbo also will be served from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. Take out dinners will be available at both the noon and evening meals," Mrs. Cooper pointed out.

FANCY WORK

Booths featuring fancy work, homemade candies, hamburgers, hot dogs, fish pond, cake, coffee, games for youngsters and a dance for teenagers will be located in the school gymnasium.

Co-chairmen from other churches are Mrs. Fred Rodwig of Our Lady of Fatima, Mrs. E. P. Machnik, St. Joseph's and Mrs. Sam LaSuzzo, Jesus the Good Shepherd.

Ticket committee members are Mrs. Paul Goldman, Mrs. William Burroughs, Mrs. Vincent Anzalone and Mrs. A. M. Rizzo.

Episcopal Youth Of Louisiana In Annual Sessions

The Episcopal youth of the Diocese of Louisiana today will wind up a two-day session at St. Mark's Church, Shreveport, of the third annual event known as "Operation Glue."

Yesterday's activities included an afternoon at the State Fair, and an evening dance at Municipal Auditorium.

After Holy Communion and a "Bon Voyage Party" this morning, special trains and buses will return the visitors home.

Clara Limbooker of Lake Charles is president of the group, the Rev. David Comegys Jr., of St. Paul's Church, Shreveport, is the diocesan director of youth, Bucky Allen of Shreveport is vice president and Ann Hemphill of Monroe is secretary of the group.

Guest Ministers Will Appear At Services Today

In the absence of the minister of the Gordon Avenue Methodist Church, the Rev. W. M. Allen, who is confined to St. Francis Hospital as a result of surgery, the Rev. Charles Dorson of Wesley Foundation Student Center at Northeast State College, will deliver the message at morning worship service today.

The Rev. Charles Strong of Bonita Methodist Church will deliver the evening service message today. Also present at evening worship services will be the Rev. William D. Tyndall of Louisiana Training Institute, and several boys who will be featured in singing.

HIGHLAND BAPTIST CHURCH

REV. WAYNE GRAY

Rev. W. Gray Guest Pastor For Services

Members of the Memorial Presbyterian Church, North 4th at Mill Street, West Monroe, will hear a series of sermons on evangelism this week.

The occasion is the 14th anniversary of its chartering as a church. The guest minister is the Rev. Wayne W. Gray, pastor of the Covenant Presbyterian church, Monroe.

Services will be at 7:30 p.m. each day, Sunday through Thursday.

SELECTION

At the close of the 11:00 a.m. services today, the Congregation will select a nominating committee with the responsibility of guiding it in the selection of additional elders and deacons for a three-year term. The pastor, Rev. Hugh E. Bradshaw, will preach on "Mindful of Memorial's Mission."

THE TWO VOIGHTS

Voights Arrange Special Programs For Youngsters

A fall roundup program at the College Town Assembly of God Church, 308 South McGuire, will feature a broad array of attractions for the younger set.

Pastor, the Rev. E. J. Graves, said beginning this evening and extending through November 4th, the nationally known "kids evangelists," Aunt Gladys and Uncle Fred Voight, will appear nightly from 7 to 8:30

The evangelists, whose work has taken them to some of the largest churches and camp meetings, will offer programs, officials said, that will be of interest to persons from five to 86 years of age.

Included among the features will be the March of Nations, children's band, Bible contests, interesting skits, pianologues, gospel fishing, technicolor Bible pictures, dramatized stories, character stories, object lessons, old time preaching, Bible zoology, and the Great Mystery Cave.

The Voights are from Springfield, Mo.

Missionary Due In Pulpit Here

The Rev. Mel Rutter, a veteran missionary on leave from Peru, will conduct the morning and evening services at Victory Baptist Church today.

The church is located at South 10th and Pecan in Monroe.

New Facility Placed In Use For Services

Today members of the Highland Baptist Church, 1509 Arkansas Road, West Monroe, will worship in a new sanctuary with a seating capacity of 500.

Foundation for an additional two story educational unit and a permanent sanctuary was laid in January of this year.

The beginnings of the Highland Baptist Church were on the second Sunday in October, 1955, when it was formed as a mission in a tent revival under the leadership of district secretary, the Rev. A. L. New, and sponsored by churches of the Trenton Baptist Association, West Monroe.

After revival meeting Wednesday night prayer services were held at the homes of A. F. Cooper and C. E. Jordan. After this an incomplete building was placed in use.

Official organization of the church with 42 charter members was on May 28, 1956. Rev. Filer J. Seal became its pastor on June 12 of that year. A church site was purchased for $16,500 and a building program launched, erecting a chapel and 14 Sunday School rooms. Services were held in the building May 15, 1957, and more facilities were added the following year.

There have been 458 accessions to the church in its history. Sunday school enrollment is 419 and Training Union, 119. Church Property is valued at $120,000.

New Baptist Church Here Is Organized

The Baptist Tabernacle, 511 Louisville Ave., an idependent-fundamental church was organized October 19. The Rev. Willard Fuller is pastor. The new church is independent of all denominations and conventions, officials said.

In addition to pastor, the church has as its officers: Leo Phillips, chairman of deacons; Mrs. Betty Owen, clerk; Elton Wood, superintendent of Sunday School; Fred Takewell, chairman of ushers, and Marvin Owen, treasurer.

The commencing mission endeavor of the new church will be the complete support of one missionary in Japan. All mission support will be made directly to the missionary and not to any church officials said.

The pastor is a native of Louisiana, having received his theological degree from the New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary. He received his college training at the Northwestern State College in Natchitoches.

Services are at 9:45 and 6:30 each Sunday and at 7:00 each Wednesday.

Evangelist Jimmie Sims of West Monroe will be guest speaker at services this morning, and the Rev. Fuller will be in charge of evening services.

BISHOP GALLOWAY

Bishop Slated To Appear At Local Church

The San Antonio area bishop of the Methodist Church, Paul V. Galloway, will be speaker this morning at services at the First Methodist Church of Monroe.

Bishop Galloway's father, J. J. Galloway, served as a minister in the North Arkansas Conference. The bishop received his training at Hendrix Methodist College in Conway, Ark., Southern Methodist University, University of Chicago, and Yale Divinity School.

He has honorary degrees from both Hendrix and Southern Methodist University. In 1953 he went on a preaching mission on Norway. He served as delegate to the General Conference last year, and chairman of the program committee for this quadrennium.

He was elected bishop at the Jurisdictional Conference in San Antonio last June, and was assigned to the San Antonio area of the church.

Bazaar Slated For Funds To Benefit School

Turkey dinners, booths and games will be featured at St. Matthew's church annual Bazaar on Thursday, November 10. Purpose of the Bazaar is to help pay for electronic and other equipment purchased for classes in the junior-senior high school.

Ladies from the church of Jesus the Good Shepherd, Our Lady of Fatima and St. Joseph will work with St. Matthew's on the bazaar.

Mrs. H. G. Cooper, general chairman said that turkey dinners will be served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and again for supper from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m.

"Delicious homemade Gumbo also will be served from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. Take out dinners will be available at both the noon and evening meals," Mrs. Cooper pointed out.

FANCY WORK

Booths featuring fancy work, homemade candies, hamburgers, hot dogs, fish pond, cake, coffee, games for youngsters and a dance for teenagers will be located in the school gymnasium.

Co-chairmen from other churches are Mrs. Fred Rodwig of Our Lady of Fatima, Mrs. E. P. Machnik, St. Joseph's and Mrs. Sam LaSuzzo, Jesus the Good Shepherd.

Ticket committee members are Mrs. Paul Goldman, Mrs. William Burroughs, Mrs. Vincent Anzalone and Mrs. A. M. Rizzo.

Episcopal Youth Of Louisiana In Annual Sessions

The Episcopal youth of the Diocese of Louisiana today will wind up a two-day session at St. Mark's Church, Shreveport, of the third annual event known as "Operation Glue."

Yesterday's activities included an afternoon at the State Fair, and an evening dance at Municipal Auditorium.

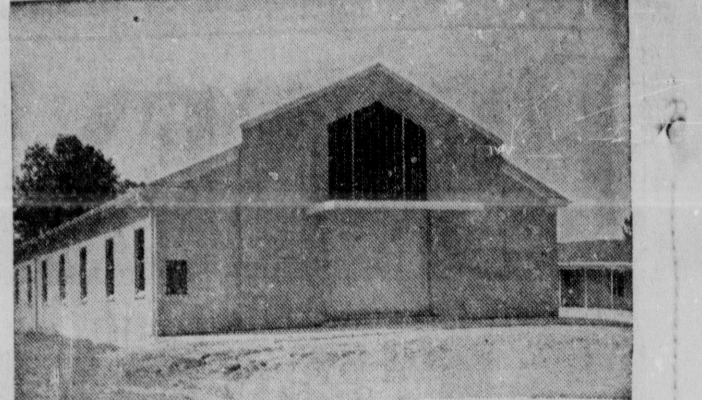
After Holy Communion and a "Bon Voyage Party" this morning, special trains and buses will return the visitors home.

Clara Limbooker of Lake Charles is president of the group, the Rev. David Comegys Jr., of St. Paul's Church, Shreveport, is the diocesan director of youth, Bucky Allen of Shreveport is vice president and Ann Hemphill of Monroe is secretary of the group.

Guest Ministers Will Appear At Services Today

In the absence of the minister of the Gordon Avenue Methodist Church, the Rev. W. M. Allen, who is confined to St. Francis Hospital as a result of surgery, the Rev. Charles Dorson of Wesley Foundation Student Center at Northeast State College, will deliver the message at morning worship service today.

The Rev. Charles Strong of Bonita Methodist Church will deliver the evening service message today. Also present at evening worship services will be the Rev.



HIGHLAND BAPTIST CHURCH

REV. WAYNE GRAY

Rev. W. Gray Guest Pastor For Services

Members of the Memorial Presbyterian Church, North 4th at Mill Street, West Monroe, will hear a series of sermons on evangelism this week.

The occasion is the 14th anniversary of its chartering as a church. The guest minister is the Rev. Wayne W. Gray, pastor of the Covenant Presbyterian church, Monroe.

Services will be at 7:30 p.m. each day, Sunday through Thursday.

SELECTION

At the close of the 11:00 a.m. services today, the Congregation will select a nominating committee with the responsibility of guiding it in the selection of additional elders and deacons for a three-year term. The pastor, Rev. Hugh E. Bradshaw, will preach on "Mindful of Memorial's Mission."

THE TWO VOIGHTS

Voights Arrange Special Programs For Youngsters

A fall roundup program at the College Town Assembly of God Church, 308 South McGuire, will feature a broad array of attractions for the younger set.

Pastor, the Rev. E. J. Graves, said beginning this evening and extending through November 4th, the nationally known "kids evangelists," Aunt Gladys and Uncle Fred Voight, will appear nightly from 7 to 8:30

The evangelists, whose work has taken them to some of the largest churches and camp meetings, will offer programs, officials said, that will be of interest to persons from five to 86 years of age.

Included among the features will be the March of Nations, children's band, Bible contests, interesting skits, pianologues, gospel fishing, technicolor Bible pictures, dramatized stories, character stories, object lessons, old time preaching, Bible zoology, and the Great Mystery Cave.

The Voights are from Springfield, Mo.

Missionary Due In Pulpit Here

The Rev. Mel Rutter, a veteran missionary on leave from Peru, will conduct the morning and evening services at Victory Baptist Church today.

The church is located at South 10th and Pecan in Monroe.

William D. Tyndall of Louisiana Training Institute, and several boys who will be featured in singing.

New Facility Placed In Use For Services

Today members of the Highland Baptist Church, 1509 Arkansas Road, West Monroe, will worship in a new sanctuary with a seating capacity of 500.

Foundation for an additional two story educational unit and a permanent sanctuary was laid in January of this year.

The beginnings of the Highland Baptist Church were on the second Sunday in October, 1955, when it was formed as a mission in a tent revival under the leadership of district secretary, the Rev. A. L. New, and sponsored by churches of the Trenton Baptist Association, West Monroe.

After revival meeting Wednesday night prayer services were held at the homes of A. F. Cooper and C. E. Jordan. After this an incomplete building was placed in use.

Official organization of the church with 42 charter members was on May 28, 1956. Rev. Filer J. Seal became its pastor on June 12 of that year. A church site was purchased for $16,500 and a building program launched, erecting a chapel and 14 Sunday School rooms. Services were held in the building May 15, 1957, and more facilities were added the following year.

There have been 458 accessions to the church in its history. Sunday school enrollment is 419 and Training Union, 119. Church Property is valued at $120,000.

Members of the building committee are J. E. Smith, construction superintendent and committee chairman; H. L. King, A. B. Walker, and A. F. Cooper.

New Baptist Church Here Is Organized

The Baptist Tabernacle. 511 Louisville Ave., an idependent-fundamental church was organized October 19. The Rev. Willard Fuller is pastor. The new church is independent of all denominations and conventions, officials said.

In addition to pastor, the church has as its officers: Leo Phillips, chairman of deacons; Mrs. Betty Owen, clerk; Elton Wood, superintendent of Sunday School; Fred Takewell, chairman of ushers, and Marvin Owen, treasurer.

The commencing mission endeavor of the new church will be the complete support of one missionary in Japan. All mission support will be made directly to the missionary and not to any church officials said.

The pastor is a native of Louisiana, having received his theological degree from the New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary. He received his college training at the Northwestern State College in Natchitoches.

Services are at 9:45 and 6:30 each Sunday and at 7:00 each Wednesday.

Evangelist Jimmie Sims of West Monroe will be guest speaker at services this morning, and the Rev. Fuller will be in charge of evening services.

AIR DISASTER

'The Crowded Sky' Now At Paramount

"The Crowded Sky," Warner Bros.' action-packed motion picture coming today to the Paramount Theatre, probes the conflicting emotions and inner secrets of the passengers and crews of a trans-continental airliner and a navy jet fighter involved in a sequence of events spelling mounting suspense and high adventure in the skies.

The new Technicolor film is in the tradition of the same studio's "The High and the Mighty," combining warm human drama with breath - taking action sequences.

Dana Andrews, Rhonda Fleming and Efrem Zimbalist, Jr., head the cast of "The Crowded Sky," with John Kerr, Anne Francis, Keenan Wynn, Troy Donahue and Joe Mantell also starred, and Patsy Kelly, Donald May and Louis Quinn appearing in featured roles.

Portraying the captain of the passenger plane, Andrews returns to the screen after a year on Broadway starring in the hit play "Two for the Seesaw." Zimbalist steps out of his detective role in the popular television series "77 Sunset Strip" to play a navy jet pilot, and the sultry, red-haired Miss Fleming is seen as his sensuous and faithless wife.

VERSATILE

The part of Andrews' co-pilot is played by versatile young John Kerr, who distinguished himself on the stage as the winner of both the Donaldson Award and the New York Drama Critics' Award as Best Supporting Actor for his performance in the stage play "Tea and Sympathy." He played the same role in the film version, making his screen debut.

In her first motion picture assignment at Warner Bros, since "Battle Cry," petite, ash-blonde Anne Francis is seen in "The Crowded Sky" as an airline stewardess who has a tempestuous romance with Kerr.

Wagner, Wood Team In Flim At The Jim

Natalie Wood and Robert Wagner, two of the screen's most popular young stars (they're Mr. and Mrs. Wagner in private life) appear together for the first time in Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer's "All the Fine Young Cannibals." Co-starred are Susan Kohner and George Hamilton in his first picture since "Home From the Hill," with another top role played by famed singer Pearl Bailey.

A strong drama of today's youth facing a changing world, "All the Fine Young Cannibals" is as unusual as its title, which stems from the picture's theme of the struggle of four young people to find happiness, a struggle in which they come close to destroying each other as well as innocent bystanders who happen to get in the way.

Chad Bixby (Robert Wagner) is the offspring of a Dallas minister who has shown nothing but indifference to his only son. Salome Davis (Natalie Wood) is the eldest daughter of puritanical parents. Catherine and Tony McDowall (Susan Kohner and George Hamilton) are spoiled children of wealthy parents. In their search to find love, the paths of these four cross, their hopes and fears are revealed, and in their eagerness to grab at life with both hands, no matter what the cost, they are brought to the brink of tragedy.

Pearl Bailey's role is that of Ruby Jones, a blues singer who finds her personal nirvana in alcohol. It is Ruby who gives Chad his big break when he comes to New York by starting him off on his career as a musician in her night club. Not only does Miss Bailey give a gripping dramatic performance, she also sings several popular hits.

Producer Pandro S. Berman has given this Avon Picture for MGM elaborate staging in beautifully decorated New York apartments, luxury hotel suites and a wide variety of interior and exterior scenes filmed in CinemaScope and color. Feminine members of the audience will find much to talk about in the Helen Rose-designed clothes worn by the Misses Wood and Kohner.

AIR DISASTER

'The Crowded Sky' Now At Paramount

"The Crowded Sky," Warner Bros.' action-packed motion picture coming today to the Paramount Theatre, probes the conflicting emotions and inner secrets of the passengers and crews of a trans-continental airliner and a navy jet fighter involved in a sequence of events spelling mounting suspense and high adventure in the skies.

The new Technicolor film is in the tradition of the same studio's "The High and the Mighty," combining warm human drama with breath - taking action sequences.

Dana Andrews, Rhonda Fleming and Efrem Zimbalist, Jr., head the cast of "The Crowded Sky," with John Kerr, Anne Francis, Keenan Wynn, Troy Donahue and Joe Mantell also starred, and Patsy Kelly, Donald May and Louis Quinn appearing in featured roles.

Portraying the captain of the passenger plane, Andrews returns to the screen after a year on Broadway starring in the hit play "Two for the Seesaw." Zimbalist steps out of his detective role in the popular television series "77 Sunset Strip" to play a navy jet pilot, and the sultry, red-haired Miss Fleming is seen as his sensuous and faithless wife.

VERSATILE

The part of Andrews' co-pilot is played by versatile young John Kerr, who distinguished himself on the stage as the winner of both the Donaldson Award and the New York Drama Critics' Award as Best Supporting Actor for his performance in the stage play "Tea and Sympathy." He played the same role in the film version, making his screen debut.

In her first motion picture assignment at Warner Bros, since "Battle Cry," petite, ash-blonde Anne Francis is seen in "The Crowded Sky" as an airline stewardess who has a tempestuous romance with Kerr.

Wagner, Wood Team In Flim At The Jim

Natalie Wood and Robert Wagner, two of the screen's most popular young stars (they're Mr. and Mrs. Wagner in private life) appear together for the first time in Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer's "All the Fine Young Cannibals." Co-starred are Susan Kohner and George Hamilton in his first picture since "Home From the Hill," with another top role played by famed singer Pearl Bailey.

A strong drama of today's youth facing a changing world, "All the Fine Young Cannibals" is as unusual as its title, which stems from the picture's theme of the struggle of four young people to find happiness, a struggle in which they come close to destroying each other as well as innocent bystanders who happen to get in the way.

Chad Bixby (Robert Wagner) is the offspring of a Dallas minister who has shown nothing but indifference to his only son. Salome Davis (Natalie Wood) is the eldest daughter of puritanical parents. Catherine and Tony McDowall (Susan Kohner and George Hamilton) are spoiled children of wealthy parents. In their search to find love, the paths of these four cross, their hopes and fears are revealed, and in their eagerness to grab at life with both hands, no matter what the cost, they are brought to the brink of tragedy.

Pearl Bailey's role is that of Ruby Jones, a blues singer who finds her personal nirvana in alcohol. It is Ruby who gives Chad his big break when he comes to New York by starting him off on his career as a musician in her night club. Not only does Miss Bailey give a gripping dramatic performance, she also sings several popular hits.

Producer Pandro S. Berman has given this Avon Picture for MGM elaborate staging in beautifully decorated New York apartments, luxury hotel suites and a wide variety of interior and exterior scenes filmed in CinemaScope and color. Feminine members of the audience will find much to talk about in the Helen Rose-designed clothes worn by the Misses Wood and Kohner.

Singing Meet Scheduled In West Monroe

The Louisiana State Singing Convention, featuring the appearance of Gov. Jimmie Davis and Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi, is slated for Saturday and Sunday at the West Monroe High School auditorium.

Dave Pearce, Louisiana commissioner of agriculture and president of the convention, said that sessions will begin at 7:30 p.m.. Saturday and will include singing groups and personalities from nine different states.

The convention, which meets twice yearly, is open to the public and sessions will be held Saturday at 7.30 p.m. and Sunday session beginning at 10 a.m. and continuing through 4 p.m., Pearce said.

All major music companies have been invited to attend, Pearce stated, predicting this to be one of the "best" sessions ever.

Song directors and quartets from Texas, Oklahoma, Missouri, Georgia, Arkansas, Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama, as well as Louisiana, will be represented.

Pearce highlighted some of the groups expected at the two - day meet as the Frank Stamps and the Stamps quartet, Dallas; True Tone Quartet and Dwight Brock, Dallas, Tex.; Hale Reeves Quartet, Little Rock, Ark.; Plainsmen quartet, Dallas; National Leep South Quartet, Texas; Albert E. Brumley, Powell, Mo.; Keiffer Vaughan, Lawerenceburg, Tenn.; Mrs. Rbert Vaughan, Milan, Tenn.; and other outstanding song directors and quartets.

A basket luncheon is planned for Sunday, according to Pearce, who urged all ladies attending the meet Sunday to bring a basket lunch.

Pearce said that attendance at this convention is expected to hit the 6,000 mark.

State Report On Illiterate Voters Revised

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The State Board of Registration said Saturday its previous reports on the number of illiterate voters in Louisiana were in error.

In a recent report, the board had listed a total of 33,778 white illiterates and 17,885 Negro illiterates.

The correct number, Cutrer said, are 25,498 white illiterates, or 2.2 per cent of the total, and 16,743 Negro illiterates, or 1.4 per cent of the total.

Cutrer said the error was caused by a report from Jefferson Davis Parish which he said listed 8,935 white illiterates and 1,400 Negro illiterates, when the correct totals should have been 660 white illiterates and 259 Negro illiterates.

Nixon Endorsed By Newspaper In New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Times-Picayune endorsed the Republican presidential ticket headed by Richard M. Nixon Saturday.

In a front page editorial in Sunday's edition, The Times-Picayune called for Nixon's promotion to the presidency because of his experience in handling international affairs.

It was the first time since the War Between the States that the newspaper endorsed a Republican.

The paper's afternoon affiliate, The New Orleans States-Item, endorsed the Republican ticket earlier Saturday.

"From Louisiana point of view, the records of Mr. Nixon and his Democratic opponent, Sen. John F. Kennedy, are in obvious contrast," the editorial said.

"Mr. Nixon voted to give Louisiana title to its tidelands—the tremendously valuable submerged lands off the state's coast. Mr. Kennedy voted against giving the states title to these lands."

The editorial also cited Kennedy's record in voting against the oil depletion allowance. Nixon has taken the position that the allowance is beneficial.

The editorial discounted the prospects of success for the slate of unpledged electors named by the States Rights party.

Neither the Times Picayune nor the States endorsed a candidate in 1956. The Item, which was merged with the States in 1958, backed Democratic candidate Adlai E. Stevenson in the last presidential campaign.

Soviet Spies With Secret Data Seized

BONN, Germany (UPI)—West Germany announced Saturday that a Socialist member of Parliament with access to NATO missile secrets has been arrested on charges of spying for the Communists.

The Interior Ministry said Alfred Frenzel, 61, deputy from Bavavia and members of the parliamentary defense committee, was arrested Friday shortly after he was seen passing secret documents to two "agents of an eastern intelligence service."

AGENTS ARRESTED

The two alleged Red agents were arrested as one of them tried to get away on a trip to deliver the secret materials to his employers, official sources disclosed.

Frenzel was arrested in the Parliament building where he had just heard Chancellor Konrad Adenauer tell a meeting of refugees that "never in centuries has freedom been so endangered as now."

As a member of the defense committee, Frenzel had access to secret data concerning the arming of the West German bundeswehr with missiles—including the 700-mile range Matador missile, as well as the Mace and Nike-Hercules rockets.

Among the most important information revealed to the committee were sections of NATO's "MC-70" defense program applying to the West German forces MC-70—the NATO build-up program through 1963—has been called the Atlantic alliance's "most secret document."

Frenzel would have known how bundeswehr forces were to be deployed in case of enemy attack. It was thought likely that he also might have known the approximate location of the nuclear warheads which could be provided for the rockets in event of war.

Frenzel's arrest occurred only a few hours after the Interior Ministry announced the arrest earlier this week of eight persons it said were Communist spies assigned to gather information about the Defense Ministry and Western Allied offices in Bonn.

One of the group was a woman secretary employed in the Ministry of Defense.

Informed sources said that Frenzel also was suspected of having spied on his own Social Democratic Party.

It was recalled that the Communist East German newspaper Neues Deutschland published details of a closed socialist meeting last June before they were known in Bonn. At the meeting, the party decided to change its anti-NATO policy.

Four Injured In 2 Local Auto Mishaps

Four persons were injured in two local automobile accidents yesterday, as dampened streets caused a rash of minor car mishaps in the Twin Cities.

Three persons were injured, one possibly seriously, early last night when a small foreign made car and another auto collided at the intersection of North 7th and Herman Streets in West Monroe.

Sandra Farmer, 16, 2307 Trenton St., West Monroe, was admitted to the St Francis Hospital after being involved in the mishap. She was reportedly suffering from head injuries, and attendants late last night were awaiting X-ray reports to determine the extent of her injuries.

James Wesley Farmer, 30, a cousin of Miss Farmer was driving the small car which hit an auto driven by Aubrey L. Williams, 56, Negro, 109 Lee St., West Monroe. Williams' wife, Katie Williams, who was a passenger in the auto received minor head injuries and was released from the hospital after receiving first aid treatment.

Farmer suffered a cut on his chin and complained of his back and neck hurting, but was not believed in serious condition.

Williams was given a ticket for reckless driving causing the accident, police said. According to reports the cars were meeting each other on North 7th Street when Williams attempted to make a left turn and moved into the path of the foreign car. Both vehicles were heavily damaged.

In the second accident, Gary David Wall, 12 North 3rd St., West Monroe, was injured about 7 p.m. yesterday when his auto apparently went out of control and overturned at the intersection of Smith Street and the Pine Ridge Road, just south of the West Monroe city limits.

Wall was rushed, unconscious to the St. Francis Hospital where he recieved first aid treatment and was admitted. The extent of his injuries were not known late last night, but were not believed serious. Troop F, Louisiana state police, investigated the mishap.

FROM CONGO

Mobutu Pledges To Bar Soviets

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Col. Joesph Mobutu said Saturday he never will permit the return of Soviet influence to the Congo so long as he remains alive.

The 30-year-old army leader told The Associated Press he would not tolerate any challenge to his will either from the United Nations or from the suspended Congolese Parliament.

"My will is the supreme power in the Congo," he said. "My army obeys my orders and is powerful enough to carry them out."

A few hours earlier, a detachment of Mobutu's army tried to arrest and expel Associated Press correspondent Michael Goldsmith but was forestalled by a show of U.N. force. U.N. mission chief Rajeshwar Dayal said "we cannot permit such arbitrary procedures" and 60 Canadian, Ghanaian and Indonesian troops rescued Goldsmith from his hotel room after he had been besieged for more than an hour.

Mobutu rescinded the expulsion order after a 90-minute meeting in his fortified encampment with Goldsmith and Associated Press correspondent Andrew Borowiec.

"Let's forget the past," the bearded colonel said, shaking hands with the two reporters.

He told them he objected to their reports describing his regime as shaky. He dismissed the rumbling revolt in his army as unimportant and said he had failed to take rigorous action against mutinous troops "to avoid unnecessary bloodshed."

He gave the same explanation for his failure to arrest ex-Premier Patrice Lumumba, who still lives in the official prime minster's residence under U.N. protection.

Goldsmith and Borowiec went to Mobutu's camp accompanied by U.S. Consul Frank Carlucci but without any U.N. escort. There Mobutu explained his grievances against the foreign press in general and the AP in particular.

He cited articles in Belgian newspapers which asserted that control of his Sept. 14 coupe was slipping out of his hands. He also complained about eyewitness reports of misbehavior by his soldiers during their four-day occupation of Leopoldville's African city.

Mobutu withdrew his troops from the city after Dayal threatened to disarm them. All newsmen in Leopoldville had observed their rough and undisciplined treatment of the inhabitants during a four-day rampage in which civilians were beaten, stripped and robbed by frequently drunk soldiers.

Complete calm has returned to the African city since the army withdrew two days ago.

"This calm is due to the fact that my men seized the arms of disorderly elements," Mobutu declared.

Mobutu claimed any report suggesting he might not be in full control of the situation was "sabotage" of his effort to bring order to the Congo.

"It is I who commands here," he declared, waving his clenched fist.

Two unidentified Belgian advisers sitting in a corner of the room nodded their heads in silent agreement.

Mobutu acknowledged he is in open conflict with the United Nations over return to parliamentary rule. Dayal has been pressing for convocation of the pro-Lumumba Parliament which Mobutu suspended immediately after his coup.

Mobutu indicated again that the provisional government of college graduates he appointed to run the affairs of the nation will not continue in office after the end of the year.

Asked how he would continue his pro-Western regime in the new year, Mobutu said "I have specific plans" but declined to go into details.

He said he might eventually permit return to the Congo of small diplomatic missions from the Soviet Union and its satellites. He ejected Communist diplomats and the hundreds of Soviet bloc "advisers" brought in by Lumumba.

Speaking explicitly of their advisers, he said "Never as long as I am alive will they come back. I can promise you that. If I am dead perhaps, but as long as I live it is I who gives the orders here."

Soviets Protest U.S. Arrest Of Melekh As Spy

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia told the United States Saturday night that the Soviet Union "will not tolerate provocations with regard to its citizens, including those who work at the United Nations."

The warning came in a commentary on the arrest of Igor Melekh, a Soviet citizen and U.N. employe, by FBI agents in New York Thursday. He is being held, along with Willie Hirsch, a German-born Free-lance artist, on charges of espionage.

Izvestia claimed there was no foundation to the spy charges and said the Americans had no right to arrest him since he enjoyed diplomatic immunity as a U.N. employe.

Singing Meet Scheduled In West Monroe

The Louisiana State Singing Convention, featuring the appearance of Gov. Jimmie Davis and Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi, is slated for Saturday and Sunday at the West Monroe High School auditorium.

Dave Pearce, Louisiana commissioner of agriculture and president of the convention, said that sessions will begin at 7:30 p.m.. Saturday and will include singing groups and personalities from nine different states.

The convention, which meets twice yearly, is open to the public and sessions will be held Saturday at 7.30 p.m. and Sunday session beginning at 10 a.m. and continuing through 4 p.m., Pearce said.

All major music companies have been invited to attend, Pearce stated, predicting this to be one of the "best" sessions ever.

Song directors and quartets from Texas, Oklahoma, Missouri, Georgia, Arkansas, Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama, as well as Louisiana, will be represented.

Pearce highlighted some of the groups expected at the two - day meet as the Frank Stamps and the Stamps quartet, Dallas; True Tone Quartet and Dwight Brock, Dallas, Tex.; Hale Reeves Quartet, Little Rock, Ark.; Plainsmen quartet, Dallas; National Deep South Quartet, Texas; Albert E. Brumley, Powell, Mo.; Keiffer Vaughan, Lawerenceburg, Tenn.; Mrs. Rbert Vaughan, Milan, Tenn.; and other outstanding song directors and quartets.

A basket luncheon is planned for Sunday, according to Pearce, who urged all ladies attending the meet Sunday to bring a basket lunch.

Pearce said that attendance at this convention is expected to hit the 6,000 mark.

State Report On Illiterate Voters Revised

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The State Board of Registration said Saturday its previous reports on the number of illiterate voters in Louisiana were in error.

In a recent report, the board had listed a total of 33,778 white illiterates and 17,885 Negro illiterates.

The correct number, Cutrer said, are 25,498 white illiterates, or 2.2 per cent of the total, and 16,743 Negro illiterates, or 1.4 per cent of the total.

Cutrer said the error was caused by a report from Jefferson Davis Parish which he said listed 8,935 white illiterates and 1,400 Negro illiterates, when the correct totals should have been 660 white illiterates and 259 Negro illiterates.

Nixon Endorsed By Newspaper In New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Times-Picayune endorsed the Republican presidential ticket headed by Richard M. Nixon Saturday.

In a front page editorial in Sunday's edition, The Times-Picayune called for Nixon's promotion to the presidency because of his experience in handling international affairs.

It was the first time since the War Between the States that the newspaper endorsed a Republican.

The paper's afternoon affiliate, The New Orleans States-Item, endorsed the Republican ticket earlier Saturday.

"From Louisiana point of view, the records of Mr. Nixon and his Democratic opponent, Sen. John F. Kennedy, are in obvious contrast," the editorial said.

"Mr. Nixon voted to give Louisiana title to its tidelands—the tremendously valuable submerged lands off the state's coast. Mr. Kennedy voted against giving the states title to these lands."

The editorial also cited Kennedy's record in voting against the oil depletion allowance. Nixon has taken the position that the allowance is beneficial.

Neither the Times Picayune nor the States endorsed a candidate in 1956. The Item, which was merged with the States in 1958, backed Democratic candidate Adlai E. Stevenson in the last presidential campaign.

Soviet Spies With Secret Data Seized

BONN, Germany (UPI)—West Germany announced Saturday that a Socialist member of Parliament with access to NATO missile secrets has been arrested on charges of spying for the Communists.

The Interior Ministry said Alfred Frenzel, 61, deputy from Bavavia and members of the parliamentary defense committee, was arrested Friday shortly after he was seen passing secret documents to two "agents of an eastern intelligence service."

AGENTS ARRESTED

The two alleged Red agents were arrested as one of them tried to get away on a trip to deliver the secret materials to his employers, official sources disclosed.

Frenzel was arrested in the Parliament building where he had just heard Chancellor Konrad Adenauer tell a meeting of refugees that "never in centuries has freedom been so endangered as now."

As a member of the defense committee, Frenzel had access to secret data concerning the arming of the West German bundeswehr with missiles—including the 700-mile range Matador missile, as well as the Mace and Nike-Hercules rockets.

Among the most important information revealed to the committee were sections of NATO's "MC-70" defense program applying to the West German forces MC-70—the NATO build - up program through 1963—has been called the Atlantic alliance's "most secret document."

Frenzel would have known how bundeswehr forces were to be deployed in case of enemy attack. It was thought likely that he also might have known the approximate location of the nuclear warheads which could be provided for the rockets in event of war.

Frenzel's arrest occurred only a few hours after the Interior Ministry announced the arrest earlier this week of eight persons it said were Communist spies assigned to gather information about the Defense Ministry and Western Allied offices in Bonn.

One of the group was a woman secretary employed in the Ministry of Defense.

Informed sources said that Frenzel also was suspected of having spied on his own Social Democratic Party.

It was recalled that the Communist East German newspaper Neues Deutschland published details of a closed socialist meeting last June before they were known in Bonn. At the meeting, the party decided to change its anti-NATO policy.

Four Injured In 2 Local Auto Mishaps

Four persons were injured in two local automobile accidents yesterday, as dampened streets caused a rash of minor car mishaps in the Twin Cities.

Three persons were injured, one possibly seriously, early last night when a small foreign made car and another auto collided at the intersection of North 7th and Herman Streets in West Monroe.

Sandra Farmer, 16, 2307 Trenton St., West Monroe, was admitted to the St Francis Hospital after being involved in the mishap. She was reportedly suffering from head injuries, and attendants late last night were awaiting X-ray reports to determine the extent of her injuries.

James Wesley Farmer, 30, a cousin of Miss Farmer was driving the small car which hit an auto driven by Aubrey L. Williams, 56, Negro, 109 Lee St., West Monroe. Williams' wife, Katie Williams, who was a passenger in the auto received minor head injuries and was released from the hospital after receiving first aid treatment.

Farmer suffered a cut on his chin and complained of his back and neck hurting, but was not believed in serious condition.

Williams was given a ticket for reckless driving causing the accident, police said. According to reports the cars were meeting each other on North 7th Street when Williams attempted to make a left turn and moved into the path of the foreign car. Both vehicles were heavily damaged.

In the second accident, Gary David Wall, 12 North 3rd St., West Monroe, was injured about 7 p.m. yesterday when his auto apparently went out of control and overturned at the intersection of Smith Street and the Pine Ridge Road, just south of the West Monroe city limits.

Wall was rushed, unconscious to the St. Francis Hospital where he recieved first aid treatment and was admitted. The extent of his injuries were not known late last night, but were not believed serious. Troop F, Louisiana state police, investigated the mishap.

FROM CONGO

Mobutu Pledges To Bar Soviets

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Col. Joesph Mobutu said Saturday he never will permit the return of Soviet influence to the Congo so long as he remains alive.

The 30-year-old army leader told The Associated Press he would not tolerate any challenge to his will either from the United Nations or from the suspended Congolese Parliament.

"My will is the supreme power in the Congo," he said. "My army obeys my orders and is powerful enough to carry them out."

A few hours earlier, a detachment of Mobutu's army tried to arrest and expel Associated Press correspondent Michael Goldsmith but was forestalled by a show of U.N. force. U.N. mission chief Rajeshwar Dayal said "we cannot permit such arbitrary procedures" and 60 Canadian, Ghanaian and Indonesian troops rescued Goldsmith from his hotel room after he had been besieged for more than an hour.

Mobutu rescinded the expulsion order after a 90-minute meeting in his fortified encampment with Goldsmith and Associated Press correspondent Andrew Borowiec.

"Let's forget the past," the bearded colonel said, shaking hands with the two reporters.

He told them he objected to their reports describing his regime as shaky. He dismissed the rumbling revolt in his army as unimportant and said he had failed to take rigorous action against mutinous troops "to avoid unnecessary bloodshed."

He gave the same explanation for his failure to arrest ex-Premier Patrice Lumumba, who still lives in the official prime minster's residence under U.N. protection.

Goldsmith and Borowiec went to Mobutu's camp accompanied by U.S. Consul Frank Carlucci but without any U.N. escort. There Mobutu explained his grievances against the foreign press in general and the AP in particular.

He cited articles in Belgian newspapers which asserted that control of his Sept. 14 coupe was slipping out of his hands. He also complained about eyewitness reports of misbehavior by his soldiers during their four-day occupation of Leopoldville's African city.

Mobutu withdrew his troops from the city after Dayal threatened to disarm them. All newsmen in Leopoldville had observed their rough and undisciplined treatment of the inhabitants during a four-day rampage in which civilians were beaten, stripped and robbed by frequently drunk soldiers.

Complete calm has returned to the African city since the army withdrew two days ago.

"This calm is due to the fact that my men seized the arms of disorderly elements," Mobutu declared.

Mobutu claimed any report suggesting he might not be in full control of the situation was "sabotage" of his effort to bring order to the Congo.

"It is I who commands here," he declared, waving his clenched fist.

Two unidentified Belgian advisers sitting in a corner of the room nodded their heads in silent agreement.

Mobutu acknowledged he is in open conflict with the United Nations over return to parliamentary rule. Dayal has been pressing for convocation of the pro-Lumumba Parliament which Mobutu suspended immediately after his coup.

Mobutu indicated again that the provisional government of college graduates he appointed to run the affairs of the nation will not continue in office after the end of the year.

Asked how he would continue his pro-Western regime in the new year, Mobutu said "I have specific plans" but declined to go into details.

He said he might eventually permit return to the Congo of small diplomatic missions from the Soviet Union and its satellites. He ejected Communist diplomats and the hundreds of Soviet bloc "advisers" brought in by Lumumba.

Speaking explicitly of their advisers, he said "Never as long as I am alive will they come back. I can promise you that. If I am dead perhaps, but as long as I live it is I who gives the orders here."

Soviets Protest U.S. Arrest Of Melekh As Spy

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia told the United States Saturday night that the Soviet Union "will not tolerate provocations with regard to its citizens, including those who work at the United Nations."

The warning came in a commentary on the arrest of Igor Melekh, a Soviet citizen and U.N. employe, by FBI agents in New York Thursday. He is being held, along with Willie Hirsch, a German-born Free-lance artist, on charges of espionage.

Izvestia claimed there was no foundation to the spy charges and said the Americans had no right to arrest him since he enjoyed diplomatic immunity as a U.N. employe.

WEST MONROE

Lindsay Countryside Subdivision

A HOUSE full of ideas, built for a long future. Located in the garden spot of Northeast La. known as Lindsay's Countryside Subdivision. In every important respect, this is the kind of a house so many of us dream of owning. We personally believe this "ideal house" is worthy of being studied and emulated by every prospect who is in the market for a house of the qualities of space, grace, and enduring construction. Sound conditioning ceilings, carefully planned lighting — and the kitchen is bright and wonderful in every way — the working area has a double basin sink, dishwasher, butcher block, built-in range and oven, 3 bedrooms, 2 tile baths, den, carpeted living room, utility room, workshop for Dad. Constructed of modern ranch style brick located on an acre of ground with over a thousand trees, 2200 sq. ft., cornice lighting, fully draped. 24 ft. patio, outside lighting, plenty of telephone plugs. Double carport. Paved, bus in front of house. Children can have horses and ride all over the countryside. Stocked lake within 1 block. This house is an investment of $29,000. Owner has vacated on transfer to another city and will sell for $26,000. Has loan value of $21,000.

PARGOUD BLVD.

A LOVELY brick home about 6 years old. Built by one of Monroe's most recognized contractors. This home has everything! 8 ft. foyer, 14 ft. living room, 26 ft. family room, one entire wall constructed of brick with wood-burning fireplace and seating ledge, built-ins, other walls of glass overlooking California type heated swimming pool with bath house, servant's bath. 3 bedrooms are 14 ft. and 18 ft., just worlds of large storage. 2 handsome ceramic tile baths. Pretty built-in kitchen which includes oven, range, dishwasher, refrigerator, and disposal. 14 ft. dining area. This house is located on a ¼ block of ground and is centrally air conditioned and heated, completely insulated, includes all carpets and drapes, wired for hi-fi throughout the house and private gardens. Redwood fence affords much privacy to the swimming pool area, beautiful landscaping, fine construction, steel beams. Pretty trees. Double carport with storage. This is one of Pargoud Boulevard's beauties!

SPEED DR.

FOR THE busiest family in town, this charming ranch style Roman brick is only a block from the school. 5-year-old North Monroe home includes over 2000 sq. ft. of living area, and built by one of Monroe's best recognized contractors. Look at these room sizes: 12 ft. entry hall, 21 ft. separate living room, carpets and drapes, 26 ft. family room, wood burning fireplace, built-ins, 18 ft. kitchen and dining area, dishwasher, double sink, ventahood, and worlds of cabinets. These bedroom sizes will certainly appeal to you: master bedroom 20 ft. with private ceramic tile bath, the other 2 bedrooms are 18 ft. each, all with huge closets. Double carport. Centrally heated, 4 tons of air conditioning, Venetian blinds, drapes, and carpets, copper plumbing. Paving and sewerage paid. ½ block to the busline. Nice large lot has a sprinkler system, making your yard watering easy. 27 ft. patio. This home is out of this world. Shown by appointment only.

FORSYTHE AVE.

LOVELY brick home shaded by 19 exquisite trees as oaks, pine, gum, elm, apple, holly, cherry, etc. Luxurious St. Augustine lawn, beautiful flowers. Only 6 years old. 1500 sq. ft. in living area. Convenient, large, wide solid brick drive to carport. Living room 14x27, Roman brick fireplace with mirror, wall-to-wall wool carpet, 2 lovely bedrooms, 14x15, and 14x16, walk-in closets with built-in shelves and chests. 2 ceramic tile baths, wedgewood blue with matching fixtures and pale gray with pink fixtures, built-in vanities. Pretty kitchen with island sink, nice cabinets, Dutch door leading to 27 ft. den. Parkay hardwood floors, with modern white Roman brick fireplace and mantel. 2 tons of air conditioning, central heating, automatic shutter attic fan, all wood walls, completely insulated. Concrete patio. Aluminum screens and windows, outside lighting, drapes, practically new hot water tank. Near Lexington School, Jr. High, shopping center, all churches.

RAYMOND DRIVE

TAKE A leisurely look through this home in a beautiful setting on the lake, just 10 minutes from downtown Monroe. We think you will like the floor plan, the built-in kitchen, appliances, the large closets, the extra extra storage space. We think you will really like this house — it's so well planned. The lot is 147x300, lovely pier, outlined with stately pines, approximately 100 numerous fruit trees, plum, peach, apple, pear, 9 bearing pecan trees, large oaks—slooping gracefully to the water's edge. And the lawn is completely covered in luxurious St. Augustine grass, pretty patio, outlined in banana trees and shrubs. This house is only 2 years old and constructed of blonde brick, trimmed in green with iron grillwork. 21 ft. living room, 13 ft. dining area off the kitchen which is paneled in imported birch with matching cabinets, double sink, large walk-in pantry, big broom closet, attractive divider between kitchen and dining area, 13 ft. utility room with many cabinets and room for a large deep freeze, wired 220. Built-in closet holds the hot water tank. 2½ ceramic tile baths, all spacious, and 3 nice bedrooms are 15 ft., 13 ft., and 14 ft., sliding door closets, extra wide. Large cedar closet off master bedroom, another cedar closet off the hall. Separate 22 ft. family room paneled with large closets and bath, sliding glass wall opens to the patio facing the bayou, fireplace with gas logs, built-in bookcases, and large gun cabinet. Double carport with 3 big storage rooms. Attic fan, central heating, 3 tons of air conditioning, drapes. Community deep water well with the best water. If you are looking for a real home, this is it. No city taxes, cheap parish taxes. This is in one of Monroe's finest suburban locations. You'll be proud to own a home here. Call us for appointment to see.

WEST MONROE

Lindsay Countryside Subdivision

A HOUSE full of ideas, built for a long future. Located in the garden spot of Northeast La. known as Lindsay's Countryside Subdivision. In every important respect, this is the kind of a house so many of us dream of owning. We personally believe this "ideal house" is worthy of being studied and emulated by every prospect who is in the market for a house of the qualities of space, grace, and enduring construction. Sound conditioning ceilings, carefully planned lighting — and the kitchen is bright and wonderful in every way — the working area has a double basin sink, dishwasher, butcher block, built-in range and oven, 3 bedrooms, 2 tile baths, den, carpeted living room, utility room, workshop for Dad. Constructed of modern ranch style brick located on an acre of ground with over a thousand trees, 2200 sq. ft., cornice lighting, fully draped. 24 ft. patio, outside lighting, plenty of telephone plugs. Double carport. Paved, bus in front of house. Children can have horses and ride all over the countryside. Stocked lake within 1 block. This house is an investment of $29,000. Owner has vacated on transfer to another city and will sell for $26,000. Has loan value of $21,000.

PARGOUD BLVD.

A LOVELY brick home about 6 years old. Built by one of Monroe's most recognized contractors. This home has everything! 8 ft. foyer, 14 ft. living room, 26 ft. family room, one entire wall constructed of brick with wood-burning fireplace and seating ledge, built-ins, other walls of glass overlooking California type heated swimming pool with bath house, servant's bath. 3 bedrooms are 14 ft. and 18 ft., just worlds of large storage. 2 handsome ceramic tile baths. Pretty built-in kitchen which includes oven, range, dishwasher, refrigerator, and disposal. 14 ft. dining area. This house is located on a ¼ block of ground and is centrally air conditioned and heated, completely insulated, includes all carpets and drapes, wired for hi-fi throughout the house and private gardens. Redwood fence affords much privacy to the swimming pool area, beautiful landscaping, fine construction, steel beams. Pretty trees. Double carport with storage. This is one of Pargoud Boulevard's beauties!

SPEED DR.

FOR THE busiest family in town, this charming ranch style Roman brick is only a block from the school. 5-year-old North Monroe home includes over 2000 sq. ft. of living area, and built by one of Monroe's best recognized contractors. Look at these room sizes: 12 ft. entry hall, 21 ft. separate living room, carpets and drapes, 26 ft. family room, wood burning fireplace, built-ins, 18 ft. kitchen and dining area, dishwasher, double sink, ventahood, and worlds of cabinets. These bedroom sizes will certainly appeal to you; master bedroom 20 ft. with private ceramic tile bath, the other 2 bedrooms are 18 ft. each, all with huge closets. Double carport. Centrally heated, 4 tons of air conditioning, Venetian blinds, drapes, and carpets, copper plumbing. Paving and sewerage paid. ½ block to the busline. Nice large lot has a sprinkler system, making your yard watering easy. 27 ft. patio. This home is out of this world. Shown by appointment only.

FORSYTHE AVE.

LOVELY brick home shaded by 19 exquisite trees as oaks, pine, gum, elm, apple, holly, cherry, etc. Luxurious St. Augustine lawn, beautiful flowers. Only 6 years old. 1500 sq. ft. in living area. Convenient, large, wide solid brick drive to carport. Living room 14x27, Roman brick fireplace with mirror, wall-to-wall wool carpet, 2 lovely bedrooms, 14x15, and 14x16, walk-in closets with built-in shelves and chests. 2 ceramic tile baths, wedgewood blue with matching fixtures and pale gray with pink fixtures, built-in vanities. Pretty kitchen with island sink, nice cabinets, Dutch door leading to 27 ft. den. Parkay hardwood floors, with modern white Roman brick fireplace and mantel. 2 tons of air conditioning, central heating, automatic shutter attic fan, all wood walls, completely insulated. Concrete patio. Aluminum screens and windows, outside lighting, drapes, practically new hot water tank. Near Lexington School, Jr. High, shopping center, all churches.

RAYMOND DRIVE

TAKE A leisurely look through this home in a beautiful setting on the lake, just 10 minutes from downtown Monroe. We think you will like the floor plan, the built-in kitchen, appliances, the large closets, the extra extra storage space. We think you will really like this house — it's so well planned. The lot is 147x300, lovely pier, outlined with stately pines, approximately 100 numerous fruit trees, plum, peach, apple, pear, 9 bearing pecan trees, large oaks—slooping gracefully to the water's edge. And the lawn is completely covered in luxurious St. Augustine grass, pretty patio, outlined in banana trees and shrubs. This house is only 2 years old and constructed of blonde brick, trimmed in green with iron grillwork. 21 ft. living room, 13 ft. dining area off the kitchen which is paneled in imported birch with matching cabinets, double sink, large walk-in pantry, big broom closet, attractive divider between kitchen and dining area, 13 ft. utility room with many cabinets and room for a large deep freeze, wired 220. Built-in closet holds the hot water tank. 1½ ceramic tile baths, all spacious, and 3 nice bedrooms are 15 ft., 13 ft., and 14 ft., sliding door closets, extra wide. Large cedar closet off master bedroom, another cedar closet off the hall. Separate 22 ft. family room paneled with large closets and bath, sliding glass wall opens to the patio facing the bayou, fireplace with gas logs, built-in bookcases, and large gun cabinet. Double carport with 3 big storage rooms. Attic fan, central heating, 3 tons of air conditioning, drapes. Community deep water well with the best water. If you are looking for a real home, this is it. No city taxes, cheap parish taxes. This is in one of Monroe's finest suburban locations. You'll be proud to own a home here. Call us for appointment to see.

DAGWOOD, I HAVE AN IDEA FOR A ROCKET FUEL MORE POWERFUL THAN ANY NOW IN USE REALLY HERB?
NOW, DOESN'T THAT PROVE THAT MY PROPELLANT IS SUPERIOR TO ANY USED BY AMERICA OR RUSSIA?
WONDERFUL-- LET'S MAKE SOME
WE'LL PROBABLY GET CONGRESSIONAL MEDALS FOR OUR CONTRIBUTION TO OUR NATION'S SECURITY
WE'LL TRANFORM OUR KITCHEN INTO A SCIENTIFIC LABORATORY.
DRUGS
NOW, YOU GIRLS GO TO THE MOVIES WHILE WE CONDUCT OUR EXPERIMENT-- WE WANT NO DISTRACTIONS
THIS WILL BE SO POWERFUL IT WILL EASILY PUT A FREIGHT CAR IN ORBIT
YEH--OR LET'S TAKE A CRACK AT THE MOON
WE REALLY SHOULD BE WEARING WHITE COATS LIKE THE SCIENTISTS IN TELEVISION COMMERCIALS
I DO HOPE THE BOYS WILL BE SUCCESSFUL WITH THEIR EXPERIMENT-- THEY WERE SO SERIOUS ABOUT IT
THEY SEEMED INSPIRED
OUR NUCLEAR DISTILLATION HAS A VERY PLEASANT ODOR
YEH--AND MOLECULES TASTE GOOD, TOO-- HERE, TRY SOME SNIF
HEY, BOY-- THIS IS GOOD-- HIC
YEH, MAN-- HIC-- LET'S SING SOMETHING
WE'RE LUCKY TO HAVE HUSBANDS WITH SUCH KEEN MINDS
YES, BUT YOU KNOW THEY SAY: "BEHIND EVERY SUCCESSFUL MAN THERE'S A WOMAN"

JUST THINK, CHARLIE BROWN... WHEN THE "GREAT PUMPKIN" RISES OUT OF THE PUMPKIN PATCH, WE'LL BE HERE TO SEE HIM!
IT JUST OCCURRED TO ME THAT THERE MUST BE TEN MILLION PUMPKIN PATCHES IN THIS COUNTRY.. WHAT MAKES YOU THINK WE'RE IN THE RIGHT ONE?
JUST A FEELING I HAVE, CHARLIE BROWN, ALTHOUGH I THINK THIS MUST BE THE KIND OF PUMPKIN PATCH HE WOULD PREFER...
I DOUBT IF HE LIKES LARGE PUMPKIN PATCHES...THEY'RE TOO COMMERCIAL..HE LIKES SMALL HOMEY ONES...THEY'RE MORE SINCERE...
SOMEHOW I'VE NEVER THOUGHT OF A PUMPKIN PATCH AS BEING SINCERE...
THERE HE IS! THERE HE IS!
IT'S THE 'GREAT PUMPKIN'! HE'S RISING UP OUT OF THE PUMPKIN PATCH
OHHHOOOO

WHAT HAPPENED? DID I FAINT? WHAT DID HE LEAVE US? DID HE LEAVE US ANY TOYS?
NO TOYS... JUST A USED DOG...
HE MUST BE WELL ON HIS WAY BY THIS TIME.. HAPPY JOURNEY, O, GREAT PUMPKIN! HAPPY JOURNEY!

SEE HOW TAME THEY ARE, BABY SISTER? THEY'LL EVEN EAT OUT OF MY HAND.
THEY'RE PERFECTLY DARLING.
LATER: IT'S ELMO, BROTHER. HE'S FURIOUS. HE SAYS TO GET YOUR DUCKS OUT OF HIS LILY POND.
THE DANGED SOREHEAD!
SINCE WHEN, ELMO PICKLEHEIMER, DID YOU START CALLING THIS MUD PUDDLE A LILY POND?
FOR THE LAST TIME, KEEP YOUR DRATTED DUCKS OUTA MY YARD, OR I'LL WRING THEIR NECKS AND EAT 'EM!
NEXT DAY:
HAVE YOU SEEN THE DUCKS, BABY SISTER?
OH, DEAR! I HOPE THEY HAVEN'T GONE OVER TO THE PICKLEHEIMERS' AGAIN. YOU'D BETTER GO SEE.
© 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.
NO, THEY'RE NOT ON ELMO'S POND.
I WONDER... WOULD THAT FLEA-BRAINED KNUCKLEHEAD DARE EAT MY DUCKS?...OHO! WINGS! DRUMSTICKS!
WADDA YOU DOING SNOOPING IN MY GARBAGE CAN?
SO YOU DID EAT MY PET DUCKS, YOU MONSTER! YOU GHOUL!
I DID NOT!
YOU DID!
DIDN'T
DID!
EEK! THEY'RE AT IT AGAIN!

AW, MOM! DON'T TURN IT OFF!
YOU FELLOWS HAVE WATCHED ENOUGH TV FOR ONE AFTERNOON!
I WANT YOU TO RUN OUTSIDE AND PLAY.
AW, MRS. MITCHELL! WHAT CAN WE PLAY?
YEAH. WHAT CAN WE PLAY, MOM?
YOU'LL THINK OF SOMETHING.
WHAT CAN WE PLAY? I WISH THAT WERE MY PROBLEM!
DID YOU TELL THE KIDS THEY COULD MOVE THE TV OVER BY THE FRONT WINDOW?
WHAT?
ALL RIGHT, WISE-GUYS! DIDN'T I TELL YOU TO GO OUTSIDE AND PLAY?
WE'RE OUTSIDE, MOM!
WHAT'S THE IDEA OF PUSHING THE TV OVER TO THE WINDOW? WITH THE BACK TO THE LIVING ROOM?
THAT'S PART OF THE GAME WE'RE PLAYING MOM!
YEAH!
YOU TOLD US TO COME OUTSIDE AN' PLAY. AN' WE ARE! WE'RE PLAYIN' DRIVE IN MOVIE!

... STARTING AT FOUR A.M. WITH THE MILKING — THEN CLEANING THE BARNS, HOEING THE FIELDS, DIGGING POTATOES, ON AND ON, EVENING MILKING! SIXTEEN HOURS WORK EVERY DAY, SEVEN DAYS A WEEK!
STOP! PURITY AND I BOTH KNOW CHILDREN SHOULD HAVE SOME DUTIES ABOUT THE HOME! THEY ARE NOT HIRED WORKERS! THEY ARE OUR FOSTER CHILDREN!
YEP! YOU DON'T PAY THEM! IN FACT, YOU GET PAID PLENTY TO KEEP THEM!
WHAT'S WRONG WITH THAT? IT'S LEGAL! THEY'RE TOO SMALL TO DO MUCH WORK ANYWAY!
WEEK AFTER THE FIVE KIDS CAME YOU FIRED YOUR THREE HIRED MEN!
10-30-60
HAVEN'T NEEDED TO HIRE ANY NEW MEN, EH? PROFITABLE OPERATION! LEGAL? I DON'T THINK THE AUTHORITIES WILL THINK SO, JUDGE!

Little Orphan Annie
"It makes a difference whose ox is gored." - Martin Luther. — Or, as Noah Webster said it in "The Partial Judge," "It depends upon whose ox is gored."
HEY! WHAT'S WRONG, ANNIE?
OH, CAP'N BAR! I'M IN BAD TROUBLE, AN' SO'S MR. SPUD. JUST FOR LETTIN' ME WORK HERE! MRS. PURITY GUFFY STARTED IT!
NOW JUDGE GUFFY SAYS WE'RE CRIM'NALS! MR. YANK YENOM SAID IF WE HAD TROUBLE, LET HIM KNOW! HE'S TALKIN' TO TH' JUDGE NOW!
HM-M-M! WELL, I'M BETTIN' ON YANK T' TAKE "STUFFY" GUFFY BY A K.O.!
THE OUTRAGE TO PUBLIC DECENCY OF A LEE-TLE CHEE-ILD, FORCED TO SLAVE AWAY WHAT SHOULD BE THE CAREFREE, SHINING HOURS OF YOUTH!
OH, FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE, "STUFFY"!
DON'T CALL ME "STUFFY"! YOU'RE SHOWING CONTEMPT FOR A JUDGE!
HELPING OUT AT THE STORE AFTER SCHOOL! DID THAT EVER HURT ANY KID YOU KNOW OF?
THOSE GOLDEN HOURS OF CHILDHOOD SHOULD LIVE IN HER MEMORY AS PRICELESS JEWELS!
JUST A SECOND, JUDGE! YOU AND YOUR GOOD WIFE, PURITY! TOOK FIVE POOR KIDS OUT TO YOUR DAIRY FARM?
EH? WHY, YES! TO GIVE THE POOR, UNDERPRIVILEGED LITTLE FELLOWS A CHANCE TO SHARE THE BLESSINGS OF RURAL LIFE! FRESH AIR, RICH FOOD, GLORIOUS SUNSHINE, REGULAR HOURS!
--- STARTING AT FOUR A.M. WITH THE MILKING --- THEN CLEANING THE BARNS, HOEING THE FIELDS, DIGGING POTATOES, ON AND ON, EVENING MILKING! SIXTEEN HOURS WORK EVERY DAY, SEVEN DAYS A WEEK!
STOP! PURITY AND I BOTH KNOW CHILDREN SHOULD HAVE SOME DUTIES ABOUT THE HOME! THEY ARE NOT HIRED WORKERS! THEY ARE OUR FOSTER CHILDREN!
YEP! YOU DON'T PAY THEM! IN FACT, YOU GET PAID PLENTY TO KEEP THEM!
WHAT'S WRONG WITH THAT? IT'S LEGAL! THEY'RE TOO SMALL TO DO MUCH WORK ANYWAY!
WEEK AFTER THE FIVE KIDS CAME YOU FIRED YOUR THREE HIRED MEN!
10-30-60
HAVEN'T NEEDED TO HIRE ANY NEW MEN, EH? PROFITABLE OPERATION! LEGAL? I DON'T THINK THE AUTHORITIES WILL THINK SO, JUDGE!
N-NOW, WAIT A MINUTE! I'LL TURN IN A FULL REPORT ON THAT!
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. 1960 News Syndicate Co. Inc.
IT'S GONE IN! YOU AND YOUR PURITY ARE ABOUT TO HAVE MORE PROBLEMS THAN A BEAR WITH HIS PAW CAUGHT IN A HORNETS' NEST!
B-B-BUT, YANK! A THING LIKE THAT COULD RUIN ME!
